FACTS ON SUGAR: STOCKS ON HAND AND 1942 CROPS

Results of Tribune Survey Told.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

What are the facts about sugar? Does a shortage exist or threaten?

The buying public, bewildered by conflicting information and predictions, has rushed to stock up on sugar and other commodities. The authenticity of the shortages is questioned by members of congress and others.

To answer the questions about sugar and other commodities, THE TRIBUNE made a survey of all the factors bearing on the condition. Results of the inquiry about sugar are given in this article. Other commodities will be taken up in subsequent articles.

USES OF SUGAR

U. S. Consumes Fourth of World's Normal Production

Americans are the greatest sugar consumers in the world. They use about 7 million short tons [a short ton is 2,000 pounds] every year. This is one-quarter of the world's normal production.

Sugar is used primarily as a food, in pastries, candies, soft drinks, gum, and other foods. But it is also an important raw material for the manufacture of ethyl alcohol, used in smokeless powder, and for thousands of chemicals.

Two-thirds of America's sugar supply is consumed in homes, restaurants, and hotels. The rest goes to industrial users—soft drink manufacturers, candy makers, and bakeries.

Demand for Sugar Expands.

In wartime demand for sugar expands. It is used in greater quantities as an energy food and in explosives. With national income rising, families in the low income groups are using more sugar. Because prices are controled, the normal check on consumption that occurs with rising prices is not effective.

With the rise in national income in 1941, per capita consumption of sugar in all forms reached 114 pounds, near the all-time peak of 117 pounds in 1926.

The rationing plan which the government is preparing would limit household use per person to three-quarters of a pound [12 ounces] a week. The plan is expected to reduce consumption in all forms to 77 pounds per person in 1942.

SOURCES OF SUGAR

Most of What Nation Consumes Comes from Outside

More than two-thirds of the sugar consumed in America comes from sources outside the continental United States. Production of domestic beet and cane sugar provided 2⅓ millions of the 7½ million short tons consumed in 1941. Other sources are the Caribbean and Pacific areas, of which the former is by far the more important.

War has a serious effect on production and distribution of sugar. Production may be stopped in some areas by enemy action. More serious, however, are the difficulties of transportation. Shipping hazards multiply and cargo space is diverted to other uses.

THE GOVERNMENT VIEW

Henderson Foresees a Shortage and Explains Why

Government spokesmen foresee a shortage of 2 million tons in 1942. Price Administrator Leon Henderson lists the following causes for the deficiency:

1. Domestic beet sugar supplies will be curtailed because there are smaller stocks to draw upon than existed a year ago.

2. Imports from the Philippine Islands have been cut off.

3. Imports from Hawaii will be curtailed because of the effect of war on shipping, labor, and harvesting.

4. There will be a big reduction in the available Cuban sugar because it is necessary to divert supplies to England, Canada, and Russia that normally would come to the United

Shot in Plane Flying Near an Arms Plant

Granite City, Ill., Feb. 8 (AP).—Delbert Richardson, Granite City flying instructor, said his plane was machine-gunned and a passenger, Delbert Henson, 21 year old Alton youth, was critically wounded today as the machine was banked for a return journey near a restricted Alton, Ill., defense area.

Richardson said the youth and a friend, Miss Beverly Ann Keith, 15, also of Alton, were enjoying their first plane trip. They asked him, he said, to fly over Miss Keith's home.

The pilot said he refused but that as he turned the plane at an altitude of 1,100 feet the first of seven shots struck the ship. One pierced Henson's hip and entered his stomach.

Gas Tank Punctured.

Another punctured the gasoline tank and Richardson said he switched in an emergency fuel tank. Then he hedge-hopped back to the Granite City airport from which he took off earlier.

Richardson said that the plane, when fired upon, was to his best knowledge "eight or ten miles away from the Western Cartridge company plant."

Henson is at St. Elizabeth's hospital, Granite City, and his physician described his condition as "critical."

The Western Cartridge company plant is guarded by soldiers from Jefferson Barracks, Mo., and by private police. Source of the shots has not been officially determined.

Like Hail on Wings.

"It sounded like hail striking the wings," said Miss Keith. She related how Henson cried "I'm shot" an instant after the first bullets struck, and then slumped against her.

The pilot heard Henson's words but decided against a landing there—the machine gun still was chattering.

Bullets struck the plane's undercarriage, wings, and fuselage.

Lieut. Col. Thomas G. Polland of Jefferson Barracks, in command of the soldiers detached for guard duty at Western Cartridge company, refused to state by whom the shots were fired or the type of weapon used.

Reported to Area Headquarters.

He said a report of the shooting had been made to 7th corps area headquarters at Omaha, Neb.

[At Omaha the staff officer of the day refused to comment. He said there was no public relations officer on duty on Sunday but that one would be on duty at 8 a. m. Monday. He characterized the incident as a "serious affair," and said he thought it probable no official statement would be made in advance of an army investigation.]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—German prisoners of war in this country will receive a larger ration of sausage and Italian prisoners will get more bread, according to information reaching THE TRIBUNE. Germans will receive three four-ounce issues of sausage or offal weekly, while Italians will have 16 ounces of bread daily.

New Deal Acts for Showdown on OCD Actors

BY JOHN FISHER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—An administration crisis brewed tonight as the tempest raged over the appointment of actors and dancers to direct civilian defense activities at fancy government salaries.

It was learned that the administration leadership in the house sent urgent telegrams to Republicans as well as Democrats in their desperation to get votes in the house tomorrow against a ban on any funds for the Office of Civilian Defense going for "the promotion of physical fitness by dancing, fan dancing, street shows, or other forms of public entertainment."

Situation Is Unusual.

This ban, in the form of an amendment to a pending deficiency bill, was approved Friday by a teller vote of 88 to 80 and comes up for a final roll call vote tomorrow. The deficiency bill of 160 million dollars includes 100 millions for the OCD, now jocularly termed the "Office of Clowns and Dancers."

Veteran members of the house declared that never within their memory had the majority party ever sent appeals to the opposition to be present for a crucial vote.

Bid to Republicans.

One interpretation of the telegrams to the Republicans signed by the opposition leadership was that it carried an invitation for administration approval at the polls next November. President Roosevelt told a press conference Friday that he favors the election of congressmen who, regardless of party, will have a record of backing up the government in an emergency.

The administration and particularly the President's wife, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, face the prospect of public censure if the house sustains the vote tomorrow restricting use of OCD funds. Mrs. Roosevelt is considered responsible for the appointment of her protégée, Miss Mayris Chaney, a night club dancer, to a $4,600 a year OCD post in charge of soothing children in event of air raids.

Miss Chaney and Melvyn Douglas, film actor whose real name is Melvyn Hesselberg and who has been appointed "director of the OCD arts council," are the inspiration for the current row.

The Douglas Situation.

Douglas, who made $98,500 in the movies in 1939, according to the latest salary reports, was said to have been appointed to the OCD post at compensation equivalent to $8,000 a year. This statement was made by a publicity representative of the OCD and he was listed at this salary in house hearings on the OCD appropriation. But Douglas today issued a statement defending his appointment and declaring he is serving without compensation.

Legion Protests Douglas.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8 [Special].—In a bitter and angry protest, 700 members of the Los Angeles County council of the American Legion, speaking for thousands of members of its 191 Legion posts, tonight assailed the appointment of Melvyn Douglas to a job with the Office of Civilian Defense. There was only one dissenting vote.

The Legionnaires charged that Douglas has long been associated with leftist organizations of the communist variety; that when he was offered a colonel's commission in the California National Guard such a storm of protest arose that the actor declined the commission; that his present appointment as head of the arts division of OCD has "caused great alarm and indignation among patriotic American citizens."

NATION ON WAR TIME TO CONSERVE LIGHT FOR DEFENSE EFFORT

The nation put its clocks on war duty today, moving them one hour ahead of standard time to save electricity for war factories and to give more daylight for the outdoor tasks.

War time—the designation of President Roosevelt—came while most of the nation slept at 2 a. m., standard time, in each of the zones across the country.

The transition was made with little flurry. Most urban householders pushed the hand ahead one hour when they wound the clock and put the cat out. Railroads, air lines, and communications systems had to be more precise about it.

The new time comes by virtue of congressional enactment and will remain in force until six months after the war ends.

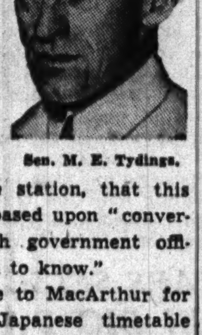
The Federal Power commission intends to assay the value of the new time to the war goods industries. Chairman Leland Olds said the commission would make a survey to see how much power was being saved.

U. S. IS SENDING AID TO PACIFIC, TYDINGS SAYS

'Doing All It Can' to Help MacArthur.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Sen. Millard E. Tydings [D., Md.], a member of the senate naval affairs committee, said today that everything is being done that can be done to sustain Gen. Douglas MacArthur "and his gallant men" in the Philippines.



Sen. M. E. Tydings.

Tydings said, in a radio address over a Baltimore station, that this observation was based upon "conversations with high government officials in a position to know."

He paid tribute to MacArthur for "wrecking the Japanese timetable for advance and aggression" and said men and materials are on their way to the southwest Pacific for an offensive against the enemy at the earliest possible moment.

Difficulties Are Numerous.

"There are many difficulties in the way," he warned. "Because of Pearl Harbor, we are not in as strong a position to instantly take the offensive as we otherwise would have been, but men and materials are on the way to our own and other forces fighting in the southwest Pacific. While it will take time, efforts are being made to do this at the earliest possible moment, so we are given to understand in Washington."

Army and navy officials declined comment on Tyding's speech but it was recalled here that President Roosevelt told a press conference recently that very good progress was being made in getting American supplies to the western Pacific.

Tydings also warned against subordinating the war in the Pacific to that in the Atlantic or other areas of the world.

"Stop Japs," He Says.

There has been considerable public criticism on the sending of an American expeditionary force to northern Ireland at a time when American forces were hard pressed by the Japanese in the Pacific theater of war. Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox caused consternation recently by declaring the navy was concentrating on the defeat of Hitler first.

"Japan is hoping, in her war in the far east, to get the rubber, tin, and oil she needs so much for her military operations," said Tydings. "None can know what the secret plans of the army and navy are, how much of our forces will be sent to the far east and how much to Europe and Africa.

"It is my opinion that it is more important to stop the Japs before they can get these essential materials than it is to neglect this area now for Europe and Africa" he said.

Great Need for Planes.

"There is a great need for fighter planes there now to intercept the large squadrons of Japanese bombers that precede the transports carrying Japanese troops. More fighter planes in this section will give the united nations superiority in the air and be a decisive force in blocking further Japanese aggressions.

"If we could hold and contain the Japanese and deny them the raw materials they must have we would seriously cripple one of our enemies and diminish the amount of bloodshed in the far eastern theater."

He continued, however, that things are not going very well with the British in North Africa, and while the Russians have made "significant gains from the Arctic to the Black sea" a counterattack by the Germans is expected with the coming of spring. It is against the contingency that Hitler can deliver a weakening blow that "armies and navies of the United States are attempting to get in position," Tydings said. If Guam had been fortified it would have been difficult for the Japanese to have been so successful at Pearl Harbor, he declared.

WAR AT A GLANCE: DAY'S NEWS FROM ALL THE FRONTS

Latest developments on all war fronts:

On the Bataan front in the Philippines, the Japs have renewed their offensive, battering the American forts in Manila bay with siege guns, bombing the American positions from the air and making what MacArthur calls an "infiltration thrust" with their infantry. Fighting was increasing in intensity on both of Gen. MacArthur's flanks. The forts were shelled for two hours at four minute intervals, but the general reported that no serious damage was done.

Off the coast of Delaware a German submarine sank the American tanker China Arrow by torpedoing it and then shelling it with its deck guns after the crew of 37 had taken to the lifeboats. They were all landed safely after being picked up by a coast guard patrol boat.

Land on Singapore Island.

Japanese troops have landed on Singapore Island, the British acknowledged. The landings were on the west coast of the island. Tokio reported that tank units were landed on the island under protection of artillery fire. It was announced from Singapore that stiff resistance was being offered the invading Japanese.

In the Dutch Indies the Jap bombing raids continued, six towns and bases being attacked, including Surabaya. Darwin, Australia, had an air alarm and bombs were dropped in the Solomon Islands and New Guinea.

In Burma it was announced that large contingents of Chinese troops have arrived in Rangoon to help in the defense of the country and that more are on the way. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, allied commander in the western Pacific, flew from Java to Burma and was said to have expressed himself as satisfied with the British defense of the Salween river, key to the strategic Burma road.

Heavy Fighting in Russia.

On the Russian front, Moscow reported continued advances and heavy fighting in all sectors, particularly northeast of Moscow and in the Donetz basin to the south. On the Ukraine front the Russians reported that German artillery has become so weakened as to be a vital factor no longer.

Cairo reported that the axis drive in Libya had been stopped about 40 miles west of Tobruk, and there were indications that the forces of Rommel had met the main British forces.

TROOPS LANDED ON WEST COAST OF BRITISH BASE

A British communique announcing the landing said it was effected "in strength" and indicated that a heavy battle was raging along the coast.

The communique said:

"An enemy force in strength succeeded in landing on the western shores of Singapore Island last night. They are being engaged by our troops. Fighting continues."

Girded for the blow which came after nine days of siege were the tough British, Australian, and Indian veterans of the long withdrawal down the Malayan peninsula and reenforcements newly augmented by Chinese volunteers.

The landing on this island where Great Britain had made her premier naval base of the orient was effected on the opposite end from where Japanese shock troops seized Palau Ubin Island yesterday in the Strait of Johore.

Isle Without Defenses.

Palau Ubin Island lies off the northeast end of Singapore Island and was without defenses except for shelling by British batteries based on Singapore.

[The Tokio radio said that Japanese tank units as well as infantry had landed on Singapore Island and were consolidating their positions under heavy fire.]

A heavy bombardment of British positions on the northern shore of Singapore Island preceded the Japanese landing.

Early yesterday morning Japanese artillery on the Malayan mainland had opened up, and, all day long, shells screamed across the narrow strait which constituted Singapore's first line of defense.

Strait Mile Wide.

The western reaches of Johore strait across which the Japanese launched their invasion thrust range from about three-quarters of a mile to a mile in width.

The only connection between Singapore and the mainland was a narrow causeway in the middle of the strait—which measures about 35 miles from east to west—and this link the British said they had destroyed after withdrawing to the island a week ago Saturday.

There was no indication that the Japanese had attempted to push across to Singapore Island from Palau Ubin.

Only Half Mile Off Singapore.

At points, Ubin is only a half mile from Singapore Island's northeast shore. It lies almost midway in the strait and between Changi and the huge RAF field across the Seletar river from the $60,000,000 naval base. Both the RAF and naval bases have been greatly neutralized by the proximity of Japanese artillery. Ubin is four miles long and one to two miles wide. Johore strait at this point is about four miles wide.

British artillery thundered at Japanese troop movements on the mainland behind Ubin and it appeared that the invaders might make their main thrust from that direction. The Japanese in that sector were basing their forces at Masai, east of Johore Bahru, and it was upon that point that the great rifles of British defenses hurled their heaviest shells.

"Enemy batteries in South Johore [province] were engaged by our artillery and dispersed," the British communique said, adding that Japanese batteries near Masai had been silenced.

ARTILLERY AND BOMBS HAMMER BATAAN YANKS

Manila Forts Battered for Two Hours.

For the second successive day, the enemy, from concealed gun positions on the southern or Cavite side of Manila bay, threw heavy artillery shells at United States forts guarding the southern end of MacArthur's Bataan peninsula position.

Fire at Regular Intervals.

The army communique indicated a renewal of the Japanese offensive against MacArthur's forces, which had enjoyed a respite after having beaten off almost continuous attacks for two weeks. It said:

"Bombardment of our fortifications at the entrance to Manila bay by concealed enemy batteries of the Cavite shore was resumed. The fire was concentrated on Forts Mills, Hughes, and Frank for two hours. Projectiles were fired at four minute intervals. No serious damage was done.

"On Bataan peninsula the enemy made an infiltration thrust on our right. A sharp counterattack repulsed this attack. Fighting is increasing in intensity on our left.

Aerial Attacks Heavy.

"Aerial bombing by the enemy on our positions in Bataan was heavy thruout the last 24 hours."

Yesterday there was a three hour bombardment of Mills, Hughes, and Fort Drum. Fort Frank, hitherto passed up by the Japanese gunners, is hardly more than a mile off the mainland. Mills, however, is on Corregidor Island, about 10 miles from the Japanese gun emplacements.

Artillery experts here said there might be any number of reasons for the regularity of the Japanese fire, including the possibilities that the enemy has only one or two heavy guns in position or that he might set up a fixed interval of fire and later change it suddenly to catch the opposition out from under cover. The shelling indicated that the Japanese had succeeded in bringing up heavy guns for seige work.

JAPS SEIZE PORT IN BIG BATTLE, CHINESE ADMIT

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 8 (AP).—Better armed Japanese forces have driven into Waichow, bustling East river port 40 miles north of Hongkong, but the forces of Chiang Kai-shek inflicted heavy casualties before they withdrew.

A Chinese communique today acknowledged the fall of the city, once destroyed by the Japanese in the winter of 1938, on Feb. 5. Thus the Chinese drive which in January had menaced the Japanese at Canton, was reversed.

The Chinese said the Japanese had set huge fires after systematically looting the city. Thousands of Chinese refugees from Hongkong left Waichow safely before the Japanese entered.

Dies Says Propaganda, Spying Continue.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—The house committee on un-American activities has decided tentatively to propose that all Japanese in Pacific coast states be removed at least 500 miles inland and interned it was learned today.

This recommendation is contained in a first draft of a 1,000 page report the committee has prepared on subversive Japanese activities. This "yellow paper," expected to be made public within two weeks, is still subject to revision but in its present form asserts:

"The United States has been and still is lax, tolerant, and soft toward the Japanese who have violated American hospitality.

Assert Japs Still Spying.

"Shinto temples still operate, propaganda outlets still disseminate propaganda material and Japanese, both alien and American citizens, still spy for the Japanese government—all constituting an ever dangerous menace to the peace and security of the people and of the defense industries, particularly on the Pacific coast."

No figures are available on the number of Japanese now living within 500 miles of the Pacific coast. However, the justice department has estimated there are upwards of 200,000 Japanese, Germans, and Italians in California, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah, and Idaho. A majority of these are Japanese.

Information in the committee's possession, Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] said, indicates that recent justice department moves designed to close Pacific areas to Japanese have not been fully effective and that the Japanese have taken advantage of "protection of civil rights" to promote systematic espionage such as prepared the way for the attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7.

Focal Point in California.

The "yellow paper" says that the "focal point" of the Japanese fifth column in the United States is in southern California and adds:

"The Japanese government's use of its fifth column in the Philippines and in Hawaii is a sample of what the United States can expect from the Japanese fifth column located on our Pacific coast when the time comes for that fifth column to strike.

"That time will be decided by the Japanese high command."

The "yellow paper" asserts that when Pearl Harbor was attacked, Japanese truck drivers ran their machines into United States planes on the ground, others disabled automobiles of army and navy officers, and still others threw furniture into the streets to blockade them.

Find German Motor

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 8 [Special].—The remnants of 14 planes wrecked in the Pearl Harbor episode have arrived in Oakland with army spokesmen secretive about the ultimate destination.

It was presumed, however, that they would be broken up for scrap which would be used in the manufacture of other planes or war weapons. In the wreckage was a Japanese plane which was brought down during the battle over Oahu on Dec. 7. One German motor was found in the heap. Also in the pile was a four engined American bomber of the Flying Fortress type, presumably one destroyed on the ground at Hickam field.

Only a few of the plane parts were coated with war paint.

JAVA FINE BASE TO START ALLIED DRIVE—VAN MOOK

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 8 (AP).—Dr. Hubertus Van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the Netherlands East Indies, said today "Java offers many advantages as a starting point for the allied advance which will eventually win the war. We will fight for every foot of the island of Java," Dr. Van Mook said upon his arrival from a series of Washington conferences on the war in the Pacific.

"We have great resources, many fine harbors and bases, plenty of labor—everything that is needed as a base of operations. We need planes, supplies of every kind, but first of all—airplanes.

"Will we hold the Indies?

"Well—it will be touch and go. I hope it will be touch!"

Dr. Van Mook said there is complete understanding between his government and the United States on the united nations' immediate war problems in the Pacific.

"We have known," he said, "it would be impossible for our comparatively small forces to hold all the islands of our archipelago, so we have fought for time. We have defended each point to the limit, and then destroyed everything that would be of value to the enemy."

ATTACK UNTIL SUNK, IS HART'S ORDER TO FLEET

WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMED FORCES ON BATAAN PENINSULA, Feb. 7 [Delayed] (AP).—Adm. Thomas Hart's classic order to the Asiatic fleet just before the battle of Macassar Strait is being proudly memorized by sailors and soldiers defending the Philippines against the Japanese. This was his terse command:

"Submarines and surface ships will attack the enemy and no vessel will leave the scene of action until it is sunk or all its ammunition exhausted."

The sailors say these words will live in American history.

BRITISH SEE NEW AXIS THREAT TO MEDITERRANEAN

Fear Big Drive to Isolate China and Russia.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The necessity of retaining mastery of the Mediterranean daily becomes more important in the eyes of experts here as a result of Japanese progress in the western Pacific.

The experts incline to the belief that the Germans and Japanese are planning a tremendous joint drive from Singapore to Suez. Such a drive, if successful, would isolate China and Russia from the allies. It also would leave British and American troops with no battlefield where the destruction of enemy forces could be achieved. The loss of the Mediterranean would open a new battlefield against Russia, both in the Black sea and Caucasus.

Interferes with Plans.

The war in the western Pacific has interfered with plans considered vital by British and American experts for the defeat of Germany. All the supplies which were promised Russia have not been delivered, but every effort is being made to sustain the soviets as far as possible.

The loss of the Persian gulf, or the shipping lanes in that area, would multiply the allied problems of sending supplies to Russia, at the same time giving the axis invaluable oil supplies in Iraq and Iran [Persia] with which it could undertake large scale operations in southern Russia and India.

The combined axis armies are so strong in numbers that experts assert Chinese and Russian manpower must be depended upon for the final allied victory.

Calls Libya Failure Inexcusable.

"The failure in Libya is one of the almost inexcusable failures," and "routine explanations" are inadequate. This campaign, he charged, "seems to show there is just as much incompetence and complacency at Cairo, now, as there was at Crete."

The fact that Egypt, following a cabinet crisis, is holding an election, is cited as an indication of the inadequacy of British diplomacy there.

The importance of Turkey as a potential ally in the Mediterranean is unquestioned, but it is admitted that unless Britain is able to retain its position in the Mediterranean, Turkey might find it impossible to avoid becoming the unwilling tool of the axis.

Vichy Helping the Axis?

Politically, too, disturbing events have been mentioned. Since authoritative circles admitted they have reason to believe the Vichy government is supplying the axis in Libya, there has been a demand for a showdown.

But the fear is expressed that a direct showdown with Vichy might divorce sympathy for the allied cause among the majority of the French population.

With the allies pressed on all sides, Vichy's attitude is of grave significance. The advisability of a showdown may be questioned by the fact that the French fleet is still a power to be reckoned with in the Mediterranean. Combined with the Italian fleet and the German units, and with the cover of the German air force concentrated in Sicily, it might alone prove the decisive factor in the battle of the Mediterranean.

Other factors, too, are involved, if Vichy were declared an out and out enemy. It might prove an encouragement to Spain to become openly belligerent, which would expose Gibraltar and the straits.

KILLED BY TRAIN AT CROSSING.

Guido Giralami, 30 years old, a laborer, was killed by a Baltimore and Ohio railroad freight train yesterday at the U. S. route 30 crossing in Chicago Heights. He lived at 1424 Portland avenue in the suburb.

JAP PLANES RAID SIX TOWNS AND BASES IN INDIES

Surabaya Again Bombed; Civilians Killed.

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Feb. 8 (AP).—Japanese planes, striking at a half dozen sectors of the 3,000 mile chain of Dutch islands, made an attack in force today on Surabaya, the only important naval base remaining to the united nations in the Indies and Malaya.

The damage to naval establishments at that Java port was, however, "of only slight importance," said the Dutch communique. It reads:

"A number of Japanese bombers again attacked Surabaya. The damage inflicted on the naval establishments as a result of this attack was of only slight importance.

Tea Pickers Machine Gunned.

"A group of tea pickers were machine gunned by a low-flying plane at Pengalengan near Bandoeng. There were no casualties, however.

"Muntok on Banka Island was bombed. Several civilians were killed, six were seriously wounded, and 30 slightly wounded. Many fires were started and did considerable damage.

"Palembang was attacked by six bombers with a strong fighter escort. Some of our planes were lost on the ground, having caught fire as a result of the bombing.

"An attack of Japanese fighters on a small village in New Guinea resulted in one civilian seriously wounded and another slightly wounded by machine gun fire. There was slight reconnaissance activity over North Sumatra."

Tell of Bombing Raids.

Refugees arriving from Belawan, port of the important Sumatra tobacco region of Deli, which has been bombed repeatedly, told of the first two attacks on Jan. 27 and 30.

Japanese planes circled the port for two hours and dropped 80 bombs at two ships but missed every time, these persons said. Finally a near miss caused one of the ships to spring a leak and started a fire, and the ship was scuttled to extinguish the flames. Little damage was done in the first raid.

Altho the Japanese raiders have visited almost every part of Sumatra they have failed conspicuously to knock out Dutch air forces based there.

JAPS SINK SHIP, FIRE ON VICTIMS, WOMAN ASSERTS

RANGOON, Feb. 8 (AP).—A woman survivor now in a hospital here said today a Japanese submarine machine gunned the lifeboats of an allied ship after torpedoing it in the Bay of Bengal.

The submarine, she said, came to the surface after the torpedo struck and then machine gunned the boats and shelled the ship until it sank. Forty persons in a boat with the woman survivor were compelled to bail ceaselessly because there were bullet holes near the water line. Her boat drifted for four days and nights.

"We existed on half a biscuit and a cup of water each daily," she said. "Four of the people in our boat died. On the fifth day we were spotted by a British plane which dropped milk and food by parachute and signaled that it was returning to send help."

Later a patrol boat appeared and took the exhausted survivors aboard.

Burma Officials Visit Raid Victims

ALLIES CHECKING JAPS IN BURMA, WAVELL FEELS

Expresses Confidence on Visit to Front.

RANGOON Burma, Feb. 8 (AP).—British defenders of Burma and its vital gateway to China have checked the Japanese along the Salween river to the satisfaction of the united nations commander, Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, who visited the front a second time recently.

The generalissimo's visit, disclosed today, spotlighted the Burma front as potentially the most important opposing Japan's ambitious drive for control over all eastern Asia.

Wavell spoke with officers and men on the Moulmein front within sound of opposing artillery, and was understood to have expressed "reasoned optimism" regarding the united nations' position in the southwest Pacific. He flew from Java, his headquarters in the threatened Netherlands East Indies.

Predict Big Allied Push.

Speaking over the Calcutta radio, Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, recently transferred from Chungking to Moscow as British ambassador, envisioned a "big push" by American, British, and Chinese troops against the Japanese, who are striking in from puppetized Thailand.

He did not explain his reference to American troops.

Maj. Gen. Lancelot Dennis, head of the British military mission in Chungking, said Chinese reënforcements are pouring into Burma.

"In accordance with the Chinese government's offer to assist in the defense of Burma large contingents of Chinese troops entered Burma some weeks ago and are now playing an important part in the defense of the country. Their numbers have recently been increased, and are being increased by fresh arrivals," the general said.

The latest army communique said the situation on the Salween river front remained unaltered.

Air activity over Rangoon, chief port of the Burma road over which the Chinese millions are armed, was light during daylight today, but during the dark early morning hours Japanese bombers subjected the city to its fourth consecutive and most destructive night raid of the war.

The Japanese concentrated on the airport north of Rangoon, where British and American planes are based, but an RAF communique said they did little damage and caused no casualties.

Japanese Bomb Martaban.

TOKIO, Feb. 8 [From Japanese Broadcasts] (AP).—Domei news agency reported tonight that Japanese planes raided Martaban, Burma's port at the mouth of the Salween river today, sinking two ships at the quayside and setting fire to military installations. Other bombers were said to have attacked trains and British troops north of Martaban.

Japanese headquarters said 12 out of 22 defending planes were shot down by Japanese raiders in four attacks on Mingalado airdrome.

Hundreds in Trenches on Besieged Isle.

[Official Correspondent with the Australian Imperial Force.]

WITH THE AIF ON SINGAPORE ISLAND, Feb. 8 [Australian Associated Press to Associated Press].—Hundreds of newly trained Chinese troops, enlisted here but under 12 leaders sent especially from Chungking, have taken up battle stations to help in the British defense of Singapore.

British and Australian troops gave their Chinese comrades a warm welcome when they took their places. The Chinese troopers are known as "Dalcoes."

Traffic on the island's roads has lessened considerably now that the troops have settled down. British and Australian provost troops [military police] have worked for days without sleep to control the huge troop movements around the island.

The Digging Never Stops.

Digging, wiring, and mining have been going on without a stop. Now the next move is left up to the Japanese.

It has been established that the Japanese are using balloons for observation. Artillery fire was seen about a mile high and they should have a short life.

Singapore's first week of siege passed swiftly and apart from air raids there was little outward indication in the city that a state of siege exists. Normal life is proceeding as far as possible between the alerts.

Make Food Shops Stay Open.

Food shops are compelled by law to trade for an aggregate time of seven hours daily and dealers are being urged by the food controler to carry on business except when enemy planes are near. An hour's grace which previously had been allowed dealers after the termination of an alert has been canceled.

Today's papers are full of government notices advising the public to grow vegetables, particularly those which grow fast, such as tapioca and sweet potatoes.

The water reserve is evidently satisfactory as no stringent restrictions have been imposed but the public is asked to use the water sparingly and all have responded well.

One large advertisment reads: "The Japanese may try to land small parties on this isle by sea or by parachutes at night. If this information is reported at once, it will be easy to round them up. Watch out for Japs in disguise. Report any suspicious strangers. Report parachutists immediately. Every minute counts."

DUTCH PREPARE FOR INVASION OF SUMATRA ISLAND

Strengthen Defenses to Save Oil.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BATAVIA, N. E. I., Feb. 7 [Delayed].—The Dutch island of Sumatra is expected to be the subject of an invasion attempt if the Japanese take Singapore.

From Sumatra also the allies hope to be able to launch an offensive to relieve besieged Singapore, or retake Malaya if Singapore falls.

Southern Sumatra is extremely important to the allies because of the presence of oil fields and refineries. Altho the Dutch destruction of Tarakan and Balik Papan prevented the Japanese from getting any oil, their occupation of these areas reduced supplies available to the allies, making them largely dependent on Sumatra.

Hope for Reënforcements.

If the Japanese take Singapore they will be in a position to offer a serious threat to southern Sumatra from island airdromes and harbors. Measures are being taken by the allies to strengthen Sumatra's defenses.

It is still hoped here that sufficient sea and air reënforcements will arrive to cut the Japanese lengthened lines of communications. The Dutch point out the battle of the Strait of Macassar as an example of what can be done when it is possible to concentrate sufficient striking force.

The Dutch, who are not overoptimistic in their statements, freely admit the situation is serious, but they are doing all possible with the forces at their disposal.

The Tribune correspondent, who has just returned from southern Java, was impressed by the national defense measures being taken, which seemed stronger than the steps taken in Malaya before the Japanese invasion there.

Build Their Own Tanks.

Heavy anti-tank traps have been constructed at strategical points, and a number of defense lines already have been laid out. The Javanese soldier, while untried in battle, looks like business, and the Dutch claim that the natives have done well in action in the outer provinces.

When calling upon motorists to halt at the barricades, the Javanese do not fool—they put their rifles to the shoulder, training them on the occupants of the car.

Unable to purchase armored cars and tanks abroad, altho they were ready to lay cash on the line, the Dutch have built their own, many of which are to be seen thruout the island.

DIES FOLLOWING FALL.

Philip Meisel, 76 years old, 2625 North Mozart street, died in Martha Washington hospital yesterday of injuries suffered earlier in the day in a fall in his home.

British Give Chinese Allies Gunboats They Left Behind

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The British river gunboats Falcon, Gannett and Sandpiper, left in China at the outbreak of the war with Japan, have been presented to the Chungking government "as a gesture of good will and a measure of assistance to our Chinese allies," the admiralty said tonight.

Lewes, Del., Feb. 8 (AP).—The daylight sinking of the American tanker China Arrow 100 miles off the eastern coast was disclosed today when the ship's entire crew of 37 was landed here.

Capt. Paul H. Browne.

The navy said the tanker—the 22d ship attacked and the 21st sunk by Axis U-boats along the Atlantic coast off the United States and Canada—was attacked by a surfaced submarine at 11:15 a. m. Thursday.

[It previously was announced the China Arrow was the 18th ship sunk in North American Atlantic waters. The figures subsequently were revised, however, on the basis of additional ships, all unidentified, which, it was reported, were sunk off Canada in recent weeks.]

Survivors of the China Arrow were picked up last night by a coast guard boat after their three lifeboats had drifted 20 miles shoreward. Four of the crew were injured.

Ship Torpedoed and Shelled.

Capt. Paul H. Browne, 46 years old, of New York City, the skipper of the tanker, said two torpedoes were fired without warning when the submarine was 500 feet from the ship. He said the torpedoes failed to sink the vessel immediately and that the submarine commander waited until the lifeboats were clear and then sank the ship with 15 or 20 shells from deck guns.

"I'll give the submarine crew credit for that," Capt. Browne said. "They did not touch the men in the lifeboats or speak to us. They just hung around until we were clear and then began shelling."

Kenneth W. Maynard, 20, of Bellingham, Wash., the tanker's radio operator, was working at a typewriter when the first torpedo struck.

Radio Antenna Blasted.

"It hit like a burst of flame," he said. "Flames shot up all over the middle of the ship. It blasted off the antenna.

"The captain and I tried to rig up a transmitter to send an SOS. We don't know whether it ever was received. When we left the boat the stern was not yet under. The sub let go with its shells when we were about 150 feet away."

Members of the crew who had been on night duty were asleep when the submarine attacked. They fled to the lifeboats in their pajamas.

GEN. E. L. SPEARS IS NAMED BRITISH ENVOY TO SYRIA

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The foreign office announced tonight the appointment of Maj. Gen. Sir Edward Louis Spears as British minister to Syria and Lebanon. He also will be a member of the middle east war council.

Maj. Gen. E. L. Spears.

Mary Borden, the writer, former Chicagoan, and daughter of the late William Borden, is the wife of Gen. Spears. He has visited Chicago a number of times with his wife.

Gen. Spears fought in the first World war and was wounded in action. He was head of the British military mission in Paris from 1917 to 1920 and later when he was a member of the British parliament he was chairman of the Anglo-French parliamentary committee. He holds the decorations of a number of European nations.

200 Chinese Drown When Boat Hits Rock and Sinks

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 8 (AP).—Two hundred Chinese were drowned near Ichang a few days ago when a Yangtze river steamer struck a rock and sank. Rescue craft saved 300.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY FREIDA ZYLSTRA.

THE QUESTION.

What was your first job for which you received wages, however small?

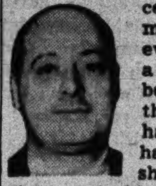
WHERE ASKED.

Arcade building, 6355 North Broadway.

THE ANSWERS.

Lucille Sykes, nurse, 6033 Winthrop avenue—When I was a student in the grade school one of the nuns sent me on a three mile errand. I had to deliver some very special holy water to a sick man. The man's wife paid me $1 for the job and I remember it looked like a lot of money.

Dr. A. C. Conarty, dentist, 5908 Magnolia avenue—I was paid only 10 cents for one of the most strenuous jobs I ever have done. I mowed a huge lawn for a neighbor and then clipped the edge. I worked so hard in the hot sun I had a nosebleed and she won a $10 prize for the best looking lawn.



Jack Wilson, postal clerk, 1412 Farwell avenue—My first paying job offered a bonus, besides a commission of about 27 cents a week. I sold bluing from door to door and if at the end of the month my sales were high enough I'd get a model airplane. I won the plane, but it never flew.

C. A. Carlson, postal supervisor, 1633 Hollywood avenue—Ben Franklin and I both started out in somewhat the same manner only I was paid. I worked in a color printing shop after I finished high school. It was the first money I made—$4 a week, and it looked pretty good.

Mrs. Fred H. Janssen, housewife, 1234 Loyola avenue—During my summer vacation from high school I had a job counting silver in a very elegant restaurant. I don't remember what my salary was, but that taste of financial independence pushed me on to bigger and better jobs.

W. H. Horr, retired, 3317 Charlotte street, Kansas City, Mo.—When I was 8 years old a neighbor employed me to guide him in rounding up pigs that had strayed on our farm. I rode in front of him on his horse. He paid me two nickels, which seemed twice as much as a dime.

SHIP WRECKED OFF NOVA SCOTIA; SAVE CREW OF 25

AN EAST CANADIAN PORT, Feb. 8 (AP).—Twenty-five members of the crew of a ship that struck a submerged object last night off the Nova Scotia coast arrived here late today.

Details of what befell the ship were lacking but it was believed the vessel would be a total loss. An officer among the crewmen said they had been advised by Canadian naval authorities to say nothing.

The 25 rescued by fishermen comprised the full crew of the vessel, reported to have been en route overseas. The ship's identity was not disclosed.

CHICAGOANS TELL OF SHIP'S ESCAPE FROM THREE SUBS

Scared, Angry, Thrilled as Plane Routed U-Boats.

The happy ending to a drama of the sea came yesterday when William Tobin III., 27 years old, and his family stepped over the threshold at 123 North Lavergne avenue—the home of Tobin's father, a policeman assigned to the Warren avenue station.

On Feb. 1, young Tobin, a field architect, his pretty wife, Mary Lou, 24, and their son, Billy, 4, boarded the S. S. Coamo, a passenger ship, in San Juan, Puerto Rico, at 7:30 in the morning.

As dusk was falling over the Atlantic, the ship's lookout spotted three enemy submarines coming to the surface within striking distance of the Caomo and its 200 passengers.

Scared, but Also Angry.

"We were scared plenty," Tobin related yesterday, "but angry too. There wasn't any panic among the passengers and the crew—particularly Capt. Nels Helgesen—was superb."

Capt. Helgesen threw the Coamo into a series of maneuvers designed to prevent the submarine from getting a broadside shot at his ship.

"We stood at the ship's rail ready to jump into the lifeboats," Tobin continued. "It was only a moment or two but it seemed like a year."

"I could only see one of the subs," Mrs. Tobin interrupted, "but I was sick at the thought of that little gray thing in the water being able to torpedo us without Bill getting a chance to fight back.

"Then I heard Bill say 'A plane. Thank God, it's a plane. Now watch those rats run!' And almost before we knew it there was nothing but a light trail of blue smoke over the water to show where the sub had been."

Praise for the Captain.

Tobin said Capt. Helgesen headed the Coamo at her full speed of 18 knots directly over one of the submarines but it had submerged deep enough to escape.

"That plane—bless its heart!—circled over us until after dark," he continued. "I've only seen one other sight as good as the red, white, and blue circles on its wings. That was last Thursday when I looked at Mary Lou and Billy safe beside me and the Statue of Liberty loomed up ahead of us."

Thruout the four days and nights of the rest of the trip after the attack, Capt. Helgesen never left the bridge. He collapsed of exhaustion, Tobin said, when the ship reached New York harbor.

Next week Tobin, leaving his wife and child behind, will sail for Pearl Harbor, Honolulu.

BRITISH DISCLOSE SINKING OF 1,870 TON DESTROYER

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—The 1,870 ton destroyer Matabele has been sunk, the admiralty announced tonight. It carried a normal complement of 190 men and cost about $1,800,000. Commander A. C. Stanford was master of the warship.

The air ministry announced that "in the course of searches for enemy shipping by aircraft of the coastal command today, a supply vessel was found and bombed off the Norwegian coast. Two aircraft are missing."

Nazis Claim 5 Planes Downed.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—German fighter squadrons shot down five British bombers over the Heligoland yesterday without losing a single plane, the Nazi high command reported today.

Batavia, Java, Feb. 8 (AP).—A new batch of 45 American evacuees arrived in Batavia today after an adventurous voyage of more than five weeks from Singapore, normally a sea trip of only 532 miles.

Their convoy, which was halted for some days in a port to load rubber, was spotted by Japanese planes which attacked repeatedly.

Japanese Troops Promised Cherry Blooms for Graves

TOKIO, Feb. 9 [Monday] [From Japanese Broadcasts] (AP).—The world famed Japanese cherry blossom will soon be blooming in various parts of greater East Asia. The metropolitan newspaper Miyako announced today that it intends to contribute cherry trees to the army and navy to be planted around monuments for Japanese soldiers fallen in the Pacific conflict.

AXIS DRIVE THRU LIBYA STOPPED, BRITISH DECLARE

Cling to Points 40 Miles West of Tobruk.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 8 (AP).—Sun-baked British troops stopped the axis drive across Libya in its tracks at the distant approaches of Tobruk today and swept unopposed thru a wide area west of Ain el Gazala.

Further, the British asserted that axis-claimed Ain el Gazala, 40 miles west of Tobruk, was still in British hands and that they were holding a "series of points" around that sand-swept coastal point.

It appeared that at long last, the African corps of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel were faced with the main British forces, altho no large scale battle has yet been joined.

The halt in Rommel's eastward sweep to within 150 miles of the Egyptian frontier indicated he might be having trouble with communications, which the British have constantly battered since the axis counterattack was launched from El Aghelia on Jan. 22.

Continue Persistent Attacks.

All along the Cirenaica coast and in the Gebel El Achdar mountain region, British bombers and fighter planes continued their persistent attacks.

To the west and southwest of Ain el Gazala, British mobile land columns were supported by bombers and fighters and nowhere did they encounter important bodies of axis troops.

The British spoke of the sweep as "protective," indicating they expected to make a firm stand before Tobruk, where a seven months siege was lifted in December. There was no hint that the British themselves might be preparing a large scale counterattack in the prolonged see-saw battle for Premier Mussolini's last African possession.

The British, maintaining complete air supremacy, inflicted "extensive damage" on enemy columns moving toward the battlefront between Slonta and Martuba and in the El Tmimi region.

RAF bombers swept on to Agedabia, the first important point captured by Rommel's men in their current drive, and attacked motorized units. Heavy clouds obscured the results. Four British planes were lost.

Torpedo 2 Supply Ships.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—British naval planes torpedoed two fully loaded axis supply ships in the central Mediterranean Friday night, the air ministry news service announced tonight.

The news service said pilots who carried out this attack had accounted for two large axis supply ships in a previous assault, but failed to say whether all were in the same convoy.

In the Friday night attack, the pilots said two torpedoes struck one ship and that fire broke out aboard the second when it was hit. Both had destroyer escorts.

Claim Axis Aerial Successes.

ROME, Feb. 8 [From Italian Broadcasts] (AP).—The axis claimed aerial successes over the British in the Mediterranean area today, including the smashing of land columns in eastern Libya and a new heavy day and night pounding of Malta in which, it was asserted, a submarine was sunk and a cruiser hit.

British raids on Sirte, in North Africa, and on an Italian convoy by torpedo carrying planes were declared to have been ineffective.

German planes were credited with having "intensively bombed and machine gunned concentrations, motor vehicles, and various depots in the area of Tobruk, Bardia, and Matruh."

Berlin said that "the British in their hurried retreat from Bengazi and Derna left behind 1,220 vehicles of every kind. These vehicles are nearly the entire outfit of one whole British division.

SIEGFRIED LINE BUILDER KILLED IN AIR ACCIDENT

Gen. Todt High in Counsels of Adolf Hitler.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—Maj. Gen. Fritz Todt, German engineer who built the Siegfried line and directed the manufacture of German munitions, was killed in an air accident today.

Gen. Fritz Todt.

Todt, 51 years old, had been one of the closest collaborators of Adolf Hitler for 20 years—the Fuehrer's "No. 1 builder" and munitions minister.

Early in the Nazi régime he was commissioned to build the famous system of super highways [autobahnen] which crisscrossed Germany and which proved of great importance in Germany's plan for motorized warfare.

A few months before the outbreak of the war in 1939 he was assigned to build the Siegfried line, or west wall, facing France and the Low Countries. Thousands of workers labored day and night building the labyrinth of fortifications.

Works Close Behind Army.

With the outbreak of the war he headed the large corps of construction workers who moved up close behind the armies to rebuild the roads and bridges which the high command needed to transport supplies for its drive thru France.

In the war against Russia his corps had been given a similar task. In March, 1940, he was made minister of munitions.

The official announcement of his death said:

"In fulfillment of his military duty Reichs Minister Dr. Todt was killed in an air accident when carrying thru his military tasks in the east. The Fuehrer ordered a state funeral for Dr. Todt."

[His sudden death follows the equally sudden removal, by death or demotion, of several leading German generals who likewise had major rôles in the Nazi operations in Russia. Dr. Todt had survived many of his contemporaries thru Nazidom's successive purges.]

IN FIRST WORLD WAR.

Todt came from Pformzheim, Baden. He specialized in studies of road building at Munich and Karlsruhe technical schools, and received the degree of doctor of engineering.

During the first World war he served with the field artillery on the western front from the beginning to the end of hostilities. He was wounded while acting as an aerial observer in a dogfight over the Toul-Verdun sector in August, 1918.

Todt had been a leading Nazi since 1922. In his post-World war years he served as chief engineer for German road construction firms, and when Hitler came to power he became the nation's first great road builder.

Dr. Todt had high party rank and in 1939 was made a major general in the air force in recognition of his having created the so called "air defense, zone west." His road construction in 1938 won him the German substitute for the Nobel prize.

ASSERTS GREAT POWERS OF F.D.R. DELAY ARMING

Report Cites Reluctance to Give Up Authority.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—A study of "Presidential Powers and National Emergency" made public tonight by the American Council on Public Affairs declared the concentration of powers in President Roosevelt's hands during the defense emergency has handicapped the armament program.

"Altho specific authority originally delegated to the President by congress has been subdelegated to various agencies, ultimate control resides in the hands of the commander in chief," the report said. "His reluctance to relinquish authority and place more responsibility upon his lieutenants resulted in such a wide span of control as to jeopardize effort."

Result of Year's Study.

The study was made for the council, a private research organization, by Dr. Albert Lee Sturm, University of Michigan faculty member who conducted a year's research here under a coöperative fellowship of Duke university and Brookings institution.

"Threats of economic disaster during the early years of the Roosevelt administration prompted the passage of legislation by congress vesting broad powers in the President," the study said.

"The outbreak of war in Europe in 1939 resulted in the delegation of additional power to the executive for the purpose of strengthening national defense.

"Greatest Power" Granted.

"These grants, supplemented by constitutional authority and previous delegations to the President, placed more power in the hands of Franklin Delano Roosevelt than has ever been possessed by any of his predecessors in time of peace."

Dr. Sturm distinguished between what he termed "constitutional dictatorship" and the methods of contemporary European dictators but held that "a long period of absolutism would tend to cause the formation of new habits and render restoration of constitutional government more difficult."

FLOOD IN ILLINOIS RIVER VALLEY HITS 26 YEAR HIGH MARK

Peru, Ill., Feb. 8 (AP).—Turbulent waters of the Illinois river rose here today to the highest level in 26 years, flooding lowlands along more than 100 miles of the stream above and below Peru.

River gauges here passed the 22 foot mark, a rise of four feet in 24 hours and more than 16 feet since Friday's downpour. The water appeared to be nearing its crest, climbing only a few inches between five and nine o'clock tonight.

At Starved Rock state park picnic grounds and parking areas were under water. Several scores of families between Peru and Joliet were reported to have moved to higher ground. Three highway bridges in the Peru-La Salle area were closed.

REDS CLAIM HARD BLOWS DEALT TO NAZIS' ARTILLERY

Slash Into German Ring Near Leningrad.

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (AP).—Severely rationed on shells and hampered by loss of guns, German artillery has been almost canceled out as an important factor in the snow drifts of Russia, and the Red army continues to advance after meeting fresh reserves and smashing repeated counterattacks, soviet war dispatches said today.

Heavy fighting was reported in virtually all sectors, but the heaviest action was northwest of Moscow beyond Kalinin and in the south in the Donetz basin. Scores of populated places were liberated and one big unnamed center outflanked.

On the Leningrad front, Red army cavalry slashed a deep hole in the German ring and destroyed communications.

[The British radio said the Russian forces had launched a vigorous new drive near Leningrad with forces strengthened by reserves and the heaviest tanks. Rapid penetration by the cavalry was followed up by infantry and artillery and the "gap in the German ring keeps widening," the broadcast said.]

News pictures showed sizeable Red army units operating beyond the Volkhov river to the rear of the Germans.

New Offensive in South.

The Red army was said to be launching a new offensive in the south with the support of many planes. Eight populated places were reoccupied in the southern sector and a score of places released from their German garrisons on a central sector.

Southwest of Kharkov in the Ukraine a Rumanian ski detachment was reported destroyed.

From this front Col. G. Nadysev wrote that German artillery had become miserable in its functioning and no longer was a vital factor. Where a division formerly included two artillery regiments it now has only one, he said, and the number of big guns in a regiment has been reduced from 60 to 48.

To add to their difficulties, he said, the Germans are forced to send an artillery unit first to one sector and then to another, but they are handicapped by drifted roads and lack of gasoline for the tractors that draw the guns.

Nazis Publish a Map.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—The German command told today of "considerable enemy superiority" in continuing "heavy defensive battles," on the Russian front, but the Nazis were declared to have been successful.

Altho great battles continued in the east, the German press has indicated that the Germans may now believe their front to have proved its stability against gigantic Red army assaults. This inference was drawn from the fact that for the first time in weeks the press last night published a new map showing the present state of fighting.

Sectors of the Front.

The map shows that the fighting area in the northern sector of the eastern front extends from Leningrad and Schluesselburg to the north of Lake Ilmen and thence farther thru the area of Valdai hills to Rzhev.

In the central sector the borders of German-held territory are far to the east of Vyazma, which is 140 mile west of Moscow. They reach the Oka river to the north of Orel, then continue to the east of Orel and Kursk to the upper Donetz river.

In the southern sector the border line extends to the east of Kharkov and reaches the Donetz river southeast of Kharkov. Then it runs to the north and east of Taganrog, farther down to the Sea of Azov.

RUSSIA MEETS ALL OIL NEEDS, SAYS COMMISSAR

MOSCOW, Feb. 8 (AP).—Ivan Sedin, commissar of the oil industry, said today the industry met all 1941 requirements for production and would continue to grow even under war conditions.

Writing in the party newspaper Pravda, Sedin said improvements in refining processes are making it possible to obtain high octane gasoline for aircraft out of practically every sort of petroleum. The production of lubricating oils will be doubled in 1942, he declared.

Oil production in 1941 in the "second Baku" region between the Volga and Urals in Central Asia, out of reach of the Germans, topped 1940 by 11.3 per cent, he said. Emphasis this year will be on development of the vast resources of the Ural fields.

Italian King Tours Cities Raided by British Planes

ROME, Feb. 8 [ANDI Agency to Associated Press]. — King Victor Emanuel spent last week touring Italy's southern provinces, including cities which have been targets of British raids. Taranto, Brindisi, Crotone and Lecce were among the places he visited. The king was said to have traveled in an open touring car despite his advanced age and cold weather.

Friend of the Yanks

[The Friend of the Yanks department will answer draft and military service questions, both in the daily columns and personally if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are sent with the query.]

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

A young man who signs himself "Not a Slacker" writes:

"What is done with conscientious objectors to military service? How do their draft boards handle them? Will you explain it all to me?"

The selective service act provides that "any person . . . who by reason of religious training and belief is conscientiously opposed to participation in war in any form" shall not be subject to military service. However, the burden of proof of the legitimacy of his objection rests upon the objector—and that proof must be positive and definite before he is considered for deferment. For instance, the case of Mr. H.:

The proving process starts when Mr. H. receives his draft questionnaire. In the questionnaire, he is required to state whether he is opposed only to combatant military service, or whether he is opposed to both combatant and noncombatant service.

Fills Out Objector's Form.

Upon receipt of the questionnaire, Mr. H.'s local board requires him to fill out a separate conscientious objector's form. The questions in this form determine Mr. H.'s religious beliefs, where he received his religious training, the actions in his life which demonstrate these convictions, whether he has ever received military training, etc. References are required, also the names of all Mr. H.'s former employers.

Before turning to this form, Mr. H.'s local board first decides whether he is eligible for deferment on other grounds—disability, dependancy, occupation, etc. If so, he is deferred on these grounds. Let us suppose, however, that he is not.

Then the local board delves into the special questionnaire, and the board members decide whether he is a legitimate objector. If they decide not, Mr. H. has the right of appeal. If his appeal is denied, he must go into the army when called. If they decide that he is, the classification process continues.

Where He May Go.

If Mr. H. is opposed only to combatant service, and is physically fit for general duty, he is placed in class 1-A-O, and drafted for duty, possibly as a hospital orderly, cook, or something of the sort. If he is fit only for limited service, he is placed in class 1-B-O.

If Mr. H. is physically fit for general service, but opposed to both combatant and noncombatant service, he is put in 4-E. If fit only for limited service, his class if 4-E-LS. Four-E men are reported to state draft headquarters, from which they are assigned to conscientious objector work camps for forestry and other constructive work.

[Tomorrow: United States Coast Guard.]

QUESTIONS.

Mrs. G. H. writes: "I saw a soldier the other day with some sort of braided cord hanging from his right shoulder. What did this cord signify?"

Answer: What you probably saw was a fourragere [foo-ra-zhar], a decoration awarded by France to a body of troops, and consisting of a braided and knotted cord, either green with scarlet threads or yellow with green threads.

H. R. B. writes: "Do you have any information concerning the National Rehabilitation program by which men disqualified for military service for physical reasons will be put in shape to fight?"

Answer: Such a program is now being considered, but nothing definite has yet been announced. Action is expected shortly, however, from national selective service headquarters in Washington, D. C.

D. D. asks: "Would I be able to take examination for army air corps aviation cadet with my glasses on? My eyes are 20/20, or normal, with them on."

Answer: No, you would have to have a minimum of 20/20 vision in each eye without glasses in order to pass the sight test.

MOVIES DECLARED 'ESSENTIAL' FIELD IN DRAFT RULING

Deferment of Skilled Workers Approved.

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of selective service, has ruled that the motion picture industry is an essential activity and has advised California draft headquarters to apply this ruling if Hollywood studios seek deferment for men who cannot be replaced.

The war activities committee of the motion picture industry announced today that Hershey had outlined the policy in a letter to Lowell Mellett, coördinator of government films and liaison officer of the federal government with the film industry.

Held Essential to "Safety."

The ruling said the movies are essential in "certain instances to the national health, safety, and interest and in other instances to war production."

Hershey's office added that "the responsibility of making and presenting claims for deferment is upon the motion picture industry and the determination of necessary men is one for the local boards and appeal agencies."

Hershey acted after Mellett wrote him:

"As a war activity I believe the industry is essential to the production of training and instruction films for the armed services, as well as educational and informational films for the civilian population.

Skilled Workers Cited.

"In performing these functions the industry requires the services of actors, directors, writers, producers, cameramen, sound engineers, and other technicians. In each category there are, or will be from time to time, men who cannot be replaced because of the shortage of persons of their qualifications and skill and whose removal would cause a serious loss of effectiveness."

Commenting on the certification, George J. Schaefer, chairman of the war activities committee, said: "The motion picture industry would not think of asking blanket deferments, but this ruling does give us the right to apply for the retention of the services of indispensable individuals from time to time. In my opinion, deferment will be sought only for a negligible number of persons engaged in motion picture production."

Banned Nazi Group Still Exists, Uruguay Is Told

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 8 (AP).—Judge Julio Cesar de Gregorio announced his conclusion today, after a study of evidence collected by congressional investigators, that the outlawed German National Socialist [Nazi] party still exists under a different name, the Federation of German Societies. The party was ordered dissolved in 1940.

PICK OUT SHIRTS; ROB CLOTHIER.

One of two men who entered Simon Kletnick's dry goods store at 1808 West Lake street yesterday selected a shirt and told Kletnick he would take three more like it. As Kletnick reached for the shirts the man drew a gun and his companion struck the merchant on the head. They took the shirts and $95 from the cash register and departed.

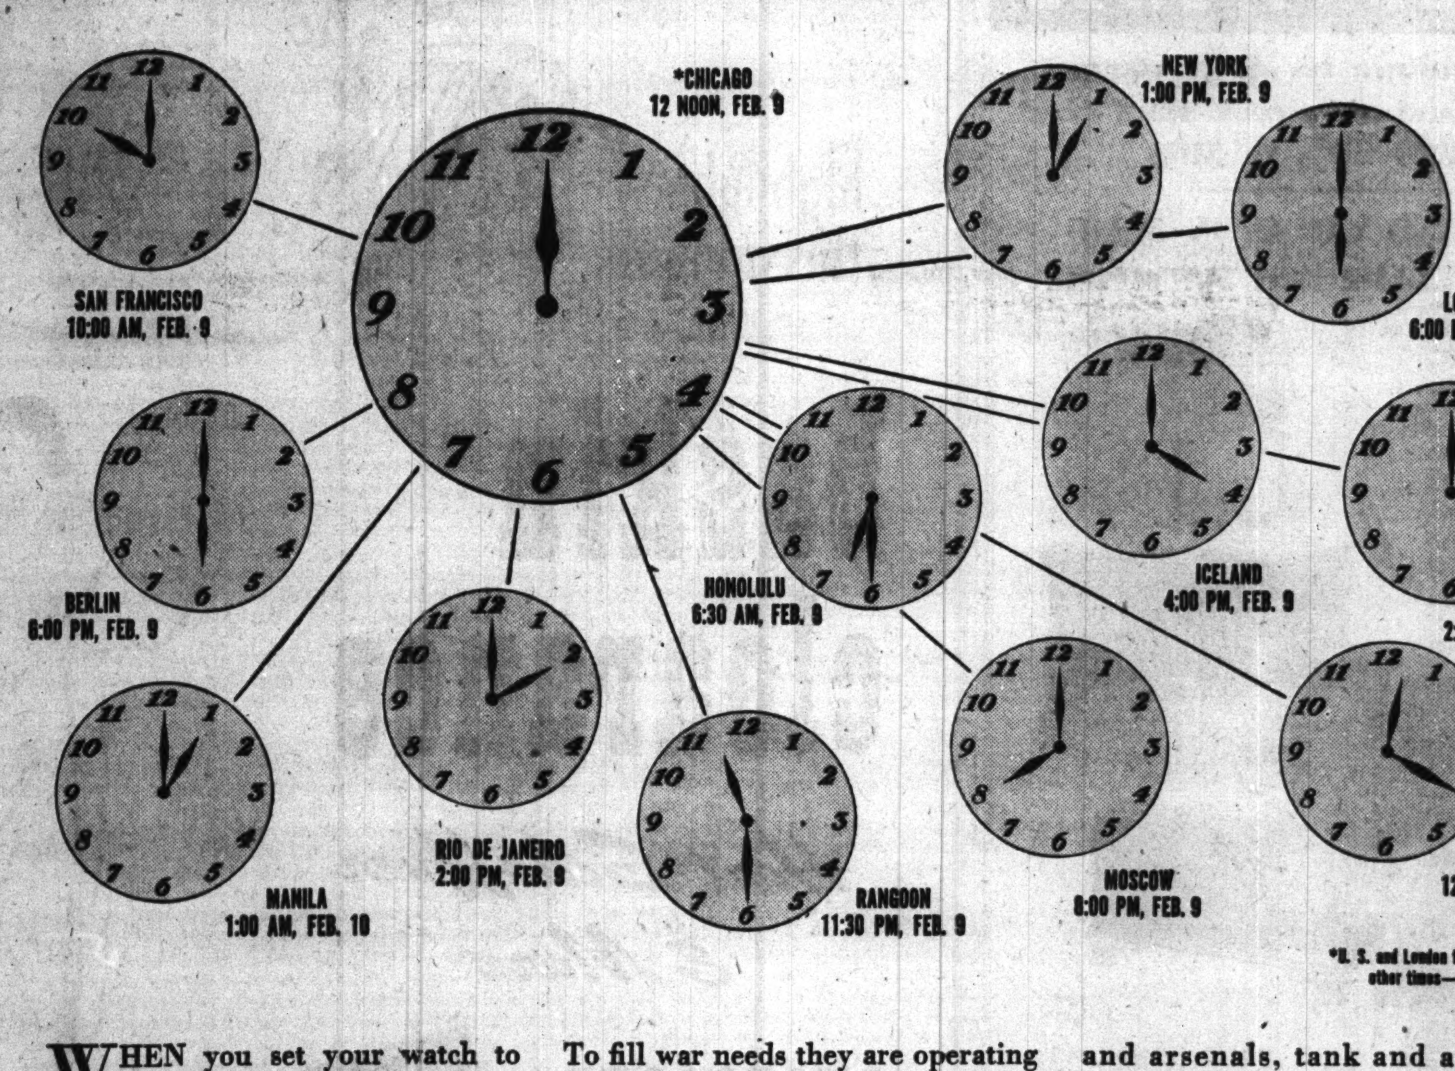
"WAR TIME"—Today!



*U. S. and London times—"war time," other times—Greenwich time.

WHEN you set your watch to "war time" this morning, you were taking part in one of our nation's most important war efforts . . . saving time.

On the Bataan Peninsula, at Singapore, in Borneo—they know how precious is this time. They're buying it with blood, to give us the hours, the days, the weeks we need to build the vast equipment of war.

Today an hour's measure is eight more fighting planes, four more tanks, a thousand tons of ships. Tomorrow it will be greater. And as each hour produces more, its saving becomes more essential.

In this war, men, mail and materials must fly to save time. Compared with the travel speed of the last war, the airlines have shrunk the United States to the size of Pennsylvania.

To fill war needs they are operating at highest efficiency, with ample supplies of spare parts and replacements, and full complements of experienced operating personnel.

You can save hours, even days, by using United Air Lines' short, direct route across the continent. It brings you within hours of the nation's factories and farms, shipyards and arsenals, tank and aircraft assembly lines.

From the days of the pony express and the first transcontinental railroad—built to serve in an earlier war—this has been the business route of the nation. Over it, United's Mainliners span the continent in a night, to help you save time and serve your country better.

TELL PEACE AIMS NOW, ALLIES ARE URGED BY CRIPPS

Declares Victory Can Be Won in Year.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Sir Stafford Cripps, recently resigned ambassador to Russia, called today for a clear, immediate enunciation of peace aims as necessary for intensifying the war effort against Germany.

Sir Stafford Cripps.

In his first speech since returning from Moscow he declared at Bristol: "Either we are in partnership with Russia in the reconstruction of Europe, or we again plunge the world into chaos."

Certain of Victory.

Germany can be defeated by this time next year, Cripps said, warning, however, that Great Britain and the United States must do their utmost because Russia would be unable to do the job alone.

Contending that Adolf Hitler was psychologically right when he announced a new order for Europe, tho it was the wrong type of new order, Cripps said that the allies must themselves explain to the peoples of Europe what the allied victory means to them.

"It is better to be moderately practical than hopelessly idealistic," he continued. "Great Britain, the United States and Russia should take the lead in postwar reconstruction.

"Millions of people here and thruout the world are asking what we are fighting for positively, or, will the result of the war be worth while?"

The greatest contribution to the war effort necessitates a precise answer to this question, he insisted, adding, "the more attractive the picture is in practical terms to people of the world, the sooner comes the victory."

Scolds the British.

Declaring that he had found a "lack of urgency" in the atmosphere in Britain as compared with the total effort of Russia, Cripps said it is especially important now for the allies to help Russia prepare against the German spring offensive which, if successful, might mean victory for the axis powers.

In a broadcast later in the evening, he contrasted the hardships which the Russians are experiencing with the "comparative safety and comfort" of the British.

Russian industry, he said, has been turned over "practically 100 per cent to war work and nothing else . . . food is most simple and elementary . . . clothing is practically a monopoly for the armed forces," but the people accept the sacrifices, he said, because they know they are necessary to ultimate victory.

"Hoarders Given Short Shrift."

"Hoarders of food, black-marketeers and other saboteurs who try to take advantage of difficult conditions are given short shrift" in Russia, he stated, and "it is difficult for the Russians to understand the tolerance which is shown in this country for fifth columnists."

In appealing to the people to make further sacrifices toward the war effort and aid Russia, Cripps pointed out that Hitler's attack on Russia at least "will relieve this country from the threat of invasion."

Cripps said that as he was leaving Russia Michael Kalinin, president of the soviet, stressed the dangers of overconfidence and made it clear that the notion Britain "can leave the Russians to defeat Germany alone is absolutely false." For this reason it is not only necessary for the allies to continue to give aid to Russia at the present rate, but to increase such aid, Cripps said.

MIDWEST ALIENS TOLD THEY MUST ENROLL BY WOLL

J. Albert Woll, United States attorney, yesterday warned all Japanese, German, and Italian aliens in the midwest who are 14 years old or older that they must apply for certificates of registration. Woll issued the warning in a speech over W-G-N.

Applications for certificates may be made from today to Feb. 28 at any first or second class county seat postoffice. In Chicago applications will be accepted at the main postoffice, the old postoffice annex, or at eight branch offices, 830 North Clark street, 4850 Broadway, 3750 North Kedzie avenue, 2419 Monroe street, 1859 South Ashland avenue, 4101 South Halsted street, 2938 East 92d street, and 2302 South Pulaski road.

Aliens who fail to comply with the registration order face internment.

TANGIER RIOTING HALTED; CITY IN STATE OF SIEGE

Fatal Bombing Probed by Spanish Officials.

TANGIER, Spanish Morocco, Feb. 8 (AP).—This city was calm tonight under a state of war proclaimed by authorities to put an end to native disturbances following Friday's death dealing time bomb blast in a taxi loaded with British diplomatic baggage.

[Altho the dispatch used the phrase "state of war," it is probable that, more appropriately, the situation ordered at Tangier is a state of emergency or siege under martial law.]

Fourteen persons were killed and 36 were wounded when the blast shattered the taxi on a crowded pier.

Thousands in Demonstration.

Thousands of natives paraded past several foreign missions and government houses, carrying banners saying, "Tangier is not at war!"

The Spanish high commissioner's delegate in Tangier ordered an immediate investigation into the cause of the explosion and addressed demonstrators from a balcony of Government house, trying to pacify them.

Physicians reported that many of the injured victims of the blast were still in serious condition. The explosion was so violent that it destroyed two automobiles besides the taxi. Part of the dock and customs house were wrecked.

The blast came at 5 p. m., Friday, while scores of persons, some of whom had come from Gibraltar on the mail boat, were on the pier along with others waiting for the arrival of the mail boat from Algeciras, Spain. The Algeciras boat had just entered the harbor.

British Blame Axis.

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—Informed quarters said today that altho only slight information had been received in London on the Tangier bomb explosion there was little doubt but that it was instigated by axis agents.

Reports reaching here said the demonstrations which followed the explosion during which the British consulate and business houses were stoned were prearranged, with some of the demonstrating Arabs appearing on the scene with baskets of stones.

London sources said the demonstration was significant in view of recent reports that axis agents were redoubling their efforts to stir unrest among Moslems thruout North Africa and the Levant and in view of the appearance of Rashid Ali Al Gailani, former Iraq premier, and the rebellious grand mufti of Jerusalem in Rome, possibly en route to Africa.

Move Against British Seen.

One source said the bomb probably was intended to explode after reaching the British legation. This source said the riots probably were organized to shift onto the British the resentment caused by the blast.

Approximately 2,000 persons, mostly Arabs, swarmed thru the street, stoning British buildings and destroying two automobiles at the British consulate, British dispatches from Tangier said.

One observer said there was a close resemblance to the organized rioting against Britain and Russia which occurred in Madrid and other Spanish cities last June.

Germans Blame British.

BERLIN, Feb. 8 [From German Broadcasts] (AP).—The explosion in Tangier which occurred in British diplomatic luggage is featured on the front pages of all German Monday papers and called a new British crime against Spain.

The Berliner Lokalanzeiger writes, "It is recalled in this connection in a big hotel in Istanbul a bomb exploded some time ago in the luggage of a British diplomat coming from a Balkan country. The British 'diplomat' had carried in his luggage bombs and infernal machines meant to be used in the Balkans.

"Great Britain with attacks on German and Italian ships in the Spanish port of Fernando Po, and with constant threats against Spain has initiated a policy toward a neutral country reminding one very much of the attitude taken by Britain at the time of the Spanish civil war."

French on Guard.

RABAT, French Morocco, Feb. 8 (AP).—Extraordinary police measures were taken today thruout this French protectorate with reserves called out particularly to prevent "night attacks."

The measures were announced following the bomb incident of Tangier.

DARLAN REFUSES NAZIS' DEMAND FOR VICHY FLEET

LONDON, Feb. 8 (AP).—Grand Adm. Erich Raeder recently had a secret three hour interview with Adm. Darlan "in an attempt to gain full use of the French fleet" for Germany, but Darlan "reiterated Petain's refusal," the Daily Mail reported in a dispatch from its Madrid correspondent today.

The meeting occurred in a small provincial French town while Raeder was inspecting German bases on the coast, the correspondent said.

CCC TO COMPETE WITH ARMY FOR 10,000 RECRUITS

Jobless Single Youths, 17 to 19, Sought.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8.—Despite the great need of the armed forces for men, the Civilian Conservation corps plans to continue recruiting young men for its "youth-aid" camps at pay higher than the army and navy and already has designated a new enrollment period between Feb. 10 and 25, it was learned today.

This period for CCC recruiting will coincide with the new draft registration on Feb. 14, 15, and 16. CCC enrollees must be between the ages of 17 and 23 years, unmarried and jobless. These qualifications would be acceptable to recruiting in the armed forces. The navy's recruiting age begins at 17 and the army's at 18. The minimum draft age, effective with the new registration, is 20 years.

Needed for West Coast.

Charles H. Taylor, assistant director of the CCC, estimated today that the number of new enrollees in the CCC this month will probably run between 10,000 and 12,000. He explained that the new men are needed to fill up west coast camps for "high grade protection of forests, to establish safeguards against incendiary bombing and sabotage."

He declared that this continued recruiting would not interfere with the draft because the CCC enrollees of draft age are subject to call into the armed forces. However, most of the CCC youths are 17, 18, and 19 years of age, the ages which the army and navy desire for early training.

Working against the army and navy recruiting services is the attractive pay of CCC recruits who receive more than the starting pay for soldiers and sailors. A CCC enrollee is allowed $30 a month, of which $8 is paid to him in cash, $15 is sent to his parents or other dependents, and $7 is saved until his enrollment, which can run from six months to two years, expires. If he has no dependents $22 a month is saved for him.

Army Starts at $21.

The starting pay in the army is $21 a month and after four months' training a soldier can rise to a private first class at $33 a month. A CCC assistant leader gets $36, the same as an army corporal, and a leader makes $45, the same as an army sergeant.

A young man enlisting in the navy is paid $21 a month for the first four months as an apprentice seaman. If he makes the grade after training during that four months he becomes a seasman second class or fireman third class at $36. If he fails to advance he gets the pay of a seaman third class, or $30 a month.

Statistics made available in the CCC's annual report for the fiscal year ended last June 30, released tonight, showed that more than 51 per cent of the total enrollment between last February and April were 17 years of age and about 42 per cent were between 18 and 20 years.

Few Entered Services.

Enrollment records were broken last year with the CCC taking in 342,101. A total of 391,919 men were discharged during the fiscal year of which comparatively few went into the armed forces.

Of the total discharged, the report showed that only 14,291 enlisted or were drafted for the army, navy, marine corps, or coast guard.

The enrollment slated for this month makes the second month since Pearl Harbor that the CCC has planned a heavy enrollment. Between 10,000 and 15,000 were taken into camps during January. None were taken in December because the war department did not wish to interfere with troop movements and other extraordinary burdens on the transportation system.

Deny Corps Is Essential.

Members of congress, agreeing with the recommendation of the Byrd committee on nonessential federal expenditures that the CCC be abolished outright, scoff at the official claims that the CCC is needed as part of the war effort.

Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt announced the other day that the CCC will concentrate on "war projects" and "conservation of natural resources" such as fire fighting, in the future. There are about 800 camps at present and these are to be reduced to 600 to make way for military forces. Members of congress still protest that the CCC is just another "parasitic enterprise."

Rep. John Taber [R., N. Y.], ranking minority member of the house appropriations committee and a member of the Byrd committee, denounced McNutt's statement as a "shameless effort to deceive the American people and a national scandal.

"Scandalous," Taber Says.

"McNutt's quick dodge to cloak the CCC in a garment of military necessity doesn't fool anybody," said Taber, who is also leading the fight on the "parasites in the OCD" [Office of Civilian Defense, which some capital wags are now calling the "Office of Clowns and Dancers"].

"The proposal to keep this program going in the face of the nation's grave need of farm labor and war workers is scandalous—simply scandalous," Taber added.

CCC officials estimate that the average enrollment in the corps will be maintained at between 90,000 and 100,000. Even the force of 90,000 men would equal approximately four army square divisions or six triangular divisions at war strength. It would be 3½ times the number of men that the British had at Crete.

STEPHEN A. DAY FILES TODAY FOR CONGRESS SEAT

Asks for Renomination on Win War Program.

Stephen A. Day, congressman at large, announced yesterday that at Springfield this morning he will file his petition for renomination in the Republican state primary on April 14. The other congressman at large, William G. Stratton, has filed for state treasurer. Day said he will run on a win the war platform.

Rep. Stephen A. Day.

"We must win for the preservation of the United States," he said. "This is no longer a foreign war. To that end I have pledged my whole devotion and my every energy just as I pledged myself to oppose our entry into the war before I was elected to congress. I kept that pledge. I have voted for every measure calling for a vigorous prosecution of the war and for complete national defense.

Defends Two Party System.

"We all insist on national unity in time of war. But political unity in this country means the death of the two party system upon which our whole constitutional form of government is based. We need a patriotic and constructive party of exposition in the senate and house of representatives.

"Since I took my oath of office I have voted for every appropriation and every measure for the defense of our country. The attack on Pearl Harbor constituted an actual invasion of the territory of the United States. Japan, Germany, and Italy have declared war on us and, together with the entire congress, I voted to declare a state of war with our enemies."

Brooks Speaks Tonight.

In Chicago tonight Sen. Wayland Brooks is scheduled to make his first address since announcing his candidacy for renomination. With Gov. Green he will address a Lincoln day dinner in the Hotel Sherman under auspices of the Republican state central committee.

Mayor Kelly, who was en route to Washington last Thursday when the Democratic county organization indorsed Congressman Raymond S. McKeough [2d] for United States senator, returned yesterday. He said he was highly pleased with the selection and that the choice of McKeough was praised in Democratic circles in the national capital.

BICYCLIST SNATCHES GIRL'S PURSE.

As two boys on bicycles raced past Patsy Jordan, 14 years old, 6215 Green street, as she was walking at 72d street and Harvard avenue Saturday night, one snatched her purse, which contained 50 cents.

NYA SUPERVISOR HELD FOR MURDER IN DEATH OF GIRL

Arkadelphia, Ark., Feb. 8 [Special].—Julius Kirby Jones, 37 years old, a supervisor for the National Youth administration, was arrested on a murder charge here today after the recovery of the chainbound body of Mary Bell Furlow, 19, a NYA bookkeeper, from the Ouachita river near Calion, Ark.

Miss Furlow, a resident of Ashdown, Ark., had been working in the NYA office at Arkadelphia since last December. She disappeared last Sunday. The body was bound with two heavy log chains and apparently had been thrown into the river.

Jones was taken into custody after questioning by state police and by deputy sheriffs at Arkadelphia. He is a married man with two children. He lives in Ashdown and has been in charge of a NYA project at Zumas, Ark. According to Deputy Sheriff C. Deaton, Jones admitted throwing the body in the river, but says she died on an automobile ride with him from the effects of an attempted self-administered abortion.

WAR TIME SAVING BRINGS PUZZLE IN EXECUTION HOUR

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 8 [Special].—Arrival of daylight saving time at 2 a. m. tomorrow will take an hour out of the last day of life for Virginius [Dink] Carter, 33 years old, illiterate feud slayer of five close relatives of his wife. Or will it?

Warden Alfred F. Dowd said today he will consult the attorney general's office tomorrow regarding the effect of the time change on the legal time for executions. Scheduled to die between midnight and sunrise on Feb. 10, Carter ordinarily would go to the death chamber a few minutes after midnight. This procedure, however, would cut Carter's last day to 23 hours and prison officials pondered today as to the fairness of the situation to the doomed man.

Gov. Schricker refused today to grant Carter clemency. Carter's wife, loyal to him despite the fact his victims were her parents, two brothers, and a niece, visited him today and said she will do so again tomorrow.

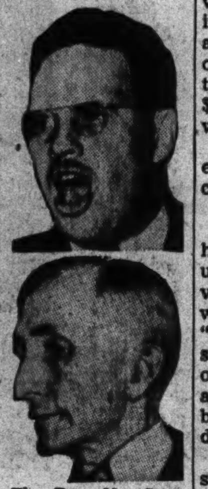
WARN GANGSTERS AGAINST TRYING TO REVIVE POLICY

Negro Leaders Promise Them Hard Fight.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

Gangsters who may attempt to take over the gambling racket of the deposed Negro "policy kings" were warned last night that they will find the going tough. The warning came from Negro leaders at a meeting held in Community church, 406 South Parkway.



The Rev. Mr. Carey [top] and Rudolph W. Dvorak.

The strongest warning was issued by the Rev. Archibald J. Carey Jr., pastor of the Woodlawn A. M. E. church and the son of Bishop Carey, former city civil service commissioner.

"If the gangsters appear they should be tarred and feathered and ridden out of the colored district on rails," asserted the Rev. Mr. Carey, who also is a lawyer. "If we permit them to revive this business we will be the biggest fools ever born.

Earn 70 Million a Year.

"There are 300,000 Negroes in Chicago. About 3,000 of them were employed in policy gambling—one of every 100 Negroes. The earnings of Negroes in Chicago are $70,000,000 a year. Of that income, about $15,000,000—more than one-fifth of it—has been played into the policy wheels with practically no chance of any great winnings.

"I never knew of any one who made 'hits' on policy. But instead, for every hit any one talks about, I can show you 100 starving children and 1,000 homes shattered because of policy.

"Every year $700,000 that is taken in from the nickels and dimes of our people is paid for protection for policy wheels. Not a penny of that goes to a colored man.

"The colored race is being pilloried by this thing that is around us. It is not because of race prejudice that we are not wanted in some neighborhoods. Real estate dealers say that when Negroes move in gambling and prostitution follow."

Charges Rule of Negro District.

George W. Lambert, investigator and representative of a property owners' association, told of the great power of Iley Kelly and George Jones, Negro policy kings who were among the 26 indicted as leaders in the racket.

"The ward committeemen are responsible," Lambert charged. "In addition to protecting the policy wheels they protect many handbooks in this [the Negro] district. What about the $250 a week paid by each of the 42 wheel owners for protection? What becomes of the $13,000 or $14,000 taken each week from one ward?"

Relaxation of Vigilance.

"While we in this country were happy over the freedom we enjoyed under our Constitution we relaxed our vigilance and ward committeemen were slipped over on us," Dvorak said. "There is no excuse for them in our scheme of government. They live off our votes. By doing little favors here and there they get you to sell your birthright. You vote for the candidates they give you.

"The crime commission is a pressure group. You people can be a pressure group. Pressure comes from people who are willing and who dare to use it. You can rid your community of policy and corruption thru your votes. If the gangsters organize and deliver your votes to ward committeemen, it is your own fault."

Aurora Mayor and Wife Mark Golden Anniversary

Mayor Andrew J. Carter of Aurora and his wife, Mrs. Hester Riley Carter, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary yesterday by holding open house for their friends in their home at 74 South Fourth street, Aurora. They were married in Canton, Ill. Carter, 70 years old, is a retired assistant division superintendent for the Burlington railroad. Mrs. Carter is 69. They have two sons, Leonard and Donald, and a daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Jacob.

START SELECTING 300 RECRUITS FOR LINCOLN RALLY

Navy recruiting officers today will start selecting 300 Chicagoans who will be inducted at a mass ceremony Thursday as part of the patriotic rally, "Lincoln Speaks Again," in Medinah temple.

The rally, which starts at 7:30 p. m., is sponsored by the treasury department, the American Legion, and the Navy League of the United States.

Speakers will include Mayor Kelly, Gov. Green, Ralph A. Bard, assistant secretary of the navy, and Rear Adm. Wat T. Cluverius. The program also will include a concert by the Great Lakes Naval Training station band.

$1,000,000 FIRE AT PHILADELPHIA; SCORES INJURED

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—An eight alarm fire, one of the worst in Philadelphia history, raged tonight thru a block of stores and homes in the northwest section of the city. When brought under control at midnight, damage was estimated at more than a million dollars.

The fire razed at least 20 structures and damaged 50 to 60 more near the intersection of Ridge and Columbia avenues. Two score firemen and several spectators were treated for injuries and one person was feared burned to death.

REPORT LEO CARR CAN RUN DESPITE STATE POLICE BAR

T. P. Sullivan, director of the state department of public safety, issued an order last Friday prohibiting members of the state police from running for elective office.

In Springfield it was reported the order was caused by rumors that several members of the force were about to announce themselves as candidates for the party office of precinct committeeman in their home counties, an activity prohibited under the rules of the present administration.

After a flurry of excitement over the fact that Leo E. Carr, chief of the highway force, is the regular organization candidate for sheriff of Cook county, it was reported that an exception will be made in his case.

SENATORS WEIGH NEW DEBT LIMIT OF 100 BILLIONS

And That May Be Boosted in View of War.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Congress, which a year ago was debating whether the country could stand a national debt of $65,000,000,000, will be asked soon to authorize one of $100,000,000,000.

Sen. Walter F. George.

With the debt now at $60,193,958,101 and rising rapidly with growing war expenditures, an early increase must be made in the present $65,000,000,000 limit and Chairman Walter F. George [D., Ga.] of the senate finance committee indicated leaders were about agreed that a hundred billion is a nice round figure.

"We could raise it to $85,000,000,000 at first and then raise it later, but I think most everybody up here will want to do it all at one jump," he told reporters.

45 Billion in World War.

The debt limit is the amount fixed by congress that the treasury can owe. It was set at $45,000,000,000 during the world war and for years nobody gave it a thought because the debt was well under that figure.

But in 1940, after a series of depression years when government spending far exceeded revenues, the treasury's outstanding debt began to approach the authorized maximum. Congress cautiously increased the limit $4,000,000,000.

Then, last year, Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau asked that it be raised to $65,000,000,000 and congress complied after considerable debate.

An increase to $100,000,000,000 might be only a starter. President Roosevelt's $59,027,992,300 war budget for the 12 months beginning next July 1 contemplates that by July 1, 1943, the national debt will be $110,421,000,000.

Byrd Raises Controversy.

Altho leaders foresaw speedy congressional approval of a $35,000,000,000 increase in the present debt limit, Sen. Harry E. Byrd [D., Va.] served notice that he would try to attach a controversial requirement that all obligations of government corporations, such as the RFC, be lumped together as part of the public debt. Estimating these obligations at $10,000,000,000, the Virginia senator said "they are part of the public debt and should be listed as such."

Support for the Byrd proposal was voiced by Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.], Robert A. Taft [R., O.], and George.

Vandenberg said government corporations had issued billions of dollars of obligations backed by the treasury altho "not a nickle shows in the public debt statement."

Asks Candid Bookkeeping.

"We should start in the direction of utterly candid bookkeeping and the present bookkeeping certainly is not that," the Michigan senator said. "Everything should be kept above the table from now on."

But Sen. Prentiss M. Brown [D., Mich.], who was senate floor leader for the debt increase act a year ago, said that most of the loans of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Home Owners Loan corporation, and similar government lending agencies "will be repaid at least in part. I'm not convinced that they can be classed properly as part of the regular debt."

BELIEF IN GOD IS FIRST LINE OF DEFENSE: GREEN

Belief in divine power stands as the first line of moral and spiritual defense in the war effort, Gov. Green declared last night in an address before the Chicago Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall.

"If that line crumbles, all human defenses cannot avail to save a country from itself," he said. "If that line holds steady, no foe can penetrate the shores and the frontiers of our nation, or no forces can undermine it from within. In this conflict for the sake of God and country there is no doubt upon whose banner a lasting victory will rest.

"We are not only fighting for a military triumph and to retain our material advantages. We are fighting for far greater values. If we are to continue receiving the blessings of God upon our country, religious ideals become our invaluable possessions."

HEARING TODAY FOR JOHN BAULER ON BET CHARGE

John Bauler, who was arrested Saturday on a charge of accepting horse race bets in his cigar store at 1521 North Clark street, and who told the arresting officers he is a brother of Ald. Matthias Bauler [43d], will be arraigned in Racket court today. Clement Dernbach, assistant state's attorney, said Bauler will be given a subpena calling for his appearance before the grand jury, which is investigating gambling. Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan of Commissioner Allman's office said Bauler admitted taking bets at the cigar stand. Eleven men found in the place were arrested with Bauler. They, too, may be called before the grand jury.

Making a Soldier of Sugar

As we have sent men abroad to fight for America—as we have sent money—as we have drafted steel, with other commodities, into fighting-service or enlisted wheat and other fighting-foods—so we must make a soldier of sugar.

Nutriment for the nations at war is as vital to the outcome as the powder that feeds the guns. A great nutrient in time of peace—in war a veritable sinew—sugar is now called upon to play a heroic part, to supply the peoples of our Allies—whose strength is ours.

To wrap up sugar in the American flag, so to speak, and put it into the fight becomes a duty of loyalty. It will be borne cheerfully by every industry, every dealer, and every individual it falls upon. Upon certain industries it falls heavily—and especially on the workers who derive their living from them. Yet the American civilian is in this war with the soldier. American business great and small, American capital from Wall Street to th[illegible]motest country bank, is with the Government [illegible] step of the way. The U. S. means Us. We, all [illegible] are in the fight with everything we have, for [illegible] of everything we cherish.

[illegible]mpany regards it a privilege to comply w[illegible] similarly to [illegible] to re- all [illegible] duc[illegible]

To th[illegible] of conservation we pledge our furthe[illegible] in every direction that opportunity may disclose, in manufacture as well as beyond the scope of our immediate interests; and in this effort generally we bespeak the co-operation of dealers and consumers everywhere.

History repeats itself in World War II. Sugar has been called to war again. Our government has restricted the use of sugar for all. Naturally, that includes Coca-Cola.

You'll continue to find Coca-Cola around the corner from anywhere, though we regret that you won't be able to enjoy the pause that refreshes as often as you might like. Our volume has been reduced. But this we pledge: the character of Coca-Cola will be unimpaired. The American people can continue to trust its quality.

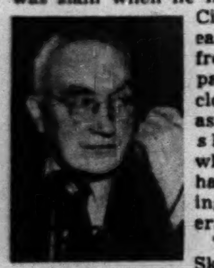
POLICE STATION SHOOTING VICTIM A ROBBER, TOO

Slain as He Attempts to Rescue Pal in Crime.

Joseph Skupien, 26 years old, who was slain when he invaded the New City police station early yesterday to free his crime partner, was disclosed yesterday as a member of a shotgun gang which police say has been terrorizing south side taverns.



Sergt. Joseph Connelly.

The partner Skupien sought to rescue was Bruno Jachymiak, 23 years old, oftconvicted petty thief. Jackhymiak, of 1793 West 43d street, had been seized as a suspect in the slaying of two Mexicans in a shooting scrape several hours earlier in a tavern at 4458 South Ashland avenue. Skupien, who participated in the shooting, lived at 1836 West 18th street.

Identified at Showup.

At the showup in the detective bureau yesterday, Jachymiak and a third member of the gang, Michael Lawski, alias Lawson, 21, were identified by John Oreske, owner of a tavern at 3157 Throop street, robbed of $475 on Jan. 29; Mrs. Henrietta Berberek, 3343 Aberdeen avenue, robbed in the same tavern of $25; and Max Turek, tavern owner at 3808 South Ashland avenue, robbed of $175 on Jan. 30.

Jachymiak and Lawski, of 4901 Lake Park avenue, admitted 40 more robberies and said that Skupien accompanied them.

Police records show that Jachymiak and Skupien have been known as neighborhood "tough guys" since their 'teens. Skupien was arrested several times as a juvenile.

Shoots Bottles Off Bar.

The prelude to the shooting in the police station occurred when Jachymiak and Skupien invaded the tavern, owned by Mrs. Pascuala Cerrillos, and Jachymiak began shooting bottles off the bar. Two Mexicans, Jesus Hortado, 30, and Romano Bessera, 35, both of 1250 South Peoria street were slain. Witnesses described the invaders and police soon pickel up Jachymiak.

He was being questioned several hours later in the office of Lieut. Al Stevesson in the New City station when Skupien, waving a revolver, dashed in. He pointed the gun at Desk Sergt. Joseph Connelly, muttering, "I'm going to rescue my partner. I'll get those dirty squealers." Sergt. Connelly stepped toward him. Skupien fired at him, missing by a few inches.

Fires Two Shots.

Then Skupien ran into the squad room to the rear of the station where 10 witnesses to the tavern murders were waiting to be questioned by detectives. Skupien ordered the witnesses and a reporter for the City News bureau, Walter Ganz, who was talking to his office on the telephone, to line up, using two Mexican women as a shield against attack. He backed up against a staircase, from where he threatened to kill any detectives who came into the room.

Overhearing the uproar from the second floor, Detective John Leahy meanwhile had crept down a side stairway to a landing directly above Skupien. With his revolver about 10 feet from Skupien's head Leahy fired two shots. Skupien wheeled and fired four times, two of the shots hitting two witnesses, Ernesto Gonzales, 25, of 4330 South Ashland avenue, and Aristo Toledo, 35, of 1359 Newberry avenue. Leahy then fired two more shots, killing Skupien.

TWO MEN ARGUE, BUT IT'S HARDLY ON EQUAL TERMS

Sergt. John Kirby was passing a peaceful evening last night at his desk in Central station when in walked two men. The elder loudly demanded that his younger companion be locked up.

"He's been saying things about Roosevelt," said the complainant. "So I brought him in."

The sergeant pushed his way thru the Scotch mist that had filtered into the room when the men entered and tried to smooth things over.

Watchman in Defense Plant.

The older man said he was Michael Sullivan, 52 years old, of 6838 Justine street, a watchman in a defense plant in Clearing. He said he had served four years in the Canadian army and had been decorated.

His companion identified himself as William McGimpsey, 34, of 807 South State street, a cook, who used to be a civilian cook at Camp Grant. He also admitted having a record for time served in the Bridewell for larceny. He said he was Scotch-Irish.

"I thought so," snapped Sullivan.

Sullivan said he had walked with McGimpsey from a tavern at 8th and State streets to Central station. McGimpsey denied making any subversive statements.

And Why Shouldn't He?

"After all," commented Sergt. Kirby," the man came in voluntarily with you. He can't be such a bad fellow."

"And why wouldn't he come," Sullivan demanded, "with this pistol in his back?"

Sergt. Kirby invited both of them to spend the night as guests of the city and suggested they continue their discussions this morning with the judge.

An infant found Saturday evening in St. Casimir's church, 2222 South Whipple street, still was unclaimed last night in St. Vincent's orphanage. The baby girl was found dressed warmly in clean, inexpensive clothes on the steps leading to the choir loft by Alice Gotkowski, 2243 South Sacramento avenue. Lawndale police are seeking the mother of the infant.

MASKED BANDITS GET NEARLY $1,600 IN TWO HOLDUPS

Four masked bandits, armed with shotguns, took nearly $1,600 in cash and jewelry early yesterday in two holdups on the northwest side. Their first victims were Robert Ryan, 2723 Pine Grove avenue, and Miss Margaret Doyle, 6046 North Campbell avenue, from whom they took $85 on Mozart street near Peterson road. A short time later the bandits held up Harry L. Kagan, 1027 Marion avenue, Oak Park, and his wife, Rose, as they left a wedding celebration at 6225 North Francisco avenue. The couple surrendered $275 in cash and jewelry valued at nearly $1,200. Kagan is president of a paper box manufacturing company.

Tires Changeth Old Order: Now Police Captains Walk

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 8 [Special].—Chief of Police Charles G. Manson ordered police captains today to stop using squad cars in making their rounds of the city. The captains will have to either walk or use a bus. The order was issued to conserve tires.

ROBBED, SLUGGED BY BANDIT.

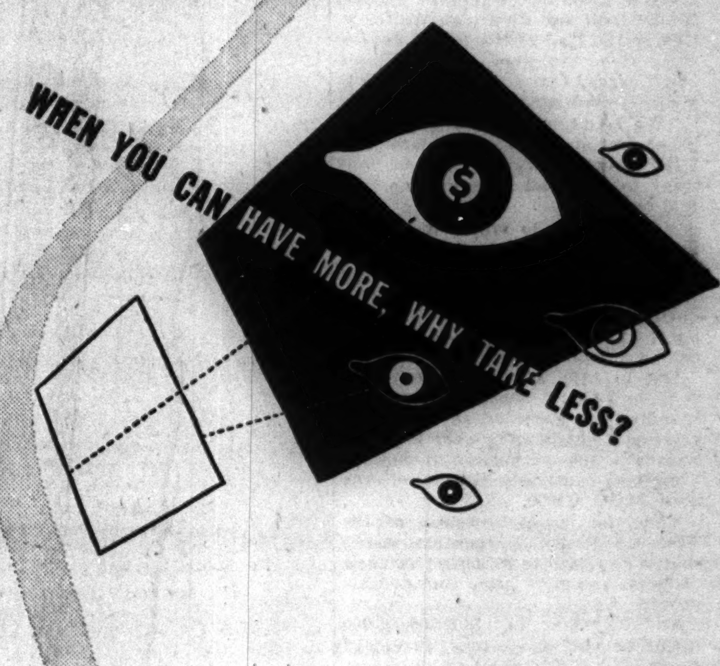
TERRY AND THE PIRATES—BIRD WITH NO NEST

Does your advertising go all out for today's extra volume?



You make the most of today's opportunities in Chicago when you base your sales drive on the Tribune. At one low cost, it delivers the full-market coverage you need to get your full share of today's buying.

Daily and Sunday, the Tribune in January delivered in excess of 1,000,000 total net paid circulation. This was 530,000 more total circulation on weekdays than any other Chicago daily newspaper delivered—and more than any two other Chicago daily newspapers combined. On Sundays, the Tribune sold 290,000 more copies than the second Chicago Sunday newspaper and 785,000 more than the third Chicago Sunday newspaper.

Right in metropolitan Chicago, the Tribune on weekdays had 375,000 more circulation than the next Chicago daily newspaper. On Sundays, the Tribune delivered 360,000 more circulation in Chicago and suburbs than the second Chicago Sunday newspaper, and 450,000 more than the third Sunday newspaper.

The Tribune is the only newspaper with circulation volume equivalent to majority coverage of all the families in metropolitan Chicago. To get more of the sales now available in Chicago, build your program around the Tribune. You can do so economically. Tribune rates per 100,000 circulation are among the lowest in America.

THE WORLD'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

Announcing— THE NEW DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB

How MYSTERY LOVERS Can Now Receive THREE Best-Selling Detective Books Each Month for the Usual Price of ONE!

AT LAST — here's real BARGAIN NEWS for every mystery lover!

Here, for the first time, is your chance to get three complete, up-to-date detective books for the regular price of only one! The season's fastest-selling mysteries by the finest writers in the field — books selling everywhere TODAY for $2.00 each. BUT NOW you can get three (a $6.00 value) for only $1.89!

What IS This New Club?

The DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB has just been organized—to save you time and money, and to bring you the best mysteries being published today.

About 300 new detective and mystery books are published every year. You can't read them all. It's hard to find the best. But there's one sure guide. If it is a Perry Mason thriller by Erle Stanley Gardner, or a Hercule Poirot masterpiece by Agatha Christie, or a Mr. and Mrs. North gem by Frances and Richard Lockridge (to mention just the masters of mystery-writing featured on this page) it's sure to be good!

Even so, you've probably missed many recent books by top-notch authors like these. You couldn't get them quickly and conveniently—and had to be satisfied with second choices.

How This New Club Prevents You from Missing the Best Each Month

But now The DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB will deliver right to your home each month three recently published best-selling detective books by the best authors in the field of mystery —at only ⅓ the usual cost!

How can this be done? First, because each group of three books—complete—will come to you bound in one volume. Right there is a two-thirds saving on the most expensive part of any book! Yet, because of the use of a special light-weight but entirely opaque paper, your three-in-one volume will not be a heavy, unwieldy "jumbo" book. It will be light in weight (for comfortable reading on a train, in an armchair; yes, even in bed) — and with large type for hour-after-hour enjoyment.

This economical method of distributing these books makes possible very large editions. And these large editions assure big savings in printing, binding, and distribution.

You Enjoy These Five Advantages

1—Every month you are offered an opportunity to get the cream of the finest recent detective and mystery books—by the best authors.

2—You save two-thirds the usual cost.

3—Your books are delivered right to your door. Each book is fresh, clean, unopened. It will be right at your elbow whenever you are in the mood, and you may read it as leisurely as you please.

4—You receive volumes so well printed, so sturdily and attractively bound, that month by month they will grow into a handsome library of masterpieces of modern detective fiction.

5—These desirable editions will be available TO DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB MEMBERS ONLY! They will not be sold in any other way or to anyone who is not a registered member of this Club!

It Will Pay You to Join NOW

With costs of paper and cloth soaring, the Club can guarantee the present low price only to Charter Members who join NOW! (In fact, since the writing of this advertisement, another increase in the price of paper has been announced!)

But there are other very timely reasons for joining this Club at once. You probably plan to spend more evenings at home, seeking diversion and relaxation. And what is more diverting than a truly good detective book like the volume described here?

DETECTIVE BOOK CLUB C. T. 2942
330 West 42nd Street, New York, N. Y.

Please enroll me as a Charter Member and send me the current volume described on this page, containing three complete detective books by Erle Stanley Gardner, Agatha Christie, and Frances and Richard Lockridge.

This does not obligate me to take every monthly selection during the next 12 months; I may take as few as four during this period, if I so wish.

It is also understood that I will receive an advance description of each selection and that I may reject any volumes that I do not wish to own. I need send no money now, but for each volume I accept I will send you only $1.89, plus a few cents postage, as complete payment, within one week after I receive my book.

ERLE STANLEY GARDNER
"THE CASE OF THE EMPTY TIN"

PERRY MASON—Crime-lawyer and sleuth extraordinary—is right up to his ears in this devilish triple-murder from the opening gun! Even BEFORE murder has been revealed, Perry Mason is engaged by a wheel-chair-ridden cripple, to protect him from suspicion! An eerie phone call gets Mason to a lonely suburban house—and the narrowest squeak of his career! By the time you're through this thriller, you'll agree with the critics that it's "even better than Gardner!"

AGATHA CHRISTIE
"EVIL UNDER THE SUN"

HERCULE POIROT'S brilliant deductive powers swing into action at an exclusive summer resort. For at least one of his fellow-guests is a cunning slayer. Arlena Marshall, a beautiful but brainless red-headed Jezebel, eagerly eyed by husbands, jealously by wives, is found face down in a nearby cove—not sun-bathing, but dead! Every husband has an alibi. More important, so has every wife! And then Poirot finds that Arlena had been seen going to the cove AFTER her dead body had been discovered!

FRANCES & RICHARD LOCKRIDGE
"A PINCH OF POISON"

MR. and MRS. NORTH (and their likable detective friend Bill Weigand) help themselves to plenty of brainwork and as many thrills and plot-twists as your nerves will stand! A young social worker seems to have "passed out" at the Ritz-Plaza roof. But it's not too much liquor—it's DEATH! The clues are all too few. The murdered girl had money. A table had been mysteriously reserved for the party by someone unknown. And that was about all—until Mrs. North uncovers the fantastic trail of a mixed-up adoption case, and how it jigsawed in with the girl's strange death and another murder to follow!

Will You Accept a CHARTER MEMBERSHIP?

Reserving a CHARTER MEMBERSHIP now will not obligate you to take every month's selection during the next twelve months. You may take as few as four during that time. You will be protected against any necessary rise in prices, and you may cancel your membership whenever you wish. A description of each forthcoming selection will be sent to you in advance, and you may reject any volumes you do not wish.

Your membership will begin with the thrilling volume described here. Each following month's selection will contain three recent, full-length mysteries by today's greatest masters. You need send no money with the Reservation Coupon. But if you wish to ASSURE yourself of the privileges now being offered to Charter Members, address the Reservation Coupon AT ONCE to:

—Stephen Decatur.

PVT. RICHARD GRAFF.

Private Richard Graff who was killed while fighting with Gen. MacArthur's forces in the Philippines is the first of The Tribune family to die in action in this war. He had been with us for nearly 11 years when he enlisted a year ago last month.

We mourn the loss of a conscientious co-worker, of a friend, of a gallant soldier. He will not be forgotten. THE TRIBUNE will honor his memory and, of course, will take whatever steps may be necessary to see that the widow is spared financial worry.

Richard Graff, and like him, almost every other man who has given his life for his country in this war, had no part in the making of it. He did not will it. He did nothing to instigate it. He did not go roaring up and down the country shouting for blood. He was no war monger.

It is a striking fact, which at this moment cannot be forgotten, that it is men like Graff who are facing the enemy today, risking their lives for their flag, while the war mongers remain comfortably and happily in places of security. It is time that those who willed the war were driven from their hiding places and sent to the front where they can share some of the agony they have created.

Richard Graff was not afraid to face privation, suffering, and death. He was no night club hero. A volunteer, he sought no comfortable berth as a navy press agent on Broadway or as a state department cooky pusher in Washington. He played a man's part. Let the others dare as he did, or live and die in disgrace.

WE ARE FIGHTING JAPAN, NOT AMERICA.

The American people are badly in need of assurance that it is the intention of the national administration to make war on the Japs and not on Americans. While Gen. MacArthur battles heroically, and almost hopelessly, all that we have on the home front is campaigns against Americans.

Chairman Flynn, the official spokesman of the party in power, attacks all Republicans, who are half of the nation. His vicious slur on their patriotism betrays a design to destroy the American form of government by copying Hitler's system of one party rule. The little puppy, Agar, abuses the greatest of our American citizens, seeking by his shabby falsehoods to distract attention from the men in Washington who are really responsible for the disasters that have befallen the country.

Instead of an intelligent effort to organize the war effort, we have a succession of campaigns to disrupt our economic life and make living more difficult. In the name of winning the war, far-reaching measures are instituted affecting the daily activities of every one, which cannot but cripple instead of expand the nation's powers of production. They are instituted without study or consideration of the consequences by men whose motives, in many instances, seem to be pure delight in the exercise of arbitrary authority, if indeed they are not even more sinister.

Washington is jammed with the same parasites who fed on the nation in peace, and instead of their wasteful activity being abated because of the war, the war has been taken as an excuse to continue and expand the wasting of our national strength and resources. All of these subvertists should be severely reprimanded. Leaders should be chosen who will make war against this country's enemies instead of against its citizens.

DONALD DUCK TOTALLY RECALLED.

We are indebted to the United States treasury for a thousand word essay describing a recent Donald Duck picture. The account covers two closely typed pages. We had already seen the picture and had enjoyed it as long as Donald was permitted to take part. After that, it got pretty sticky with propaganda directed at the nine year old level. The purpose of the film is to encourage people to pay their taxes. It does so by showing how even so self-centered a citizen as Donald is eager to pay his and then by suggesting that the money is needed to buy munitions.

It is just possible that the second of these ideas may have occurred from time to time to the more thoughtful among the citizenry. What we started out to say, however, was that this two page syllabus is a welcome indication that the treasury is working back to the principles of Alexander Hamilton. Mr. Hamilton's public accounts were models of their kind. The citizen who wanted to know about his government's finances could find the whole story in the great secretary's published records. He was for candor and completeness. Latterly the treasury's reports have been somewhat less satisfactory in these particulars, but the Donald Duck syllabus suggests that a return to first principles may be imminent.

Every scene is described in full detail. A thousand years from now, any one who wants to know what Donald Duck was thinking about can get all the dope.

"Suddenly," says the treasury, "to the sound of sinister music, an underwater shot is shown of an axis submarine resembling a prowling shark. Depth charges fall into the scene and blast the sub to the surface, where it is blown to bits and sinks. On the swirling water only the swastika is left, which sinks beneath the surface as the voice says, "To take the axis for a ride."

As a critic of the drama, if not as a fiscal agency, the treasury suffers from the ailment which psychiatrists have named "total recall." Once launched upon his description, there is no stopping Mr. Morgenthau. Every detail of every scene is recalled, seriatim. Evidently the treasury doesn't take too seriously the predictions of a paper shortage put forward by colleagues in WPB. Or maybe there's nothing more useful to be done in Washington these days than to tell the story of an animated cartoon.

Another explanation is, of course, possible. The day the treasury's essay was received the house of representatives refused to approve an appropriation of $80,000 to Mr. Walt Disney for his production. Maybe Mr. Morgenthau figured that if he could cover two whole pages with a mere outline or synopsis of the film, congress would conclude that it had obtained its money's worth.

THE CHOICE.

So far as the Republican senatorial race is concerned it already appears that the contest will lie between the Democrats' candidate for the Republican nomination for senator and the Republicans' candidate for the Republican nomination for senator.

The Republicans' candidate for the Republican nomination is Wayland Brooks, who is running on his record as a Republican senator. The Democrats' candidate is Warren Wright, who is asking Republicans to nominate him on the ground that their party has been consistently wrong, in head and heart, for the last 10 years.

TRANSPORTATION POLICY.

Mr. Joseph B. Eastman, chairman of the Interstate Commerce commission, who recently has been appointed director of the Office of Defense Transportation, spoke to a large audience of traffic representatives in Chicago the other day. To shippers and traffic men Mr. Eastman's remarks were reassuring. He told his audience that the Office of Defense Transportation is not another railroad administration such as was created in the last war nor is he a McAdoo. He stressed the fact that practicability is to be the keyword of his administration.

Three major problems confront his office. The first is to see that carriers receive an adequate supply of tools, materials, and equipment to maintain them at top efficiency. War production, of course, is the objective, but if transportation bogs down, then the whole war production program will do likewise.

Number two on the list is the problem of adequate storage facilities. When guns, tanks, ammunition, etc., reach the highest volume of production they will, of course, not all move directly to the battle front. They must not be allowed to plug up the factories, but must be moved to concentration points for subsequent transfer to the fighting forces. Mr. Eastman has placed the responsibility of handling this problem on an experienced warehouseman, Mr. Leo Nicholson of Chicago.

Third in importance, in the estimation of the director, is the problem of transportation of workers to and from the war production factories. With the curtailment of rubber tires and the complete stoppage of automobile production this will become a serious matter. The public in recent years has depended more upon the private auto for its transportation than upon all the railroads and buses combined. Mr. Eastman has selected Mr. Guy Richardson, also of Chicago, an experienced local transportation man, to handle this problem.

The new setup recognizes the importance of cooperation of shippers in solving many of these important problems. Promptness in loading and unloading cars, trucks, barges, and boats is as vital to the successful operation of the different transportation agencies as additional new equipment.

Mr. Eastman has set up a division of traffic movement, which he is planning to swing into action whenever the volume of traffic grows to critical proportions. If that time arrives, it may be necessary for the governmental agency arbitrarily to divide the tonnage among the rails, trucks, boats, pipe lines, and air transport. With such action may also come the necessity for directing routing over shortest possible routes. Peacetime competition of carriers will have to be disregarded. Days or hours saved in hauling a car of freight between two points will mean additional cars for loading.

Mr. Eastman also pointed out that, under the law, he is directed to use "existing facilities" to the fullest extent and he gave his word that there would be no diversion of traffic to new and theoretical transportation facilities until those already in operation are taxed to their capacity.

The director has had no practical operating experience. Some of the key men he has picked as subordinates, however, can supply this deficiency. Generally speaking, he has the confidence of all traffic representatives and if he can succeed in following his announced policy of practicability the accomplishment of the tremendous task confronting him should not be impossible.

HOW NOT TO COLLECT SCRAP.

Seven hundred employés in the New York City department of sanitation gave their day off recently to collect scrap metal, rubber, paper, and other waste from the residents of the city. At the end of the day the employés working in the borough of Manhattan had brought in about a ton of scrap, of which much was said to be unsalvagable. Sanitation Commissioner William F. Carey said that unless the second trial was more satisfactory the project would be dropped. What was brought in was not worth the cost of gasoline and the wear and tear on the trucks, let alone the time which the workmen contributed.

In spite of the unselfish motives that caused the employés to undertake the venture, it can be seen that the project was foredoomed to failure. The lesson should not be lost when other well intended but foolish proposals are made to do with amateur help jobs for which there are professionals available. There are in New York, as there are in Chicago and every other city, thousands of men who make their living collecting scrap materials. They make a meager living at it but they get in every year a great many thousands of tons of salvagable material. The way to increase this collection is to increase the prices paid them for their work.

So far, the fear that somebody is going to make excess profits out of the war has resulted in holding many prices down to a level at which it is impossible to make any profit. It isn't the junk men who are going to get rich, even if prices are raised. The best they can hope for is a little higher standard of living. Theirs is a marginal activity and the way to increase its production when the production is needed, as it is now, is to raise the prices.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

IN MEMORY OF SAM KISER.

The passing of S. E. Kiser at the age of 80 was recorded in the obituary news 10 days ago, but something more should be said about him as a poet and paragrapher of Chicago editorial pages. The vanished Record-Herald, a major morning newspaper, was his rostrum from 1900 to 1914, and he was a prominent figure in the journalism of that period.

He was fluent in humorous and sentimental verse, and a follower in the footsteps of James Whitcomb Riley. "The Desk Drawer Anthology" contains an example of his rhyming called "The Necho" [boyish spelling for "echo"] which is in the Riley vein and up to the Riley standard. Sam Kiser, as he was known in the craft, was gifted, and his contribution to the folk-verse of the middle west was substantial.

It is easy for this generation to remember the fuss made in the 1920s over John V. A. Weaver's verses in the common talk of the streets—"in American," as Weaver called it. But it seems to have been forgotten that Sam Kiser had done the same sort of thing, quite copiously, 20 years earlier. See his "Love Sonnets of an Office Boy" and "Sonnets of a Chorus Girl," which were published in book form.

His personality, like his drollery, was quiet and gentle, and the survivors of the great age of Chicago's newspaper life, when eight dailies were published in the square block bounded by Madison, Washington, La Salle, and Wells streets, remember him with affection. His name has been set down in the necrology of the Chicago Press Veterans' association, to be read at its next annual dinner. To recall his vein, we will quote the first stanza of "The Necho":

We got a necho at our house since we moved out beside the hill
Where there's a path goes thru the field, and in the evening when it's still
And I go out and holler, why—away 'way off—there seems to be Somebody waitin' for a chance to say what I say back to me.

RUPERT BROOKE.
(1887-1915.)

If ever loved as only can
A lover his land supreme,
Here was the lover, here the man—
England his whole heart's dream!

Each jeweling with his joy;
Singing, he lived his whole day long
Pledged to her pure employ;

And dying, still for her fields he yearned,
Greek tho his island-grave,
And unto England's love returned
All England ever gave:

Music too beautiful for time
To tarnish or negate;
Poems so fair in every rhyme

Silence could never assail such lips—
Still shouts your love, O proud,
Bright poet, morninged beyond eclipse

What City Dogs Dream About.

Linemaster: You seem to be running a sort of cat-and-dog fight in your column lately. I kinda feel sorry for these pedigreed, pampered purps and pussies. Theirs is a soft, humdrum life, to my notion.

You should have seen Bill Rohn's dogs. Uncle Bill lived in a ramshackle farmhouse on a sand ridge at the edge of the Illinois river bottoms. He was a type of German you rarely see, and his father had been gamekeeper in a royal game preserve. He did mighty little farming, but he hunted, and trapped, and fished the whole year 'round—for fun and for the market. Sportsmen came from as far off as Buffalo to hunt ducks with Uncle Bill. Nights they'd go coon-hunting. He had a pack of 30-odd dogs, all specialists, and they worked at it, or else.

There were coonhounds, foxhounds, and just plain rabbithounds. There were duck retrievers, squirrel-dogs, a big Airedale, and two or three feists. He fed 'em only scraps and they had to live off what they rustled, mainly from the old slaughterhouse across the slough along the Beardstown road. They were smart, thin, agile, always hungry, and ever alert. A stranger couldn't get near the place, but when Uncle Bill yelled and reached for a chunk, the whole pack streaked under the house like a bunch of field mice. Life was never dull! Buckshot, O. R. IN THE BEDSIDE MANNER.

To make humans squirm,
And to keep them infirm
Is the task of the germ.

To quell and to sock us,
Unceasingly knock us,

Or help doctors bill us.

Are you feeling faint yet?
Have you no complaint yet?

A Tradition Goes Boom.

The so-called Blackhawk monument near Oregon, Ill., was not erected as a memorial to Chief Blackhawk. Lorado Taft, the sculptor who erected it, repeatedly stated that this colossal figure was intended to represent any Indian. Illinois guidebooks say that the statue is erroneously called the Blackhawk monument.

Please debunk the Blackhawk title, and if you doubt my veracity, consult Lorado Taft's daughter. Rakef.

(The editor of this column is of the opinion that the mass-mind is mightier than the sculptor, and that this statue will be called the Blackhawk monument as long as its concrete sticks together.)

PREVENT THE FORMATION OF KIDNEY STONES.

STONES within the urinary tract have bothered mankind for centuries. In consequence, the operation of "cutting" was brought to a high state of perfection long before the day when surgery was made comparatively safe. The procedure involved an incision into the urinary pouch and the extraction of the calculi.

More than a hundred years ago Philip Syng Physick of Philadelphia relieved Chief Justice Marshall of the Supreme court of a sizable collection of miniature boulders. For a long time thereafter the distinguished jurist had a topic of conversation of which he never tired.

What causes the production of these rocklike substances? The explanation is that since the urine has dissolved in it a generous amount of mineral matter any trauma or irritation within the kidney may force the salts to separate from the solution. Thus it is that calcium phosphate, calcium oxalate, and uric acid may be laid down within the collecting spaces of the kidneys.

A tiny plaque of calcium will replace a few injured cells, whereupon the ledge will increase in size until a portion may break off and attempt to pass to the outside. In the journey down the ureter, if blockage occurs, intense pain may ensue. This is known as "renal colic."

Of course there are other factors—for example, infection. If bacteria are able to reach the fluid gathering in the kidney they in turn may inflict enough damage to invite the precipitation of a thin film which will start crystals to form.

Mention must be made of the development of these concretions during recovery from a fracture. At such a time there appears to be more calcium in the urine as the blood is endeavoring to supply new bone to the affected areas. Furthermore, we must remember that these patients are inactive and that some solid matter may drop out of solution because the urine is concentrated.

This means that victims of fractures, particularly if bedridden, are advised to drink large quantities of water—other conditions permitting. This dilutes the output of the renal organs and prevents the throwing down of the decomposed chemicals.

The influence of diet has been a topic of discussion for many decades. There is reason to believe that those who indulge in unusually large helpings of cheese or milk, or who are generous users of alkalies over long periods of time, are more susceptible. For example, the study of a series of patients on ulcer management [alkalies] revealed 11 per cent with urinary deposits.

In addition to taking plenty of fluids the sufferer must consume foods that give an acid rather than an alkaline reaction. Thus, vegetables must not be used preponderantly without the assistance of meat. While an ordinary serving of milk or cheese may be employed, overfondness for these edibles may well be curbed.

Another precaution involves the elimination of all foci or infection. From one such pocket, germs may find their way to the renal tract.

Unfortunately there is no remedy which will dissolve with certainty even one of these small pebbles. If jagged portions cause bleeding or obstruction the wise thing to do is to resort to skilled surgery.

WEATHER AND ANGINA.

K. U. D. writes: I have angina pectoris. Why do I have more attacks during cold weather?

REPLY.

In the wintertime the skin capillaries are contracted. This explains why nitroglycerin is an excellent remedy. It causes the tiny vessels within the epidermis to enlarge, thus relieving internal congestion.

MEAT A MUST.

A. B. writes: I am a housekeeper for a couple with arthritis. They tell me they cannot eat meat. Why not?

REPLY.

Meats are restricted in gout but not in arthritis. In fact, sufferers need normal protein ration. In some cases, however, a diet which supplies but little starches and sugars is advised.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE

Writers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Give full names and addresses. No manuscripts can be returned. Space for letters is obviously limited. Incoming mail far exceeds it. If a letter is not printed, attribute it to lack of room. Address letters to Voice of the People, THE TRIBUNE.

JOB DISCRIMINATION BY THE GOVERNMENT.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 4.—Your editorial, "Negroes in Defense Jobs," in your issue of Jan. 22 raises question as to the failure of the Committee on Fair Employment Practice at its hearings held in Chicago on Jan. 19 and 20, to hear complaints of discrimination made against federal government agencies, either in a public session or in an executive session of the committee. You state that the government is by far the nation's biggest employer and has repeatedly been charged with unfairness to Negroes and ask, "Why this protection to the biggest of the alleged offenders?"

In the first 587 complaints which were made to the committee in the first months of its operation 210, or 35 per cent, were against government agencies. Practically all of the complaints against government agencies were made by Negroes. Every one of these complaints has been carefully investigated by the committee, in many cases satisfactory adjustments have been made, and recommendations have been made by the committee to the appropriate agencies of the government to correct procedures in the federal civil service which appear to admit the possibility of racial discrimination. Numerous other specific recommendations are now under study by the committee and will soon be acted upon.

These recommendations must necessarily be made to the policy determining officers of the government departments and agencies if they are to have the effect of reducing or eliminating discrimination wherever it may be found in the government service.

All of the complaints which were made to the committee by persons in the Chicago area who alleged that they have been discriminated against because of their race, creed, color, or national origin by officers of the United States government are being given careful and thoro consideration and will, as you suggest, be used "as a check upon the testimony which may be obtained in Washington" by the committee.

The committee greatly appreciates the forceful stand you have taken against the practice of undemocratic race discrimination in defense industries and in the government service.

MARK F. ETHRIDGE, Chairman.

CANINE IDENTIFICATION.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—Has it ever occurred to people who have had the misfortune to lose a dog that often it is a case of hit and run drivers who leave a dog lying in the street? Would it not be fair to both owner and finder to require a compulsory tag on every dog with owner's name and address thereon? Even were the animal injured, passersby would be able to notify the owner.

DOG OWNER.

QUESTION OF TOOLS.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Jan. 30.—Some time ago we heard in one of Mr. Churchill's talks that if we would give him the tools he would do the job. How about giving Gen. Douglas MacArthur a few tools at this time of need? ROSS O. BURKE.

DESCRIPTION OF WASHINGTON.

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 4.—Your articles, "A Business Man Describes His Arms Job Hunt in Washington" and "Picture of Idle United States Staff Arouses Storm," were especially interesting to me, as I worked in the war department last summer. Talk about red tape and idle workers! In the office to which I was assigned there were at least 15 employés in a space that usually would house only four or five people. Then there was the discussion of girls sitting around powdering their noses, smoking cigarets, and reading magazines. In most cases there wasn't any work to be done. When there was work to be accomplished the clerks were inclined to be inefficient or too superior to be of much help. There were about five of us who did the work while the others powdered. I guess Washington will always be as it is now—overcrowded and underworked. L. B.

DENMARK WAITS.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—There was little resistance by the Danes when the Germans took over in April, 1940. Denmark is a country with no natural protection, and its tiny army could have offered only insignificant defense. King Christian was wise in ordering no resistance, and if the Danes are passive today it is the course of the totally helpless. Denmark may have a few power-seeking traitors, but the people cannot eradicate from their souls a thousand years' struggle to maintain independent nationalism.

The people are suffering in silence, but there is an ominous hate that bides time and opportunity.

G. P. JENSEN, President, Chicago Denmark committee.

MISSING SON FOUND.

West McHenry, Ill., Jan. 30.—I wish to express my sincere appreciation to you for publishing a picture and story regarding my missing son, Robert Richardson. The story on Jan. 25 was directly responsible for his return. He had been working for five weeks in a restaurant in Michigan City, and his employer noticed his picture in your paper.

MRS. A. J. RICHARDSON.

REGULAR ARMY AND RESERVE NURSES.

Chicago, Jan. 28.—"Jefresher" courses for regular army as well as civilian nurses would make the regular army nurse more tolerant of the reserve nurse and make it easier for the army to fill its quota of nurses. Reasons why the quota is not filled today:

1. Twelve and a half hour night duty at a stretch with no night off.
2. Poor salary—no social life.
3. Officers' clubs offering little suitable entertainment.
4. Resentment of the regular army nurse for the reserve army nurse and discrimination against the latter. Chief nurses tell her there is no place for her in the army. R. N.

FROM A GOLD STAR MOTHER.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—I am a gold star mother [lost my only son in the last World war]. I knew Sen. Brooks when a boy and have watched him grow up to be one of the finest and most honest men we have. Let us keep him where he is. MARY I. ELLIOTT.

BAD CHECKS.

Chicago, Jan. 29.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—What is to be done about these small time crooks that pass bad checks off on a poor sucker who started in business. He acted like a perfect gentleman and I fell for his line and accepted the check. I have written to this person three times and even sent a registered letter, so I know he received it. I also have asked several different people and was told it would cost more to bring charges than the check is worth. Is there no protection of any kind against people like that or am I just out the $10?

F. M.

If you gave cash for the check, the man could be put in jail. Report your facts to the state's attorney.

LABOR DIRECTOR URGES PEACE IN N. SHORE DISPUTE

Hopes to Bring 2 Unions Into Agreement.

Francis B. Murphy, state director of labor, will attempt to bring the two feuding unions to a conference table today to end the eight day disruption in service on the North Shore line.

Because of a battle over who should get the $2 monthly dues of 2,000 employés of the line, thousands of passengers have been inconvenienced and delayed each day for a week in traveling from North Shore suburbs and cities as far north as Milwaukee into Chicago. Unless a settlement of the fight is effected soon, it is expected that half or more of the North Shore employés may be laid off due to the curtailment of service.

Union Raiding Charged.

The trouble began a week ago yesterday when division 308 [Elevated Lines] of the Amalgamated Association of Street, Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employés refused to service trains of the North Shore Line because the large independent railroad brotherhoods allegedly had been luring Amalgamated members into their ranks.

Murphy has made several attempts during the last week to end the dispute. Neither side has been willing to yield an inch, he said. The brotherhoods have insisted that such members they have gained from the Amalgamated came of their own accord and not thru any of the "raiding" tactics attributed to them by the Amalgamated.

Federal Conciliators Fail.

Federal conciliators also have labored in vain. A report that the attorney general's anti-trust division in Washington is investigating the trouble was denied here yesterday. Daniel B. Britt, special assistant to the attorney general, said no such move is contemplated at this time. Prosecution under anti-trust laws of a union can be started if it is shown there is a conspiracy with a carrier to violate anti-trust laws.

Unless a voluntary agreement is reached during the week observers do not look for any change in the situation until Saturday, when Federal Judge Michael J. Igoe will resume a hearing on a bondholders' petition for an injunction to force resumption of service.

The brotherhood's petition to represent the North Shore workers is pending before the National Labor Mediation board.

STATIONS IN FOUR SUBURBS CLOSE GAS SALE AT 7 P. M.

A 7 p. m. closing hour was agreed upon voluntarily last night by gasoline station owners of Oak Park, River Forest, Berwyn, and Forest Park. Representatives of the owners, meeting at the request of the Oak Park Chamber of Commerce in the Oak Park municipal building, said all except one of the 160 stations in the four communities agreed to the closing, which went into effect last night.

Several of the owners said they would seek to close the objector, in Oak Park, by going to the station, ordering a gallon of gasoline, and demanding change from $20 bills.

This system, tried in other communities, can prevent prospective customers from getting to the pumps to buy gasoline.

RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGED AS AUTO KILLS WATCHMAN

Louis Shear, 60 years old, 3911 Grenshaw street, a night watchman, was killed yesterday at Kilpatrick and Chicago avenue by an automobile driven by Frank Borufka, 1846 South Sawyer avenue. Borufka was charged with reckless driving.

Emil Hapac, 27, of 1606 Blue Island avenue, a truck driver, was killed when the automobile he was driving crashed into an abutment of the Rock Island railroad viaduct at 18th street and Wentworth avenue.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 100 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 78 were killed in Chicago, where 2,376 were injured in the same period.

GIRL OF 20 MEETS THE SERGEANT—HE'S HER FATHER

Sergt. Fred Whitworth of Fort Sheridan had a visitor yesterday—his daughter, Mrs. Adeline Henry, 20 years old, whom he had not seen since she was 14 months old. Sergt. Whitworth, a World war veteran who has been in the army 25 years, was divorced in 1923 from Mrs. Henry's mother. He lost track of his daughter and heard nothing from her until she found him with the help of army authorities. Mrs. Henry came to Chicago for the reunion from her home in Milwaukee with her husband, Walter.

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Hereditary Hijacker

HANLEY, AUTHOR OF 'BACK HOME IN INDIANA,' IS DEAD

New York, Feb. 8 [Special].—James F. Hanley, 49 years old, who wrote the music for such song hits as "Back Home in Indiana," "Rose of Washington Square," "Second Hand Rose," and "Just a Cottage Small By a Waterfall," died today of a heart attack in his home in Douglaston, Queens.

Hanley's greatest hit, "Back Home in Indiana," sold 2 million copies. Other well known tunes for which he was responsible were "If You Knew Susie Like I Knew Susie," "Honeymoon Lane," and "Song of My Heart," which he wrote for John McCormick's only moving picture.

Born at Rensselaer, Ind., Hanley was educated at St. Ignatius' academy, Chicago, and Campton college, Prairie du Chien, Wis. He studied piano at the Chicago Music college, founded by Florenz Ziegfeld's father. He had a long career in vaudeville. During the first World war, Hanley served in France with the 82d division and wrote the 82d division's show after the armistice, "Toot Sweet." From 1931 to 1934 he was associated with 20th Century-Fox films.

He leaves a widow and five children.

CAPT. S. H. DOYLE, TRANSPORT CHIEF IN 1917, IS DEAD

Gallatin, Tenn., Feb. 8 (AP).—Capt. Stafford H. R. Doyle, under whose guidance 800,000 American soldiers crossed the Atlantic safely during the first World war, died late today.

The distinguished commander, ill five months, had undergone a series of operations at the United States Naval hospital in Washington. He returned to his estate here a month ago. He was 65 years old.

Born in Orangeburg, S. C., in 1876, Capt. Doyle entered the United States Naval academy in 1896 and continued to rise in the ranks until his retirement from the navy several years ago.

He had served as commander of several battleships and won citation for his special success in ferrying troops to Europe in World war I.

OBITUARIES

Thomas E. McBride.

Thomas E. McBride, a River Forest attorney and justice of the peace of Proviso township for 16 years, died yesterday in his home at 711 Ashland avenue, River Forest. He was 68 years old and was graduated from the University of Michigan law school. He leaves his widow, two sons, and two daughters. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 10 a. m. in St. Luke's church, River Forest.

Thomas McKean.

Villanova, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—Thomas McKean, 73 years old, socially prominent author, playwright, and descendant of Thomas McKean, signer of the Declaration of Independence, died yesterday. One of McKean's plays, "The Main Line," depicted suburban Philadelphia society life. He also wrote the novels, "The Vortex," "The Master of Influence," "The Mercy of Fate," and "The Wife Decides."

Mrs. Christy Brooks Capps.

Funeral services for Mrs. Christy Brooks Capps, the wife of Dr. Joseph A. Capps, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the First Unitarian church at 57th street and Woodlawn avenue. Mrs. Capps, who lived at 1215 East 56th street, died on Saturday. Surviving with her husband are two sons and a daughter, Dr. Richard B. Capps, Robert A. Capps, and Mrs. David G. Cogan.

Rufus Isaacs.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 8 (AP).—Rufus Isaacs, 60 years old, retired insurance broker and one-time English entertainer, died today. He was the father of Norman E. Isaacs, managing editor of the Indianapolis Times. The elder Isaacs was born in Manchester, England, and sang on the English stage under the name of Rob Watson.

W. B. T. Belt.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 8 (AP).—W. B. T. Belt, 71 years old, former president of the Northwestern Bell Telephone company, died today. He retired in 1936 after 48 years in the telephone industry. Belt became president of the firm at the time of its formation in 1921.

Edward Z. Sattler.

Edward Z. Sattler, a Chicago undertaker for the last 36 years, died yesterday in St. Joseph's hospital, Joliet. He was 89 years old. Mr. Sattler lived at 1524 Belle Plaine avenue. For several years he had been in charge of the Western Undertaking company's branch at 5228 Sheridan road. He is survived by his widow, Mary, and two sisters. Services will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 163 North Joliet avenue, Joliet.

Mrs. Paul Kitch.

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 8 [Special].—Mrs. Bernadine Kitch, 32 years old, wife of the Rev. Paul Kitch, a missionary, died last week in Ouagadougou, French West Africa, of typhus, according to word received here today. The Kitch family lived in nearby Clinton, where he was pastor of the Assembly of God church before going to Africa in 1938. The Rev. Mr. Kitch and a son, Paul, were reported recovering from the disease.

Mrs. Alice Ross Lucas.

Services for Mrs. Alice Ross Lucas, a social worker in Chicago for 30 years, will be held at 7:30 p. m. tomorrow in Waldensian Presbyterian church, 2510 Superior street. The body will lie in state at the church from 6 to 7:30 p. m. Mrs. Lucas died Friday in her home at 3059 North Neva avenue. Her husband, Anthony, survives. Burial will be in Indianola, Ia.

J. D. VANDERCOOK, LONG IN REALTY BUSINESS, DEAD

John Demmon Vandercook, a real estate dealer in Chicago and the western suburbs for 50 years, died yesterday at Tampa, Fla. Mr. Vandercook was 78 years old. He lived at Prince crossing in West Chicago.

Mr. Vandercook, a native Chicagoan whose father built one of the first houses in Austin, was one of the early real estate developers of Austin, Oak Park, Winfield, Lombard, and West Chicago. He was secretary of the Illinois Society, Sons of the American Revolution, for many years, and served one year as president.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Elsie Vandercook; two daughters, Mrs. Margaret Delles and Mrs. Dorothy Ballard, and two sons, Peirce and Donald.

MEMORIAL RITES HELD FOR SON OF MAYWOOD PASTOR

Memorial services were held yesterday in Plymouth Congregational church, Maywood, for Jacque Merrifield, son of the late Rev. Roy W. Merrifield, pastor of the church. About 75 veterans of the 123d field artillery, which the Rev. Mr. Merrifield was chaplain in the first World war, attended. The Rev. Mr. Merrifield preached the sermon.

Jacque Merrifield, 23 years old, was killed in action Dec. 30 while fighting with his tank unit in the Philippines under command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Last Sunday the Rev. Mr. Merrifield received official word of his son's death, and told his congregation of the message at the close of the services that day.

FACTS ON SUGAR: STOCKS ON HAND AND 1942 CROPS

States. Cuban sugar will be used to replace supplies that England and Russia got from Java and the Ukraine. Moreover, large quantities of Cuban sugar will be needed for manufacture of high test molasses, from which alcohol is produced, the equivalent of more than 1,300,000 tons being used for this purpose in 1941.

SOURCE.	—In short tons.— 1941.	1942.
Domestic beet	1,940,000	1,750,000
Domestic cane	408,000	150,000
Philippines	854,000	......
Hawaii	903,000	500,000
Puerto Rico	993,000	1,100,000
Virgin Islands	5,000	5,000
Cuba	2,696,000	1,070,000
Other imports	190,000	35,000
Frozen stocks, others	....	390,000
Totals	7,989,000	5,300,000

This tabulation was given by Henderson in the press release announcing the extension of sugar rationing of every consumer in the United States. Against the available supplies of 5,300,000 tons, Henderson set forth figures on actual consumption in 1940 and 1941 of 6,700,000 tons and 7,500,000 tons, respectively.

"These facts mean," Henderson stated, "that both overall industrial and household uses of sugar must be cut about one-third below the very high per capita totals reached in 1941. Altho the decline in household consumption now anticipated represents a 33 per cent drop from the very high 1941 level, it is only about 22 per cent below the 1938 figure when household consumption averaged 64 pounds per capita."

APPRAISAL: OTHER VIEWS

Trade Experts and Others Doubt Henderson's Estimate

Are we faced with the serious scarcity of sugar implied in the figures presented by Henderson? Sugar trade experts do not believe so. Nor, it is indicated, do other government experts believe that the condition is so bad as Henderson pictures it.

Henderson omitted mention of sugar stocks on hand at the beginning of the year, which the department of commerce estimated at 2 million tons, or nearly one-third of a year's supply. Nor was reference made to the substantial stocks of sugar accumulated in the last two years by large consumers who sought to protect themselves against a possible increase in prices. All authorities, including the government statisticians, agree that there are large invisible supplies which do not appear in the stocks listed in government reports.

Crux of Controversy.

The Commodity Research bureau, New York, a highly regarded research and statistical agency, estimates that stocks on hand on Jan. 1, including supplies in the hands of importers and refiners and invisible reserves held by larger users, aggregated 3,879,000 short tons.

The crux of the controversy about supplies, all authorities agree, is the quantity of sugar which will be supplied by Cuba and Puerto Rico. The research bureau estimates that supplies from these sources will aggregate 3,372,000 tons. Henderson allowed for only 2,170,000 tons. Other trade sources estimate the Cuban and Puerto Rican imports at 2,765,000.

Using the latter figure and avoiding the extreme estimates, the following tabulation of available supplies has been prepared:

		SHORT TONS.
Stocks held by refiners and importers on Jan. 1		2,000,000
Invisible stocks [held by food manufacturers, industrial users, and wholesalers]		800,000
Cuban crop, tons	4,300,000
For England, Russia, and Canada	1,000,000
High test molasses	1,500,000
Other exports	65,000
Cuban home use	200,000	1,535,000
Hawaii		500,000
Puerto Rico		1,230,000
Virgin Islands		8,000
Domestic cane		450,000
Domestic beet		1,900,000
Other imports		35,000
Total supplies		8,458,000

Except for existing stocks, Cuba, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and domestic beet production, the figures used in the above compilation correspond with those used in Henderson's tabulation. In estimating beet sugar production, 150,000 tons is added to Henderson's estimate based on the claims made by the beet sugar industry, whose spokesmen say it can raise its production this year to 2½ million tons if needed.

Consumption of sugar in the United States exceeded 7 million tons in 1941 for the first time. The record of consumption prior to 1941 for a period of years [as indicated by deliveries to consumers] follows:

	TONS.		TONS.
1940	6,846,000	1933	6,316,000
1939	6,769,000	1932	6,248,000
1938	6,715,000	1929	6,963,000
1937	6,820,000	1926	*6,797,000
1936	6,617,000	1919	4,875,000
1935	6,399,000	1918	4,189,000
1934	6,153,000	1917	4,414,000

*Peak consumption of 117 pounds per capita.

With supplies of 8,458,000 tons in sight, the United States can meet all prospective needs, trade authorities state, and still carry over into 1943 stocks adequate to cushion against any emergency. This can be done after making liberal provision for Russia and England, whose normal supplies have been curtailed by the war.

How to make a WAR GARDEN

BY GAIL COMPTON.

Gardeners planning to grow a war garden this spring will find considerable pleasure and profit in starting some of their vegetables early in flats or seedboxes in the house.

Altho many of the vegetables that are started in the garden as plants can be purchased in the spring from greenhouses and grocery stores, the homeowner can make sure of getting strong, hardy plants by growing them at home.

Such home garden crops as cabbage and celery should be grown in flats so that the gardener may have an early supply. Tomatoes, peppers, lettuce, eggplant, and melons benefit greatly from the protection of the flat as it increases the length of the growing season. Even cucumbers, beets, snap beans, and sweet corn can be started indoors.

Easy to Make Seedboxes.

It is a simple matter to make a seedbox that will give the vegetables weeks of growth before the garden itself is ready. A seedbox, well watered and placed in a south or east window, will prove a reliable aid to good gardening.

If the seedbox is built tightly it is advisable to drill holes in the bottom to assist drainage. If the holes are covered with a porus material the soil will not leach thru. If there are cracks between the boards they can be used as the drainage outlets.

The soil in the seedbox should be about three inches deep. It should be pressed down firmly. The seeds should be sown in rows about an inch apart.

South or East Exposure.

The seedbox should be covered with a damp cloth after the seeds have been sown. When the first sprouts appear the cloth should be removed and a pane of glass placed over the top of the box. Be sure the flat gets south or east window exposure and that the air in the room is humid.

During the day the edge of the glass over the flat can be propped up so that air can circulate over the soil. Keep the soil moist but not wet or waterlogged. When the seedlings have formed their second pair of leaves they can be transplanted to a larger box where they will have more room. This will prevent crowding.

The plants can be set in the open garden when they have developed four leaves and the weather conditions are proper. Use a trowel to remove the plants from the flat, making sure that all the roots are taken up. The soil should be packed around the roots tightly when they are set in their new locations.

OVEN COMPANY'S PLANT DAMAGED BY $25,000 FIRE

A 5-11 fire yesterday seriously damaged the two story, 300 foot square building housing the Hubbard Oven company at 1134 Belden avenue and threatened to spread to an adjacent lumber yard.

The fire, of undetermined origin, started in the north end of the building, swept thru the interior and destroyed the oven making equipment. Fire Marshal Thomas Scanlon of the 6th division estimated the damage at $25,000.

The firm manufactured ovens for army camps, according to F. C. Panuska, president. He said no one was at work when the fire was discovered. Assistant Corporation Counsel Earl Downes will start an investigation this morning.

HONOR MEMBERS OF N. U. HOSPITAL UNIT TOMORROW

Members of the Northwestern university medical school's general hospital No. 12 will be honored tomorrow night at a dinner to be given by alumni of the medical and dental schools at the Monroe street harbor of the Chicago Yacht club. Members of the hospital unit, most of whom are doctors on the faculty of the Northwestern university medical school, will report for duty Feb. 15. Dean J. Roscoe Miller of the medical school, Dean Charles W. Freeman of the dental school, and Drs. M. Herbert Barker and Michael Mason, who will head the general hospital unit, will speak at the dinner meeting.

HIGH WIND TURNS LAKE FRONT INTO ICY WONDERLAND

High winds transformed Lake Michigan's shore line into an endless scene of winter beauty yesterday. The winds lifted moisture from the waves and showered it in a frozen spray upon the shore, giving a delicate beauty to trees and shrubs, and even to rude pilings along the lake. Altho the day was cold, the sun shone brightly down upon the wintry picture, and many Chicagoans enjoyed walks along the shore. They found the occasional cloud formations no less fascinating than the ice sprayed lake front.

DIES OF FALL INJURIES.

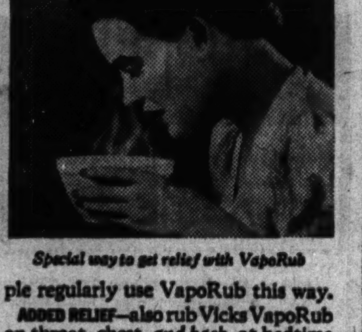
When Acute Colds Choke You Up, Cause Coughing Spasms

HERE'S some good sound advice ... when a choking, nagging cold makes your nose runny, stuffs up your head and causes coughing spasms that make you miserable ... relieve misery this SPECIAL, HOME-PROVED VICKS WAY.

Boil some water—pour it into a bowl. Add a heaping spoonful of VapoRub. Then breathe in the steaming medicinal vapors.

From the first breath you can feel relief come as VapoRub's medication is carried deep into the breathing passages of nose, throat and chest. It soothes the irritation—quiets the coughing—helps clear congestion in the upper bronchial tubes, head, nose and throat.

Once you enjoy the results of this special medicated vapors treatment you will realize why so many people regularly use VapoRub this way.



Special way to get relief with VapoRub

ADDED RELIEF—also rub Vicks VapoRub on throat, chest, and back, at bedtime to get the two-way benefits of its soothing medicated vapors and comforting poultice action while you sleep.

CAPITAL CROWDS SEE SKYSCRAPER SKELETON BURNED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Four hundred firemen battled a raging blaze that destroyed the framework and buckled the steel skeleton of an 11 story skyscraper under construction three blocks north of the White House today, attracting thousands of spectators.

The fire apparently started in apparatus used by workmen and a 40 to 60 mile wind fanned it into a fierce sheet of flame which swept the entire structure. Preliminary estimates placed the damage at $500,000.

The fire raged an hour and a half before it was brought under control. Huge slabs of concrete thundered to the ground from the unfinished building as their supports were burned away. The structure, covering the entire block on 16th street between K and L streets, was started last April and had been scheduled for completion in July.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Fireman, Injured in Fall at Engine House, Dies

Joseph Prendergast, 35 years old, a city fireman for the last six years, died yesterday in his home at 8121 South Loomis street of injuries suffered Jan. 23 in a fall in the engine house at Lake and Dearborn streets. Prendergast, a member of inhalator squad No. 1, fell from a radiator while washing windows. He was treated at Henrotin hospital and then taken to his home.

CIGAR STORE ROBBED.

Herman Stein, operator of a cigar store at 3010 Wabansia avenue, was robbed of $175 in cash, jewelry valued at $122, and cigarets valued at $153 Saturday, he reported to police yesterday.

RAILROAD FARES AND THE WARTIME EMERGENCY

AS EVERYBODY KNOWS this country has set in motion the greatest armament program in history.

It will be up to the Railroads of America to keep that production rolling.

For only railroads can handle such weight and bulk and move troops in large numbers swiftly and safely.

With their present equipment and facilities, the railroads have set a record which led a leader in Congress, Clarence F. Lea, Chairman of the Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee of the House of Representatives, to state publicly, "In all the world no job is being better done today than by the American railroads."

In the next 12 months, the railroads are planning to add to their equipment approximately 114,000 all-steel freight cars, and nearly a thousand new modern locomotives. This will require the outlay of hundreds of millions of dollars.

Like all other businesses the railroads are paying more for everything they need and use—fuel, food, materials, supplies.

In addition, the railroads will pay yearly over $300,000,000 higher wages as a result of the recommendations last Fall of the Emergency Board created by the President.

When it rendered its findings, the President's Emergency Board said:

"... we are unable affirmatively to find, on the basis of the record, that the Class I railroads are now enjoying, or presently will succeed in enjoying, revenues in excess of those needed to permit them to render the service which the country is now calling upon them to render.

"...we feel obliged to say that our recommended increases in railroad wages have been made on the assumption that the railroads can secure needed relief from resulting inadequate net revenues by obtaining permission to increase their transportation rates."

In order to meet partly the greatly increased costs and demands placed upon them by the march of events, the railroads found it necessary to petition the Interstate Commerce Commission for an increase in freight rates and passenger fares.

The increase in passenger fares has been granted, the Commission finding that "... the increase in fares proposed is necessary to enable petitioners to continue to render adequate and efficient railway transportation service during the present emergency ..."

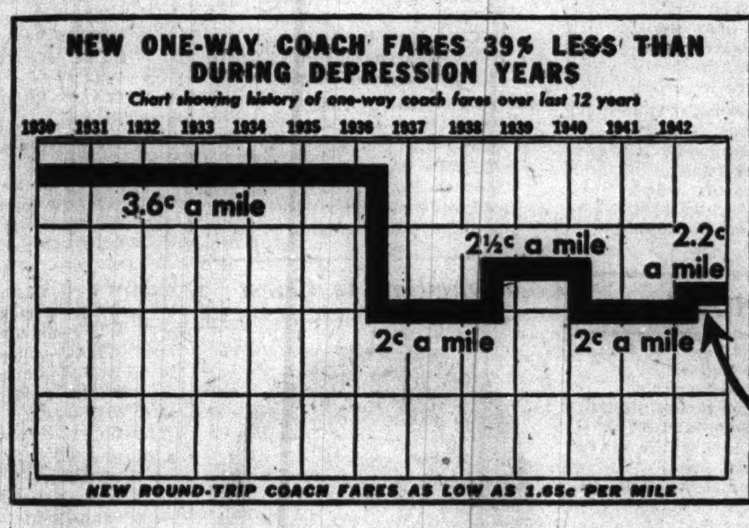
The change, effective February 10, amounts to only a fraction of a cent per mile. One-way coach fares will be increased from 2 cents to 2.2 cents per mile. One-way railroad fares for Pullman travel from 3 cents to 3.3 cents per mile. Round-trip fares will enable you to enjoy coach travel for as little as 1.65 cents per mile.

In themselves, the increases are slight. The public will still continue to enjoy fast, safe, dependable transportation at low cost (see chart). But in the aggregate, the increases will help the railroads do what the public counts on them to do.

We believe the public recognizes that in times like these railroads face many problems. Costs are one. Service is another.

Sudden troop movements on a large scale may take a heavy share of passenger car equipment, both coaches and Pullman. In consequence, a passenger may have to take an upper berth instead of a lower berth or private room. Overtaxed telephone facilities may entail some delay in reservations. Badly needed war supplies may command the right of way over all other non-military train movements, causing a regularly scheduled train to be late.

Again, while steel priorities have been given for building freight cars and locomotives, none so far has been granted for new passenger cars. The railroads must get along with their present passenger car equipment, at least for the time being.



In the light of these conditions, therefore, we ask the public to bear with us and to accept any inconvenience due to the National Emergency, with patience and understanding.

RADIO FAVORITES OF OTHER YEARS BACK ON THE AIR

Some Transfer Activities to New Fields.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The return of Phil Baker and Arthur Tracy, the Street Singer, to the air after long absences suggests a check-up on missing favorites of other seasons. Ed Wynn is reported ready for another try. He proposes to play a character part this time instead of a yelling clown.

Walter O'Keefe is trying to place a new comedy series he calls Hizzoner, the Mayor. Ray Knight, conductor of the old Cuckoos' hour, is acting in a daytime serial, "House in the Country," in New York. Jack Pearl is spending the money he made in radio. Tom Howard has been on a theater tour. The Stroud Twins have split up. Clarence is touring with a training camp show; Claude is writing radio material.

Col. Stoopnagle is making occasional guest appearances, and his former partner, Bud Hulick, plays the name part in Meet Mr. Meek. Parkyakarkus, whom Eddie Cantor fanned to fame, is in Boston, retired apparently so far as radio is concerned. Ben Bernie, who recently concluded a radio series, is on a theater tour. So much for the comedians.

Morton Downey and Dick Powell, who recently made guest appearances on W-G-N, are touring night clubs and theaters, respectively. Connie Boswell is on tour, too. Jane Froman, a great radio favorite of other days, has been sticking to the supper clubs lately.

Gale Page, who quit the movies, is making occasional guest appearances on the air. Dorothy Page, songstress, does occasional work on the west coast. Russell Pratt of the erstwhile team of the Two Doctors, Pratt and Sherman, is reported at KDKA, Pittsburgh. Jack Fulton is at WLW, Cincinnati; Vaughan DeLeath at WKY, Oklahoma City.

Wendell Hall is writing songs and musical announcements. Ruth Etting is in retirement in California. Vera Van and Loretta Lee have married and settled down to home life. Ireene Wicker is not doing her Singing Lady program any more. She works in radio dramas and in television in New York. Jerry Cooper, Phil Regan and Nick Lucas are singing in night clubs. Donald Novis has lately finished a movie.

OFFICERS SCAN CHECKS DRAWN BY PROMOTER

Numerous checks drawn by J. Dewey Abraham, the promoter who surrendered to the state's attorney last week and admitted his operations were most imaginary, were being examined yesterday by Assistant State's Attorney Vernon Thompson.

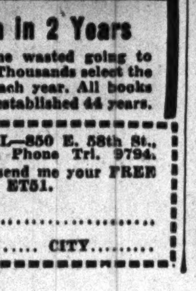
Many persons who received monthly amounts from Abraham have made no complaint that they were victimized, Prosecutor Thompson declared. He said it is possible these persons were repaid in full, including interest at a substantial rate.

Abraham's records, as far as had been examined yesterday, showed he had distributed $116,684 to his investors in 1940, about $144,000 in 1941, had made payments in January of this year, but could not pay off those due Feb. 1.

"He has confessed numerous peculations," Thompson said. "There is evidence on which he can be tried on charges of obtaining money by means of the confidence game and also larceny."

CRYING BABY DIES; NURSE ACCUSED OF GIVING IT DRUG

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Irma Twiss, a Bronx maternity hospital nurse who authorities said admitted feeding opium to two newly born babies to stop their crying, was held on a charge of homicide today after one baby died.



Irma Twiss.

Martin Kraus, assistant district attorney, said she told him she placed several drops of an opium solution in the formulas given at midnight last night to the two babies "because their crying drove me crazy."

A physician at the hospital found one baby dead in its crib at 2 a. m. The other infant was in a serious condition. Both babies were girls.

INSTALMENT XXXI.

MESSAGE INTERRUPTED.

Antony said, "What did the man who telephoned say besides 'Cornelius?'"

Miss Marsden looked startled.

"That's all he said."

Antony said, "What?" again.

She nodded mournfully.

"That's just it. There was a sort of crash and the line went dead. And I was going to tell Mr. Hope, but he came back frightfully busy and cross, and I thought perhaps he'd say I oughtn't to have answered the telephone, so I didn't. And there didn't seem to be much to tell anyway—did there?"

"You didn't tell Col. Garrett?"

"O, no. Ought I to have? There wasn't any message, and I thought, 'Well, if he wants him he can always ring up again'."

It was at this moment that the door opened and Garrett walked in. He wore mustard colored tweeds, and a bowler hat on the back of his head, but his expression was, for him, benign. It changed as Antony walked to meet him and said:

"How do you mean, tried to get me?" said Garrett in a belligerent voice. He threw his hat onto a chair.

Antony said: "On the telephone—this morning about 10.' He turned to Miss Marsden, who had begun to look terrified. "Was that about the time?"

She said, "Y-yes."

"Cornelius?" said Garrett. "What did he want? And why wasn't I told?"

"You'd better tell him now," said Antony.

When Miss Marsden had stammered thru her story again the storm broke. By the time Antony managed to make himself heard they had tears to contend with. Miss Marsden cried exactly like a baby, her eyes wide open and enormous drops rolling down to the corners of her mouth. When Antony put his hand on her shoulder she turned a quivering upward gaze to his. The hand shook her slightly.

"Stop crying!"

With miraculous suddenness the drops ceased to flow. Antony said:

"That's right. Now listen! You say the man sounded as if he had been running. I suppose you mean he was out of breath."

She nodded.

"Sort of gaspy."

"As if he was—ill?" Antony spoke slowly, watching her face. Or—hurt?"

There was a faint, startled reaction.

"O." And then, "He might have been."

"And then, you say, there was a crash and the line went dead; can you give us any idea what sort of a crash it was?"

"It was a—a crash," said Miss Marsden helpfully. She had quite stopped crying, and there was even a gleam of interest in her eyes. From a couple of yards away Col. Garrett surveyed her with sardonic fury.

Antony remained calm.

"Yes, but there are a lot of different kinds of crashes. Just try and think back. You answered the telephone. A man had just asked for Col. Garrett in a panting voice—you would call it a panting voice?"

"Yes—sort of."

"As if he were in distress?"

"O, yes—that's just how it sounded."

"Then you asked his name, and he said, 'Cornelius.' Was that in the same panting voice?"

"O, yes, it was."

"And then there was this crash. Now think what sort of a crash it was."

"I don't know."

The hand shook her again.

"Think! O, yes, you can. Think back! What did it sound like—like a man falling—a chair going over—some one being hit plonk—or the receiver coming down with a crack?"

Miss Marsden's gaze was beautifully blank. Antony put some force into his grip.

"Four sorts of crash. A man would go down with a thud. A chair or any other bit of furniture would make more noise—harder, sharper. If some one knocked the man out, there'd be the plonk of bone hitting bone. And the receiver coming down would be just a sharp crack. You can't help knowing that one anyhow. Now which of those four is the nearest to what you heard?"

Miss Marsden brightened.

"Do you think some one hit him?" she inquired with interest.

Col. Garrett violently dragged a bandanna out of his pocket. It failed to muffle a loud derisive "Tchah!"

Antony cast him a look of reproach. He himself could have murdered the girl with pleasure, but where was that going to get them? He said:

"I'm not thinking—I'm asking you."

For the first time she appeared to be going thru some kind of mental process.

"I suppose there were a lot of sounds really. It might have been some one coming into the room and pushing something over and the receiver falling down. I couldn't say for certain, but I know I thought at the time what a lot of noise they were making——"

"They?"

She gazed at him.

"Did you think there was more than one person there?"

"O, yes, I did—at least, I suppose I must have done, because I did think what a lot of noise they were making."

Garrett blew his nose like a trumpeting elephant. Finality appeared to have been reached.

Antony took Miss Marsden to the door, put her out, and shut it on her instant flight. Then he came back and asked a single question:

"Do you think Cornelius is dead?"

"Shouldn't be surprised," he said.

After a prolonged pause Antony said:

"Damfool nonsense!"

"I ought to have got help and gone back to Silverthorn road at once. He was being followed. They got him."

"He was following you. Perfectly free agent, wasn't he? And avoiding both of us."

Antony nodded.

"That's it, Frank—that's why I didn't like to butt in. The fact is, I've been afraid of what I might walk into. There's something I don't understand—this business about my being dead. Cornelius went down day before yesterday and told Delia I was dead. He repeated this yesterday and pitched her a highly circumstantial tale which came quite near the truth except for the fact that a gestapo bullet cut my arm instead of getting me in a lethal place. But the night before he was following me back from your flat. If he thought I was dead, whom did he suppose he was following, and why was he doing it? I just can't make it fit in."

Garrett walked round the table and sat down. His eyes were like points of steel, his manner that of a terrier at a rat hole.

"Sure it was Cornelius?" he said.

Antony looked startled.

"No, I'm not sure. I thought it was. That's all I'm really sure about—I thought it was Cornelius."

"When he was following you—or when you found him in the porch?"

"I never thought about it being Cornelius when he was following me. There was simply nothing to go on. It was later, when I was following him, that I saw him in one of those flashes and thought it was Cornelius."

"You didn't see his face?"

"No."

Garrett banged the table.

"Then what made you think it was Cornelius?"

W-G-N PROGRAM GIVES SALUTE TO KELLY HIGH

Thomas Kelly High school was saluted yesterday on the Citizens of Tomorrow program over W-G-N. More than 600 students, headed by their principal, Mrs. May C. Allen, participated in the program. The girls' chorus, under the direction of Miss Hazel A. Dallach, provided the music. Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies, added two more names to the honor roll—Edward Malover of Kelly High school, who was interviewed, and Lois Bimling of Dixon, Ill.

THIS GREAT MEDICINE—
First Sips Must Relieve Your BAD COUGH

—OR YOUR MONEY BACK!

For years thousands upon thousands of Doctors' Prescriptions called for Pertussin—the same effective yet inexpensive Pertussin you can get today from your druggist. It promptly relieves distress of bronchial, croupy, or night coughs—caused by colds.

The first spoonfuls of Pertussin often bring amazing relief because it's scientifically prepared to work internally. It acts at once to relieve your coughing spell. It increases natural secretions in respiratory tract to soothe dry cough-torn membranes. It improves ciliary action and loosens sticky phlegm so it's more easily raised. Pertussin is free from dope, chloroform and coal tar products. Safe and mighty effective for both young and old!

Physical Fitness.

We know a young lady who, altho in the very pink of condition, recently has become obsessed with the Alice Marble credo of OCD physical fitness. Something, she kept telling herself, should be done to build up her physique, and after much consideration she decided to do bending exercises every morning. So begin she did, with her grave 3 year old son, Michael, as audience. As she bent, she counted. "One-two, three-four, five-six, seven-eight, nine-ten——" and she paused for breath. And from the high chair came the solemn voice of her son, prodding her onward, "Big fat hen."

Of Signatures.

Then there was the Chicago boy, 17 years old, who enlisted in the army and, writing to his mother, signed his note, "Your Pvt. son, Herbie."

The Baroness Rudlieb.

When the Arts club opened its exhibition of the work of nine American artists last week, many gathered around a canvas entitled Baroness Rutlieb. Just who, everyone asked, is she? Well, the baroness is a dusky-skinned individual, an elegant creature with cerise anemones and purple laurel leaves entwined in her topknot, a blue veil tossed roguishly around the shoulders of her pinkish-lavender dress and long, black gloves on her hands. From one hand dangles a tiny gold heart on a chain.

The baroness' history is as fantastic as her face. Karl Priebe, a young Milwaukee artist, who has crescendoed into recognition, painted her, but not from life, for he has yet to paint from a model. The baroness was an eccentric character in a book by the late Ronald Firbank, the erudite English esthete who supposedly set the example for Aldous Huxley. Young Priebe, who at 27 has the mellowness of Santayana, a low musical voice and a quizzical left eyebrow that looks like a double S, long has been so steeped in Firbank's work that he finds himself unconsciously painting all Firbank's characters.

We aren't quite certain why we go to such length to divulge this rather remarkable devotion to a purely fictitious character except that the baroness has a certain kinship to four of Priebe's other pictures, all called The Hat. He saw these fantasies on Negro heads in Chicago's south side a week or so ago and whipped them onto canvas when asked to show at the Arts club. As a matter of fact, altho he has been showing at the Art institute since he was 19, he is a research ethnologist and paints because he can't stop, which seems reasonable enough. He often does stop, abandoning all his brushes, and then suddenly is at it again with whirlwind concentration. Any one familiar with his work can spot it a gallery away. He usually paints Negroes in fantastic mood, but with a delicate, almost evanescent technique.

"But last summer," he drawls quietly, "I went real commercial. I did portraits of two white people."

Johnny and the Bishop.

John Farnham Jr. was 7 and visiting his maternal grandmother in Redwing, Minn. Bishop Keeler, bishop coadjutor of the Episcopal diocese of Minnesota, who once was rector of St. Chrysostom's here, also was a house guest, there to conduct a confirmation service. It was Sunday, and the two were breakfasting together. The conversation:

"Hello, Bish. What's your job?"

"Well, Johnny, I'm a minister. Does that mean anything to you?"

"No, I'm afraid not, Johnny."

"Well, you must be middle-aged."

"Well, I am 48."

"Gee." A long pause, then, "Say, what are you going to do this morning? You know what we have to do? We have to go to church!"

Valentine's Day Prelude; Reveal 4 Engagements

BY JUDITH CASS.

VALENTINE'S DAY may be five days off, but Cupid has stolen a march over the week-end in four north shore families. Lake Forest neighbors of the Knight Cheney Cowleses and of the R. Douglas Stuarts learned of the engagement of Miss Edith Cowles to Joseph Nathaniel Greene Jr. and of Miss Margaret Jane Stuart to Augustine S. Hart Jr.

Two betrothals revealed on Saturday in the east are of interest here, for Miss June Perry is the fiancée of Ensign Edward Ely Mack Jr. of Glencoe, and Miss Ann Corson Ellis, who is engaged to John Hare Powel, is a niece of the G. Corson Ellises of Lake Forest.

Miss Cowles' Engagement Told at Lake Forest Tea.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowles announced their elder daughter's engagement at a tea on Saturday in Lake Forest. Mr. Greene Jr. and his stepfather and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Whitfield Pervere of North Andover, Mass., were here for the party, but Mr. Greene Sr. was unable to come from his home in Birmingham, Ala. An unexpected guest was Miss Elizabeth Cheney Cowles, Miss Edith's younger sister, who surprised her family by coming home from Sarah Lawrence college.

Miss Edith Cowles already has left her classes at Sarah Lawrence, as she and young Mr. Greene plan to be married within six weeks. They will live in Washington, D. C., where he is connected with the department of state.

Before entering Sarah Lawrence, Miss Cowles studied at Chatham hall and at Concord academy. She made her debut during the Christmas holidays of 1939 at a supper-dance at the Blackstone and at a tea in Lake Forest. She and her sister are granddaughters of Mrs. Francis D. Smith of Colorado Springs, Colo., and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Cowles. Their great-grandfather, who also was named Alfred Cowles, was an associate of Joseph Medill, who founded THE TRIBUNE.

Young Mr. Greene prepared at Hotchkiss for Yale university, where he was a member of Wolf's Head and of Torch Honor society. He roomed with two Lake Foresters, Albert B. Dick III. and Philip F. W. Peck Jr., whom he has visited here. Mr. Greene is a grandson of Mrs. Nicholas M. Pond of Milford, Conn. and of Mrs. Lewis D. Greene of Birmingham.

Fiance of Miss Stuart Unable to Leave Post.

The Stuarts gave no party to announce their daughter's engagement, since young Mr. Hart couldn't come from his southern army post. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hart, live in New York.

Miss Stuart chose an informal barn dance in Millburn in place of a formal debut during the 1940 season. She attended Miss Hall's school in Pittsfield, Mass., and is studying this year at the University of Chicago. During the first part of the school year she stayed with her grandmother, Mrs. Robert Stuart, on the south side, but now has moved to International House.

The Stuarts' other children are Miss Anne, Miss Harriet, and R. Douglas Stuart Jr. It was thru Mr. Stuart Jr. that his sister met her fiancé, as the two young men were at Princeton together in the class of 1937. Just after the junior Stuarts returned this month from Sun Valley, young Mr. Stuart reported for duty in the army. His wife, the former Barbara Edwards, hopes to follow him to his southern post.

Brotherhood Week Opens Next Sunday; Plan Observances

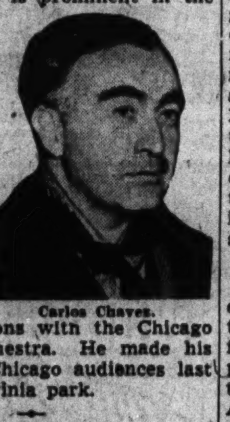
The ninth annual observance of Brotherhood week, under the auspices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, will formally open next Sunday. Dr. James M. Yard, executive secretary of the Chicago round table of the national conference, said that thruout the city, schools, churches, civic clubs, Legion posts, synagogues, and churches are preparing programs for the week.

In his proclamation, Gov. Dwight H. Green asserted that the spirit of the week "is most hartening." He stated that never before in the country's history has the brotherhood of man meant so much to the people of the country. Observances will include the service Friday night, Feb. 20, at Washington Boulevard temple, where Rabbis Samuel Schwartz and W. Gunther Plaut have invited the Rev. Dr. Oswald W. S. McCall of New First Congregational church, Washington and Ashland boulevards, to be the special preacher.

Rabbi Felix Mendelsohn of Temple Beth Israel, and the Rev. T. F. Rutledge Beale of Wellington Avenue Congregational church, will exchange pulpits. The congregation of the Wellington avenue church will attend services at Temple Beth Israel, Fri-night, and the latter will attend next Sunday morning's services in the Wellington avenue church.

Carlos Chavez Arrives to Lead Symphony in Own Compositions

Carlos Chavez, Mexico's composer-conductor who is prominent in the promotion of Pan-American cultural relations, will make his second Chicago appearance Thursday and Friday evenings when he will conduct three of his own compositions with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He made his debut before Chicago audiences last summer at Ravinia park.



Carlos Chavez.

To prepare for his return engagement the Mexican musician arrived here yesterday aboard the Alton road's Abraham Lincoln in the Union station. He stepped from the train hatless and voluble, a stocky, dark-haired man of tremendous vitality, and expressed his ideas on Pan-American friendship.

"Obvious attempts to create a feeling of Pan-Americanism are very dangerous," he asserted, "for friendship cannot be forced. The best way is for us to realize that we have a common western culture already existing and which has always existed because North and South America are about the same age. Culturally we naturally hang together and by cultivating each other's music, art, and literature we can gain a full understanding of the whole western hemisphere."

Chavez is head of the Mexican government's chamber of fine arts, director of the National conservatory, and founder and conductor of the Symphony Orchestra of Mexico. He introduced the first modern North American music to Mexico audiences 15 years ago.

Shops Go Red, Pink and White for Valentine's

BY REA SEEGER.

The town is red, pink, and white with sentimental distractions ready for valentine remembrances. While everything and anything from the costume accessory collections is particularly suitable loot for the hearts and flowers day, jewelry rates highest position in the affections of the girls. Tiny heart shaped earrings of combined small red simulated rubies and rhinestones are especially appealing, as are the bright red enamel hearts matched to a large clip pin, all three pieces pierced with a Cupid's arrow right thru the heart itself.

Some of the newest hearts are made of colored enamel then outlined in small handmade forget-me-nots in white. These flowers stand up away from the heart and look so real every one sniffs at first sight. The colors are pale blue, pink, green, red, or white. Pin them on the sleeve or on a suit lapel for the most appreciative applause or comment. Gold metal hearts, lover's-knots and bow-knots are other valentine motifs worked in gold metal.

If jewelry does not click try the clever new felt flowers for lapel duty. Huge red camellias, red gardenias, lilies, and the same things in cool white make unusual fake flowers to pass muster any place. Filmy lace trimmed handkerchiefs carefully stuffed in a heart shaped valentine envelope, pale pink doeskin gloves, thin, sheer stockings, and frilly cuffs and collar sets are other tempting trifles ready for the annual fête day of Master Dan Cupid and the gentlemen who crave his aid.

Group Opposed to Joint Tax Returns Meets Today

With the purpose of planning renewed opposition to legislation making joint income tax returns by husbands and wives mandatory, the Committee to Keep Joint Income Tax Returns Optional will hold a luncheon meeting at 12:30 o'clock today at the Chicago Bar association, 29 South La Salle street. The meeting will be open to all women holding the committee's views. Heading the group is Miss B. Fain Tucker, president of the Women's Bar Association of Illinois.

Women in War Work

By India Moffett

[The Women in War Work department will report on woman's activities in war and defense work and will answer questions of women who wish to take part in these activities.]

Women who would like to do war work thru the YWCA are urged to call Franklin 0760 for an appointment with a member of the new war service coördinating committee headed by Mrs. Howard Goodman. There a special need for volunteer first aid teachers, group leaders, clerical workers, recreation leaders, typists, and interviewers, Mrs. Goodman reports. Working with Mrs. Goodman while the committee is busy with organization is Miss Marguerite Riegel, formerly one of the executives of the Chicago YWCA, who has been with the Baltimore YWCA.

Mrs. Howard Goodman

The purpose of the committee, explained Mrs. Goodman, is to increase the speed, smoothness, and efficiency with which the YWCA coöperates with defense organizations, both public and private; to provide YWCA representation on appropriate committees, boards, and commissions; and to recruit, train, and place volunteers who wish to participate in the defense program thru the YWCA.

The association is already active in seven areas of defense service thru its physical fitness, nutrition, and consumer education programs, its service to women in defense industries, its hospitality to service men, and in coöperation with the Red Cross and the USO. The coordinating committee will help this work and study possibilities for direct coöperation with the defense savings staff and other defense agencies.

Still in answer to M. R. T. Mrs. Alice Manning Dickey [Mrs. Roy Dickey] about whom you asked, is not engaged in any war or defense work yet, altho she said yesterday she hoped to do some practical work as soon as she could find out what was needed. As president of the Cordon club, she is extremely busy, but she hopes to enlist all the members in some work of value shortly. It certainly was practical work that

—By India Moffett—

Mrs. Dickey did during the last war when she was chairman of registration for Chicago women in the National Council of Defense.

"We did many futile things then, as well as useful ones," Mrs. Dickey recalled, "and I suppose the same is true today?"

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank "of Liberty Loan fame" is not doing any war work now, for she is recuperating from her labors as national vice chairman of the America First organization. She is on a ranch near Monterrey, Mexico. When she returns home about March 1 she expects to embark with enthusiasm on whatever venture seems to need her the most, and to be of the most importance.

Miss Harriet Vittum, whom M. R. T. recalled as the "silver tongued speaker," is still speaking for projects in which she is interested, just as she did during the World war. The Northwestern University Settlement, of which she has been head resident for about 35 years, is her chief interest, of course, but she also is working for the Civilian Defense commission and the Chicago Recreation commission.

Alumni and friends of Northwestern university will receive messages from students this week urging them to buy defense bonds and stamps. Hundreds of co-eds have been mobilized to write, telephone, or call on five or more persons before Saturday in a special five day campaign. As its part in the program the university is asking its alumni to make their annual gifts to the school in stamps and bonds instead of cash. Others are urged to present some of the stamps they buy to the Century plan for the stabilization of Northwestern's extensive wartime activity.

Among the co-eds who are participating in the campaign are Joyce Kennett, 6341 Sheridan road; Bette Claypool, Oak Park; Mary Cunningham, Kenilworth; Mary Blake, Wooster, O.; Justine Miller, St. Louis, Mo.; Sallie Peelle, Richmond, Ind.; Valerie Adams, Wilmette; Virginia Nickel, Winnetka; Leone Jensen, Highland Park, and Roberta Shinn, River Forest.

Specific advice on the part Chicago women can play in defense work will be given by Mrs. Edith W. Renneckar, field representative of the consumers' division of the Office of Price Control administration, at the luncheon meeting of the Lake Shore League of Women Voters at 12:30 o'clock today in the Harriet Hammond McCormick YWCA, 1001 North Dearborn street.

Two hundred soldiers in Company B, 81st quartermaster battalion at Fort Sheridan, have benefited from the motherly activities of members of Fort Dearborn chapter of the DAR in Evanston. Mrs. Wendall W. Hall, national defense chairman, and her committee of 12 appeared at the barracks last week with complete furnishings for the soldiers' day room. They hung 15 pairs of red, white, and blue curtains, arranged the furniture which included six couches, six easy chairs, four tables, and pictures, ottomans, mirrors, and lamps; and left a stack of attractively wrapped gifts for the soldiers to open in the evening.

The gifts were books, magazines, playing cards, and cigarets. Two vans were needed to collect the furniture donated by Ward Conover of the Edgewater Beach apartments and chapter members, Mrs. Hall reported.

Every woman with an instinct for saving things now can gratify that feeling without fear of criticism from the rest of the family. Today she is saving for national defense. One of the latest items which now finds its way into the salvage box is collapsible tubes. C. E. Koch, president of the American Beauty Products company, is urging beauty operators and their customers—which includes a majority of the women in this country—to save tubes.

Soprano and Negro Pianist Are Heard in Loop Recitals

BY CECIL SMITH.

Musical activity in the loop yesterday was restricted to two small afternoon recitals. In the Studebaker theater a friendly audience applauded Jesse Meriwether, Negro pianist, in a program of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Chopin, and Schubert-Liszt. Mr. Meriwether has a chaming singing tone at his command. Unfortunately, however, he frequently interrupts a melodic line by inept phrasing or false accentuation. When he seeks dynamic power, his tone is less well controled, and he is inclined to blur the music by using the pedal too generously.

Dorothy Grahn, lyric soprano, showed many evidences of taste and musical schooling in her debut recital in Kimball hall. Her voice is not yet ready for professional use, and she was seldom able to communicate her musical intentions in a manner satisfying to an impersonal auditor.

Good Morning!

. . . In which Judy O'Grady discovers by BEING the colonel's lady that she'd RATHER be — Judy O'Grady. . .

There—in that old nutshell—is the plot of "Lady For a Night."

The roof is hokum, the interior a conglomeration of nightclub and sob stuff and the Old South; the wheels—ten, twenty' thirt melodrama. . . .

Miss Blondell is seen as a night spot entertainer who holds forth on a Mississippi river gambling boat jointly owned by herself and Jack Morgan, a fascinating and politically powerful gambler. . . . Thru his efforts she is crowned queen of the annual carnival ball — which greatly gripes Memphis society ladies, most of whose husbands are deeply in Morgan's debt, and thus, compelled to do his bidding . . .

Mr. Morgan loves Jenny. . . . At the beginning of the story she doesn't know that she loves him. . . . She learns. . . .

Jenny has always yearned for what those on the other side of the tracks have—namely ROOTS. . . . It becomes her lot to discover that the Alderson family estate, "The Shadows," is about to be sold for taxes. . . . She makes a bargain with the Alderson scion, an embittered and reckless young man who's lost his all on her boat. . . . Thus:

"I have what you need. You have what I want. . . . Marry me and keep the old home. . . . Refuse me—and get out. . . ."

And so they are married. . . . It's a hard row the new Mrs. Alderson has to hoe. . . . The H. E. hinges on a murder. . . .

A glance at the cast assures you that you'll get considerable for your money in the performances of Miss Blondell—of course!—John Wayne—equally of course,—Blanche ["Ladies in Retirement"] Yurka, John Middleton and Philip Merivale. . . . Carmel Myers—once of the "silents" and as lovely as ever, has a brief speaking part. . . . Dorothy Burgess is there too—remember her?. . . . And the Hall Johnson Choir sings characteristically and pleasingly.

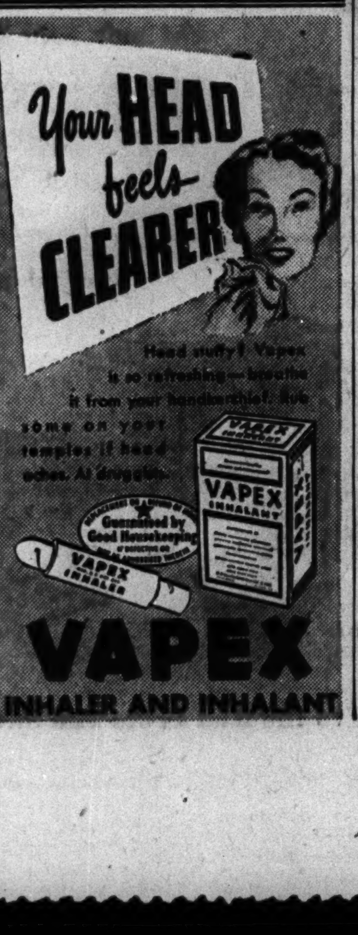
Women's Unit Gets $200,000 for Red Cross

More than $200,000 have been contributed to the Red Cross war relief budget campaign by women and women's clubs in the Chicago area, Miss Harriet McLaughlin, chairman of the women's division, reported yesterday.

The exact total reached by the division is $208,896 or 83 per cent of the minimum quota of $250,000 assigned to it by James B. Forgan, general chairman of the drive. The women's contributions bring the campaign to a grand total of $2,393,423 or 65 per cent of its goal.

Numerous gifts received by the division included an additional $1,108 from the Czech-American National Alliance making its total to date $6,726, $1,000 from the Chicago chapter of Hadassah, $357 from the Austin B'nai B'rith auxiliary, $175 from the Fastover American Ladies auxiliary and the Fastover American Aid society, $50 each from Les Filles de France and the Chicago Lithuanian Women's club, $47 from the Maywood Women's Golf club, $40 from St. Monica's guild, and $25 each from the Independent Sisters of Charity, the Daughters of Victory, the Lithuanian Brighton Park Women's club, and the Women's auxiliary of St. Paul's by the Lake church.



GASOLINE ALLEY—LOAVES AND FISHES

Looking at Hollywood

—By John Chapman—

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 8.—Sunday—In Phoenix, Ariz., where Gregory La Cava has Irene Dunne, Patric Knowles and a company on location for "Lady in a Jam." . . . Phoenix is full, not only of regular winter vacationers, but also of timid Californians who have moved inland. . . . At breakfast at Camelback inn I encountered Publisher Roy Howard, a regular vacationer. I've seen many a fancy Howard shirt in New York, but nothing like his cowboy outfit. Pearl Harbor could have waved him as a distress signal.

Monday—On the "Lady in a Jam" location near an old mine in the Superstition mountains, where the Lost Dutchman still awaits fortune hunters. . . . I hear that La Cava recently toured an air training center and had a workout in a Link trainer. Officers in charge told him he did well. He did a fine three-point landing—150 feet underground.

Tuesday—On the train last night—I called it the Seldom Pacific's Supersquaw—we encountered three Hollywoodians, two exhausted. Exhausted ones were Maggie Mascal of the Columbia press department, and Earl Theisen, photographer. Still fresh was Janet Blair, a ravishing young Columbia starlet. Janet had had a pictorial week-end in Arizona, posing in four trunkloads of clothes. In two days Earl had shot 29 dozen pictures—348 negatives—of the young lady and she was still bouncing and still pretty as a picture.

Wednesday—At the desk all day, to make up for gallivanting, but I do take an hour out to ask Buddy de Sylva how he has borne up under a year of being executive producer at Paramount. . . . In the evening with Humphrey Doulens to the opening of the Ballet Russe, which Columbia Concerts and F. Coppicus will soon be taking over from S. Hurok. Coppicus brought over the greatest Russian outfit, the Diaghileff Ballet. . . . Tonight's performance is okay.

Thursday—Another day at the desk, and in the evening to see "The Invaders," which Columbia is vastly excited about. I'm sorry that I can't get excited, too. Made mostly in Canada and partly in England, with a cast including Raymond Massey, Laurence Olivier, and Leslie Howard, "The Invaders" is a propaganda picture. The story concerns six German survivors of a U-boat in Hudson bay. In the beginning it is a honey of a documentary, fast and tightlike "Target for Tonight." Then it becomes a scenic travelogue as the Huns skulk about Canada dying one by one. Finally it becomes propaganda, with Massey and Howard having fine and true speeches about our way of life; but I think it is too favorable to the Germans.

Friday—Pickups: Sonja Henie's next will be "Iceland"—the real Iceland, not a skating rink. She works in a hash house there and John Payne is a soldier. Filming starts late in April.

Saturday—To RKO for a morning with Harold Lloyd, Kay Kyser, and Kay Garnett on the final "My Favorite Spy" set, which is a beautiful night club. . . . Back to the typewriter, and a phone call comes that Douglas Churchill, New York Times Hollywood correspondent, has died in Phoenix, Ariz.

Book Review.

The junior Arthur Meeker's recent book, "The Ivory Mischief," will be reviewed by Mrs. George B. Van Buren at 2 o'clock today on a current book program at the Woman's City Club of Chicago.

List Nominees for 1941 Best Movie Awards

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 8 (AP).—Bette Davis, twice winner of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences statuette for the best performance by an actress, has been nominated for a third "Oscar" for her work in 1941. She and Luise Rainer are the only two-time winners, so Miss Davis is the first potential three-time victor.

The famous gold trophies, known as Oscars, will be presented Feb. 26 at a dinner, with Wendell Willkie as guest of honor. Ballots for the final voting will be mailed Thursday.

None of the actors nominated this year is holder of an Oscar. They are Gary Cooper, "Sergeant York"; Cary Grant, "Penny Serenade"; Walter Huston, "All That Money Can Buy"; Robert Montgomery, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," and Orson Welles, "Citizen Kane."

Welles, who not only appeared in but directed "Citizen Kane," also was among the nominees for the best direction of the year and the picture was nominated as among the 10 best.

Picture nominations are "Blossoms in the Dust," M-G-M; "Citizen Kane," Mercury-RKO; "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," Columbia; "Hold Back the Dawn," Paramount; "How Green was My Valley," 20th Century-Fox; "The Little Foxes," Samuel Goldwyn-RKO; "The Maltese Falcon," "One Foot in Heaven," and "Sergeant York," all Warner Brothers, and "Suspicion," RKO.

Other nominations for the best direction include Alexander Hall, "Here Comes Mr. Jordan"; John Ford, "How Green Was My Valley"; William Wyler, "The Little Foxes," and Howard Hawks, "Sergeant York."

Similarly named among supporting actresses are Sara Allgood, Mary Astor, Patricia Collinge, Teresa Wright, and Margaret Wycherly.

Cheese is a nourishing food, and is especially important in the low cost diet. American cheese is a general favorite for cooking. There's much variety among American cheeses, all of which belong to the cheddar cheese type. You can get mild and sharp flavors, natural and process American cheeses.

Choose the kind you like, but use it frequently in menus. An occasional cheese souffle or fondue for lunch is a good idea. And then there's good old Welsh rabbit and all of its delightful variations.

Cheese protein is temperamental and becomes tough and stringy when subjected to too much heat. So remember that all cheese dishes require low or moderate heat, and none should be cooked for a long period of time.

Welsh Rabbit.
[Serves four.]

1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon flour
½ cup milk
Salt, cayenne pepper
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
Few drops Worcestershire
½ pound American cheese, grated or cut fine

Melt butter in top of double boiler. Add flour and blend. Stir in milk and cook until thickened and smooth. Add ¼ teaspoon salt, just a speck of cayenne, and the mustard and Worcestershire. Stir in cheese and let it melt. As soon as melted, serve sauce on buttered toast.

Some Welsh rabbit addicts think the dish can't be good unless it's made with beer. You can substitute beer for milk in the same recipe, if you like it.

Tomato juice may be used in place of milk for a tomato rabbit.

Anchovy paste, sardine paste, or smoked oyster spread may be used on the toast before the rabbit is poured over it. The sharp, fishy accent is very good.

Mexican rabbit is made by adding chili powder [half a teaspoon is enough, to my notion, but perhaps you like more] to the rabbit, omitting mustard and Worcestershire.

There are many other good variations. For example, you may add chopped ripe olives or sliced stuffed green olives to the sauce. Creole rabbit is made by adding onion and green pepper [sauté in butter before adding flour] and using tomato juice for the liquid.

You may like the rabbit poured over split, toasted buns or English muffins. Or you may want to pour it over poached eggs.

Council of Jewish Women to Hear Dr. Clark Kuebler

Chicago members of the National Council of Jewish Women attending a general assembly this afternoon will hear a lecture by Dr. Clark G. Kuebler of Northwestern university on "Antidotes for Defeatism in Democracy's Cause." Dr. Kuebler holds degrees from the University of Munich, as well as three American degrees, and his talk will be based largely upon his observations on eight visits to Europe during the last decade. Mrs. Benjamin I. Morris, Chicago section president, will outline the council's program on civilian defense at a short business session.

Your Handwriting

BY SHIRLEY SPENCER.

No one can deny that Irving Berlin is prolific. Speed is the answer, speed which so sharpens the letter forms that they become illegible streaks. The ordinary brain jogs along and has an idea now and then, but some brains are a sort of perpetual motion machine, throwing off ideas at such a rate that many of them are lost before they can be recorded. This is the type of brain we find reflected in the handwriting of Irving Berlin.

Remember that just speed which makes a writing illegible is not all that is required. That just results in erratic carelessness and waste. The speed must produce sharp, simplified strokes that give the essence of the letter without having to give the full form of it. The strokes must suggest in a highly original way the letters intended.

The letters have to be in juxtaposition with all the others to be able to be read at all. There is the secret. The swift gesture which Mr. Berlin uses for a signature reflects a highly emotional person with a racing car model brain.

Practical, Pretty Aprons

WOMAN'S AND MISS' APRONS.

Women who never lifted a spoon before in their lives are now busy in the kitchen baking cookies and cakes for their men in the armed services. You have to have the right clothes for any job, so these apron patterns are offered to meet the need. Veteran cooks, too, will like the features of both these models.

Style No. 3497 is designed for sizes small, medium, and large. Medium size requires 2½ yards of 35 inch material for apron; 2 yards of ruffling.

Style No. 3378 is designed for 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 inch bust measurements. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards of 39 inch material for dress; ⅝ yard contrasting for collar and cuffs; 1½ yards of rickrack.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired and write your name and address plainly. The winter pattern book costs 15 cents, 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MACKAY.

Not All There?

It was the rush hour. The "L" station overflowed with homeward-bound workers. The little bald-headed man at the magazine stand handed an evening paper to a regular customer.

"How are you?"

"O, not very well," the customer complained, "one day up and one day down . . . you know how it goes," and he launched into an account of the state of his health.

The little man waited patiently for a pause in the recital of woe. At last it came.

"I'm not feeling superfluous, myself," he volunteered.

Files.

"Little Orphan Files: There is the TOMORROW FILE. It grows out of such expressions as 'Tomorrow I'll put in that new index tab.' 'Tomorrow I'll check that name.' 'Tomorrow I'll return that material.'

"The TOMORROW FILE has many relatives: the DESK DRAWER FILE, the LETTER TRAY FILE, the WINDOW SHELF FILE, the TOP OF THE DESK FILE, and the SALESMAN'S AUTOMOBILE FILE where material stays until the tomorrow after tomorrow. Within the files it creates the JIG SAW FILE where pieces have to be hunted to be put together.

"Then there is the TYPISTS ERROR FILE . . . the JUNGLE FILE, in which one has to wade to find material . . . the I CAN'T BE BOTHERED FILE . . . the DUPLICATE NAME FILE . . . and then one day housecleaning begins, and the most impossible to correct little orphan file appears, the WASTE BASKET FILE.

"If the little orphans could talk, they would ask for file clerks who like filing and know how to read."—Condensed from the Filing Bulletin.

And Another.

Explanation.

Male order: "Please be more explicit," writes "A Mere Man" who inserts in the margin of this column's statement, "Size 9 is the smallest size worn by the girl pages at the Chicago Title and Trust company," the question "Gloves or Shoes?"

Neither. Dress size.

Where and O, Where!

REMEMBER?

I wonder what's happened to the white collared stenos with the short, shingled haircuts, and service weight hose. They wore broad-toed oxfords—their fingernails bare—And they worked 'neath a light hanging down in midair. Their typewriters clacked with a loud tinny clatter—Their telephones, then, were a ponderous matter. Their waistlines were low and their dresses were short—And their pastimes were those of a different sort. But, 'neath that old-fashioned, competent look they did the same work—and what's more they could cook!

FRIENDLY STENO.

Mrs. Vander Vries to Speak Before Republican Women

The Illinois League of Republican Women will hear Mrs. Bernice Van der Vries on "Function of a Republican Club in Time of War" at a 2 o'clock meeting this afternoon in the Hotel La Salle. Mrs. Walter Scudder Hart will preside.

Today's Prize Recipe

Mrs. M. Douglas Grant, 304 South Galena avenue, Freeport, Ill., wins the $5 prize today for her recipe, stuffed lamb chops. It's a gourmet special, according to recipe contest judges who tested it.

Have you a favorite recipe? Send it to Recipe Contest, CHICAGO TRIBUNE, write in standard recipe form, and include directions that even the most inexperienced cook will understand. Tell us its story, too, if there is one. Perhaps you, too, may be a prize winner!

STUFFED LAMB CHOPS.
[Serves eight.]

8 lamb chops cut thick with pockets cut by butcher
Salted flour
6 large mushrooms [finely chopped]
1 clove garlic [minced]
1 teaspoon parsley [finely chopped]
2 tablespoons bread crumbs
1 tablespoon cream
1 egg yolk
1 ounce [2 tablespoons] butter, melted
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup boiling water

Roll chops in salted flour. Mix remaining ingredients, except butter and water. Stuff chops. Brown in butter. Place in roaster, add butter in which chops were sautéed, and add boiling water. Cover. Cook 1¼ to 1½ hours in 325 degree oven.

School Child Needs Hearty Morning Meal

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.
[Copyright: 1942: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

The school child's breakfast is the subject of many letters. How about your son and daughter? Do they eat enough in the morning?

Your first answer may be, "O, he says he isn't hungry, even when I put an appetizing breakfast before him."

Well, that's possible. But sometimes there's a very simple reason for children's lack of appetite. They've rushed to get dressed, or they've been allowed to get up so late that they haven't time to eat composedly. If, in addition, the school is very strict about promptness, they may have an actual fear about being late.

Hurry, or fear, or both, can actually take away one's appetite. Haven't you found that true when you were excited and hurried as you were getting ready for a journey, or when you were worried or under a strain? You can correct this, to a large degree, by doing some good management or making some necessary changes in hours, menus, and so forth. Begin the night before. See that your child goes to bed early.

One more suggestion. There may be one other very simple reason why your boy or girl doesn't eat breakfast. Namely, monotony of menu. Have you tried a bit of imagination to produce breakfast variety. Try it. For instance, omit cereals for a while and substitute hot muffins, cornmeal "sticks," stewed fruit for fresh, brown sugar for white, a chop for an egg, and so forth. Then watch appetites pick up.

According to Culbertson

[Copyright: 1942: By Ely Culbertson.]

The most horrifying of all bidding situations is for one partner to "trap" the other. I refer to a series of bids such as that produced by North in the following hand:

North, dealer.

NORTH
♠ A J 10 5
♥ A K 7 4 2
♦ 8

WEST
♠ 8 6
♥ Q 5 3
♦ J 10 7 4 2
♣ A 9 5

EAST
♠ 9 2
♥ J 10
♦ A Q 6 5 3

SOUTH
♠ K Q 7 4 3
♥ 9 8 6
♦ K 9
♣ 8 7 3

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
5 spades [!]	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's bidding was of the type that causes experts to shudder. Having opened with one heart and received a one-over-one, noncommittal spade response from partner, North had chosen to underbid his hand with a mere double raise. Perhaps he thought that this double raise was an absolute force but, if so, he was sadly mistaken. It was a rebid that merely urged South to go to game. Obviously, then, South was under no compulsion to bid again. Naturally, however, he did make a game-going bid. Now, having prodded South into game, North made the ridiculous slam-try of five spades. The inconsistency here is so glaring that it hits the eye. With a partner like North, South was in the anomalous position of either having to stop at three spades or to land in five spades! The happy and logical medium of game could not be reached!

Of course, the solution of this bidding difficulty was for North to take the correct action over South's original response. This was to jump all the way to four spades. As I have written repeatedly, the triple raise of a response is stronger than a double raise. It is in no sense a game-closing bid. Thus, since North obviously felt that game was in sight, no matter how weak South's spade response had been, the logical action was to bid that game. If South had considerably more than necessary for his one-over-one response he would go on bidding; otherwise, he would pass at the safe game level.

South mournfully said, after he had lost the unavoidable heart, diamond, and club tricks: "Gee, I would have done better to stop at three spades. At least, we would have shown a profit!"

The Housewife

High ball or Tom Collins spoons made of brightly colored plastic can be ordered with the name of the host and hostess printed on them in contrasting tones. They are gay, good looking, and inexpensive. If you prefer the old mixing sticks, rather than the spoons, these too come by the dozen and may be imprinted with a name.

Baby's Crocheted Bibs

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Here are two of the most becoming crocheted bibs that any infant possibly could wear. Both are made of mercerized crochet cotton in pink and white, which proves that they are serviceable and pretty, and easily laundered. It requires little time to create these biblets and they are ideal gifts for a layette or shower.

For instructions in crocheting the bibs, No. 811, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Sally Appeals in Behalf of Needy Mother

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.
[Activities of the Sally Joy Brown department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.]

The child has been in a sanitarium for the last three years. She has a serious heart condition and will have to spend a long period in bed. The mother of this 11 year old girl was deserted by her husband several years ago, and since that time she has had a difficult time caring for her three children.

In earlier, happier days Mrs. X. had furniture, but her husband sold part of it and destroyed the remainder, so that since that time she has lived in furnished rooms. She is now trying to establish a home for her youngsters, and is in need of furniture. Thru an assisting agency she has obtained a stove, dishes, two single beds and mattresses and a few sheets and towels, but these are her only possessions. Living room furniture of all kinds, rugs, a few blankets, and curtains are still needed.

Since the little invalid will be confined to her room for a long time, any items which will help to make her quarters more comfortable and cheerful will be most welcome. The physicians have done all that is possible to assist her during her sanitarium stay, and feel that it is now best for her to return to her own home where she will be happy with her mother and brothers.

The address is on the west side of the city, and transportation of any items offered will be provided by the assisting agency.

Appeal for Money to Support Fight on Venereal Disease

John J. Mitchell of the Universal Oil Products company, and Clarence B. Randall of the Inland Steel company, made a new appeal to Chicagoans yesterday to contribute funds to aid the American Social Hygiene association in its fight against syphilis and gonorrhea.

Mitchell and Randall stressed the danger to men in the armed forces and to industrial workers, and the need for funds to carry on the educational campaign by means of movies, lectures and literature.

Contributors should make checks payable to the association, and send them to Mitchell at 310 South Michigan avenue, or to Randall at 38 South Dearborn street.

Thru the Looking Glass

Beauty gifts practically head the list of valentine ideas. They convey so much, you know. They flatter a woman's sense of femininity, and when they're pretty and gay they please her instinctive yen for lovely gadgets.

A beauty valentine can be any one of a number of things. There are exquisite perfumed sachets, for example, appealing to the eye in their shape and color. These are small gifts, but treasures, and one of the nicest things about them is their novelty to the average woman—they come under the head of charming luxuries she usually hesitates to buy for herself.

And, don't laugh, lovely soaps make a more endearing valentine than you might think. Any number of women feel about fine soaps the way they do about precious jewels; they love to own them. And, if you insist on the valentine motif, you can get beautifully scented soap in heart shapes nowadays. Otherwise, big cakes or little ones, nicely boxed, come in any scent the lady love happens to like.

We needn't tell you about perfumes, or colognes. Their choice speaks volumes for you. Knowing what kind the woman treasures is a great help to the male shopper. If he's in the dark on this point, his best safeguards are an intelligent clerk and rather well known names. If he does know her perfume preferences, he can round out her fragrance family, if she owns lots of the scent, by presenting her with dusting powder or bath glorifiers in the same well liked fragrances.

Your Stars Today

By WYNN

Monday, Feb. 9.

Today's tendencies lead into blind alleys from which it is necessary to retrace steps—if we follow unthinking impulse. But we can stick to the proven; we can proceed with past well established programs. Avoid inner upsets. Work, don't worry.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead brings unfinished business from past to be worked out, if born on this date, but also more personal and emotional happiness, more friends, romance, if eligible. Danger: now—Feb. 19; July 2-17; Nov. 26—Dec. 4.

Tomorrow.

Valentine's Day Prelude; Reveal 4 Engagements

Ardsley Country club in New York by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milton L. Perry of Ardsley-on-the-Hudson. Mr. and Mrs. Mack were unable to go east from Glencoe for the announcement.

Representing Ensign Mack's family at the party were his grandmother, Mrs. Charles S. Mack of New York; his cousins, Miss Margaret Stuart Mack and Miss Laura Elizabeth Mack, and their mother, Mrs. Francis T. Mack of Scarsdale, N. Y., and another aunt, Miss Cornelia R. Mack of New York. Miss Margaret Mack and Miss Perry are roommates at Connecticut college. Also at the party were six of Ensign Mack's friends from the naval officers' school at the Harvard business school, including Ensign John T. McCutcheon Jr. of Chicago.

Miss Perry, a senior at Connecticut College for Women, attended St. Agnes' School for Girls in Albany, N. Y. Before entering the naval officers school, Ensign Mack received his degree from the University of Michigan in 1940.

Corson Ellis' Niece Engaged to J. H. Powel.

The engagement of Miss Ellis to Mr. Powel is of interest here because Miss Ellis has visited her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. Corson Ellis, in Lake Forest and also at their summer home in Desbarats, Canada. The engagement was told at a cocktail party on Saturday by Miss Ellis' parents, Mr. and Mrs. John M. Ellis of Bethlehem, Pa.

Miss Ellis was graduated from Miss Porter's school and is a member of the Junior Welfare League of Bethlehem. Her fiancé is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Powel of Providence and East Greenwich, R. I. He was graduated from St. George's school and will receive his degree in June from Harvard university, where he is a member of the Institute of 1770-Hasty Pudding club.

The Bridal and Valentine window which Mrs. James Ward Thorne has "done" in the Woman's Exchange shop at 902 North Michigan avenue will be an invitation to passers-by this week to drop in to see the colored crayon sketches, water colors, and miniatures of Enid Stoddard. The English artist, who has painted members of the British royal family, will have her works on display for two weeks at the shop. Among the Chicagoans who have modeled for her are Mrs. William A. Ryan and her son, Hurley; Mrs. William O. Hunt and her son, Peter, and the Edwin L. Brashear's sons, Larry and Edwin Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Lucian B. Wilkinson have taken their new son, born on Jan. 28 in the Evanston hospital, home to Northfield, where his 3 year old sister, Dianne, was waiting to welcome him. The baby has been named George Lawrence Wilkinson II. for his paternal grandfather. The senior Wilkinsons live in Evanston. Young Mrs. Wilkinson was Georgia Lloyd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Henry Lloyd, former Evanstonians.

Roger S. Barretts Name First Child Deborah.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Barrett [Barbara Reed Barry] of North Dearborn parkway have named their first child Deborah Damon. The baby was born on Feb. 3 in the Evanston hospital and is a grandchild of Dr. and Mrs. George Fravel Barry of Evanston and of Mr. and Mrs. Richardson Damon Barrett of Minneapolis, Minn. Little Deborah is a fifth generation Chicagoan, as her great-great-grandfather, Jonathan Young Scammon, came here in 1835.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Vilas Jr. of Evanston are the parents of a second daughter, born yesterday at Evanston hospital. She has been named Gail, for Mrs. Vilas' sister, Gail Gartz. Mrs. Vilas is the former Gloria Gartz. The baby's elder sister, Sherry, is 21 months old. Their grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Vilas Sr. of Evanston and Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Gartz Jr. of Lake Geneva.

"Dinner on the house," complete with oyster bar and roast pig will be included tonight in the Tavern club's annual evening meeting and election of officers. Preston Boyden will propose the slate, and the party will be limited to men only.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Cassels, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Hansmann, Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson Forstall and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Consoer are among those giving dinner parties tonight before the Winnetka Drama league's presentation of "The Male Animal," sponsored by the Chicago Mount Holyoke club. Proceeds from the play, to be given at 8:15 o'clock in the Winnetka Community house, will go to the college's scholarship fund.

Members of the Lake View Musical society have invited their husbands and friends to a concert at 8:15 o'clock tonight at the Arts club. Vera Gillette and Vincent Micari, duo pianists, will appear on the program, along with Charlotte Symons, soprano, who will be accompanied by Rhea Shelters.

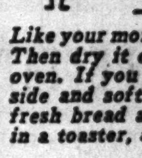
THE Kitchen Kibitzer

BY MARIAN CARTER



A look over the shoulder of the kitchen manager in an attempt to speed, lighten and add some novelty to her daily routine.

Like your morning toast crisp? Then dry it out slowly in the oven. If you like it crisp outside and soft inside, use very fresh bread and toast quickly in a toaster, at high heat.

* * *

Let's get out the old fashioned recipes for such desserts as "poor man's pudding" (corn meal, milk and molasses) now that sugar is short and economy in meal planning is urgent.

* * *

Those last, scrappy bits of ham are just the thing to give a lot of flavor to a whole casseroleful of scalloped potatoes.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Bread crumbs soaked in milk will improve the texture of ground meat patties, and make the meat go farther, too!

* * *

Don't sneer at the turnip! He's a vegetable that can travel with the best of society. But don't overcook him, and be sure you season him thoroly, or the taste won't be as pleasing as it should be.

* * *

Yes, it is possible to overknead yeast dough, but few cooks get too vigorous. Most of 'em don't knead quite enough. Kneaded to the right point, roll dough will be smooth, satiny and elastic.

Bananas aren't as valuable in the adult diet as they are for little ones. But, baked in maple sirup and served with cream, they're a swell dessert!

* * *

Rice will swell to more than three times its raw size when you cook it, so don't get too generous with those snowy grains! Brown rice is more nutritious, tho it does cost a little more.

GOLDEN GLOVERS SPEED DRILLS FOR CITY TITLE FIGHTS

CHICAGO TEAMS MEET THURSDAY IN COLISEUM

A Busy Week

SEVENTEEN centers in addition to Chicago will pick their Golden Gloves champions this week. Finals will be held this evening in three cities—Dayton, Oklahoma City, and Des Moines. The full schedule for tonight follows:

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Gazette preliminaries.
Gary, Ind., Post-Tribune preliminaries.
Joliet, Ill., Spectator preliminaries.
Kansas City, Mo., Star preliminaries.
Minneapolis, Minn., Star-Journal preliminaries.
Quincy, Ill., Herald-Whig preliminaries.
St. Louis, Mo., Globe-Democrat preliminaries.
Terre Haute, Ind., Tribune-Star preliminaries.
Oklahoma City Oklahoman finals.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Golden Gloves fighters will slam thru intensive drills in half a dozen gymnasiums thruout the city today and tomorrow in concluding efforts to reach top shape for the Chicago championship bouts on Thursday evening in the Coliseum. It will be north against south, man against man, with a highly cherished prize at stake—a place on the team which Chicago will send against the best fighters from all Golden Gloves territory in the Tournament of Champions.

The boys know now that their victories in sectional tournaments in Loyola and St. Sabina gymnasiums were easy compared to what they'll be up against on Thursday. All of the setups have been beaten thru an inexorable process of elimination. Only the best man of each weight division remains on each of the sectional teams.

Watch Dorgan, Dade.

What a battle is in prospect! The fans are speculating on what will happen when hard punching Bob Dorgan of the south side team clashes with the clever Eddie Miller of the north in the final for the lightweight championship. And how about Harold Dade, they ask. Will he go on to pound out a third Chicago championship—this time in the 118 pound class, at the expense of game little Augie Pope?

Among the newcomers to Golden Gloves competition is a boy who has aroused widespread interest by the sensational knockout ability he has shown in various club engagements as a member of the CYO team. This is Harry Stephens, a Kenosha lad. He'll need everything he has because his opponent is one of the best fighters on the entire card—Johnny Johnson of the Savoy A. C.

Uses Southpaw Stance.

Stephens, who boxes from a southpaw stance, has demonstrated his hitting power by knocking out one opponent after another with body blows. He has stopped 15 out of his last 20 opponents. Harry just loves to take care of adversaries who use the orthodox methods of coping with a southpaw—which is to lead with the right. The instant they do that Harry moves in and lets go with a left to the body that carries a wallop strong enough to cave in those 15 out of 20 opponents.

Harry, who is 20 years old, works for his father, who has charge of a coal company in Kenosha. He has had about 70 bouts—but his followers are convinced that he's never had the kind of a fight he'll get Thursday when he takes on Johnson.

Big Showdown Near.

No college athlete ever tried harder for a place on a varsity team than those boys are trying for a fighting assignment on Chicago's Golden Gloves squad. They plunged hopefully several weeks ago into some of the toughest competition that is to be found in the entire realm of sport. Now they've picked up confidence along the way as they've marched from one success to another—but the big showdown comes on Thursday. If a boy loses then, he's thru for another season.

The incentive for victory is strong, however, because every boxer knows that if he gets safely past his engagement in the Coliseum, he has an excellent chance of going a long way against the out of town competition he'll encounter in the Stadium bouts. For fighters don't come any better than many of the boys who will perform right here on Thursday. Thus it's certain that some of the best bouts of the entire Golden Gloves campaign will develop when Chicago's north and south side champions clash.

Novices Add Spice.

The novices, too, will add spice to the show. They may not be as skilful as the open division fighters—but they're just as much in earnest, and

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Rookie Bill Mosienko of the Blackhawks, with his first and second major league goals in a span of 21 seconds in the first period, and an assist which renewed a lead in the second period, did more than his share of heroics last night in Chicago Stadium. But Bill's stellar work was in vain, for the high scoring New York Rangers got busy and scored two goals in the last ten minutes of play to conquer, 4 to 3.

Mosienko's two goals gave the Chicagoans a 2 to 0 lead, which stood up thru the first period to the hysterical delight of an S. R. O. crowd of 18,316. The Rangers tied it early in the second period, but the Hawks were ahead at the end of the second period, 3 to 2, by virtue of a goal by Red Hamill, assisted by Mosienko and Bob Carse.

Something Happens to Hawks.

The Hawks protected their lead thru the first 11 minutes and 28 seconds of the final period when they seemed to lose their bearings. Then came the two New York goals and a Chicago defeat, by the same score

SAILOR QUINTET PLAYS IRISH FOR CHARITY TONIGHT

Ceremonies Add Color to Stadium Battle.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Notre Dame's basketball players will have their opportunity tonight in the Chicago Stadium to crash the very select group of teams which have whipped the Great Lakes Naval Training station. The Sailors arrived yesterday afternoon from Madison, Wis., where Saturday evening they had beaten the Badgers, 47 to 42, for their 21st victory in 24 games.

Another winner of tonight's game will be the Navy Relief Society fund, into which net proceeds will go. This is the same fund for which Joe Louis and Buddy Baer recently fought in New York. Tickets remain in the $2.20, $1.65, and $1.10 sections. In addition 4,000 general admission tickets will be available today at 55 cents each. Game time is 8:30 o'clock.

Notre Dame whipped Kentucky Saturday in a hard fought battle and now is ready to prove that an earlier defeat by Great Lakes was a mistake. The Irish lost that encounter, 52 to 46, after holding a 10 point lead at one time.

Sailors Thrice Beaten.

Ohio State, Michigan State, and Creighton hold decisions over the Great Lakes stars. In view of subsequent contests, Creighton has made the best showing, and if Notre Dame can win tonight, it is likely the Irish will rely on a relentless attack based on speed, as did Creighton.

The Sailors' long campaign and recent trip that began more than a week ago in Cleveland and continued as far west as Omaha, Neb., before finishing in Chicago, probably has taken the edge from their style of play.

Tonight will be one of the high points of the season and should match the rivalry exhibited Saturday in the Loyola-De Paul city championship battle in the Coliseum. In support of the athletic contest will be ceremonies in which notables from Great Lakes will take part. The Great Lakes band and chorus also will entertain.

Adm. Downes Heads Notables.

The 65 piece band is under the direction of Lieut. Comm. Eddie Peabody, stage and screen star. Rear Adm. John Downes, commanding officer at the Great Lakes Naval Training station, will head the group of notables. Others are Capt. T. De Witt Carr, executive officer at Great Lakes; Lieut. Comm. H. B. Edgar, recruit training officer, and Lieut. Comm. Robert A. Brown, public relations officer.

Great Lakes used 12 players against Wisconsin Saturday night, which indicates that the pressure of the extra

A fellow has to be a contortionist to stay in business these days. First, he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head, and still have both feet on the ground. —Jimmy Braun of Eden.

Bundles from Heaven.

I've some news, folks, about that little white house
I wrote of not long ago,
For Mary and Andy, residing there,
Now have twins, I'd like you to know;
And never a mortal man
Could describe the guile
Of Sara's smile—
Or, wait now, was it Suzzane?

Suzanne and Sara—I'm having a time
Trying to tell which is which,
That the next time I go I'll be certain to know
Their right names without a hitch;
But you'd never run in on a sweeter grin
From here all the way to Tara,
Than lights the wee pan of the elfin Suzanne—
Or, wait now, was that Sara?

Well, Suzanne or Sara, it's all the same,
For they've come to brighten the lives
Of the young folks there in that house all fair,
Where blissful happiness thrives;
We've heard much of bundles for here and there,
Devised all sorrow to leaven,
But little Suzanne and Sara are
Two bundles direct from Heaven!
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Harrison Shoots 279 for Third Place.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 8.—Herman Barron, the swarthy New Yorker who is golf's No. 1 Jewish professional, today won the 42d Open championship of the Western Golf association with a 72 hole score of 276, eight strokes under par for the Phoenix Country club's sunny yardage and only 3 above the all-time tournament record of 273, set by Tommy Armour in 1929.

This morning at 6:30 o'clock Barron put in a long distance phone call to his 7 year old daughter in White Plains, N. Y., allowing for the two hour time difference, and informed her that he was bringing her home an honest-to-goodness Arizona cowgirl rig. He didn't know then, of course, that he also was going to include with that gift one of the few surviving major titles of these harried times and first prize of $1,000.

Moves Into Third Place Tie.

His par 71 in the third round moved him up to a third place tie at 209. That 71, following first and second rounds of 69 each, gave no suspicion of what Barron was to do in the afternoon. That little job consisted of a fancy 32, four under par for the first nine, followed by a par 35 coming home and the 67 that enabled him to win the championship by 2 strokes.

The three-quarters juncture produced one of the most unusual pairing situations in recent golfing records. It saw the three 54 hole leaders all playing in the same threesome and all entering the afternoon's final 18 holes with scores of 206. This trio consisted of Henry Picard of Oklahoma City, former PGA and Masters' champion; Herman Keiser of Akron, O., who had led the 36 hole field with 134, and Chandler Harper of Portsmouth, Va., who held the pace thru the first three rounds. As they traipsed out into the sunshine for these last 18 holes, none of the three was confronted with the problem of what his rivals were doing, as is usually the case.

Turns First Nine in 32.

Naturally, the Picard-Harper-Keiser batch was off late, and the galleries pursued them faithfully until they heard that Barron, eight threesomes ahead, had dusted off the front nine in a thrifty 32. Barron then added his 35, hung it up, and allowed the rest of the field to look at it. The grapevine carried the news of his 276 out to the leading trio and to such other gents as amateur Johnny Dawson of North Hollywood, Cal.; Lloyd Mangrum and Dutch Harrison of Chicago, and Lawson Little of San Francisco, all of whom were very much in the picture at the end of the morning round. Ray Mangrum, Lloyd's brother, who had been tied with Barron at the end of 54 holes with 209, didn't have to be informed of what Barron was doing. As one of the New Yorker's partners, Ray was an eyewitness to that conclusive 67.

Picard Takes Second Money.

Picard, suffering from a bad case of hookitis, managed to salvage second money of $700 with a 72 that gave him the runner-up spot at 278. Harrison, doing nicely until he encountered a six at the par four 14th, had a final 70 for third place at 279, giving him $500. Keiser turned in a 74 for 280, followed by Little, who was trying to celebrate his sixth wedding anniversary with a victory. Little had a 73 for 281, a stroke better than Dawson's 282, and two to the good over the brothers Mangrum.

Harper, who needed 78 in the last 18, settled for 284, a figure duplicated by the final 68 turned in by Horton Smith of Pinehurst, N. C. Three former holders of the championship—Ed Dudley, Harry Cooper, and Byron Nelson—finished in a 285 tie with Joe Brown of Des Moines, Ia., and Ky Laffoon of Miami, Okla.

Barron's First Big Victory.

Today's triumph was the first major victory Barron ever has scored, altho he already had made himself respected in the national fairway scene. He tied for fifth in last year's National Open and was once a PGA quarter-finalist. He has made the winter tour six times since 1929, but this was his first big strike. Barron was 32 last December, and

MOTISI TO MEET JOYCE TONIGHT IN MARIGOLD CLUB

Tony Seeks 4th Straight Victory.

Tony Motisi, Catholic Youth organization welterweight, who was sent into retirement for a year in 1940 by Leonard Bennett, will receive an opportunity to avenge that embarrassment by proxy tonight when he opposes Willie Joyce, Gary lightweight, in a 10 round bout in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

Motisi, who lost to Bennett on a seventh round technical knockout, has scored three victories in a row since that discouraging setback and if he upsets Joyce he will have redeemed himself. That's because Willie was awarded a split decision over Bennett in Chicago Stadium outdoor arena last Aug. 13.

Luck Didn't Hold.

Joyce, who is a lightweight, was making his first appearance against an opponent in the next weight class against Bennett and the performance was so satisfactory he decided to give away poundage once more against Sammy Secreet, also a welter, in the Marigold arena on Dec. 15. This time Willie's luck didn't hold out and he lost a disputed verdict in 10 rounds.

Ernie Pelais, Beaver Falls, Pa., vs. Don Wallenfang, West Allis [5], 152.
Jerry Hoffman, Milwaukee, vs. Sam Scully [4], 135.

Lem Franklin, 1937 international Golden Gloves heavyweight winner, who is second foremost contender for the world title, has gone to Toledo, O., where he opposes Al Reiss, Detroit punch absorber, tomorrow. After this assignment Franklin will resume preparations for a 10 round contest against Bob Pastor in Cleveland Feb. 24.

Four more boxers have lost their amateur cards because of professionalism. This was announced yesterday by Capt. Roy E. Davis, chairman of the registration and boxing committee of the Central AAU. These boys are Joe Michaels, alias Joe Miller; Frank Crow, alias Eddie Ryan; Rual Tyler, alias Carlos Lopez, and Ralph Balbirnie. This makes a total of 12 professionals who have been found to be masquerading as amateurs since the AAU started an investigation two weeks ago.

Warmerdam's 15 Foot Vault Surprises Him

New York, Feb. 8 [Special].—From the time Mercury was given the first hot foot in ancient Greece to Leslie MacMitchell and Greg Rice of the present day, runners have dominated field and track competition the world over. But there's a new name engraved on the tablets of the sport—Cornelius Warmerdam, only human being ever to pole vault over 15 feet.

This quiet-spoken, diffident Dutch boy from California has broken every vaulting record on the books—and he doesn't even care about records!

"I wasn't even conscious of breaking a record Saturday night at the Millrose games," he said today, modestly and honestly. "I just wanted to try to make 15 feet and I'm very lucky to have done it."

It Isn't All Luck!

Lucky? Wasn't this the 13th time [first indoors] that he's vaulted 15 feet or better? And isn't he the only jumper ever to have reached that mark? And didn't he make it with borrowed poles, his own having failed to arrive from the coast?

There's more than luck behind Warmerdam's performance. He admits that work had something to do with it. Says Cornelius—or Dutch—as they called him at Fresno State college: "You could never become a good vaulter without lots of work. The legs must be developed thru road work and hurdling. [Ed. Note: He can run the 100 in 10.5]. The arms must be strengthened thru gym work on parellel bars, dumbells and ropes. And, of course, you have to stay in good physical condition."

Doesn't Think About Records.

Dutch is a good-looking blond youngster of 26 and he reminds you a great deal of another swell Dutch boy, Johnny Vander Meer, Cincinnati pitcher of double no-hit fame. Dutch weighs 168 pounds and seldom varies from that. He stands an even 6 feet. He's been married a year and a half to a California girl—the wedding being the culmination of a college romance.

Warmerdam tonight was awarded the Rodman Wanamaker international trophy as the outstanding individual at the 35th annual meet. The choice was made by a panel of seven experts.

Greg Rice, winner of the two mile run, won second place, and third went to Norwood Ewell, the Penn State sprinter.

Purdue, Chicago Wrestling Teams to Clash Tonight

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 8 [Special].—Purdue's wrestling team will meet the University of Chicago in Chicago tomorrow night. Coach Claude Reeck announced that with the exception of Warren Gregory, who will replace Bob Britt in the 145 pound class, the Boilermakers will depend on the same entries who won seven out of eight matches from Ohio State in the Big Ten opener here yesterday.

This will be a great week thruout Golden Gloves territory. In addition to Chicago, 17 other centers will hold their finals. Champions will be hailed tonight in Dayton, Oklahoma City, and Des Moines. Tomorrow the Indiana front will be particularly active with finals scheduled in Fort Wayne, Muncie, and Richmond. And so it will go thruout a week of widespread fighting in the territory where newspapers and radio stations are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the hunt for the best boxing talent between the Alleghenies and the Rockies and between the northern and southern borders of the United States.

AIREDALE MAKES COMEBACK, WINS SPECIALTY SHOW

Entered by G. L. L. Davis of St. Louis, Own Mickey had been inactive since last February, when he retired after an indifferent showing in the Westminster Kennel club exhibit.

Barron's 276 Wins Western Open Tourney

has been stationed at the Fenway club in White Plains for the last seven years. On the current tour, he has had a hunch that he was playing well enough to win one, and promised his wife he would score before the campaign was over. He thought he had made the grade with a 137 at the Bing Crosby tournament, but Dawson's 133 and a few other parties squelched that. Barron attributes his new driving ability, in which he has been getting 30 and 40 more yards off the tee than he ever did, to watching and attempting to mimic Benny Hogan.

The new champion was not particularly proud of his morning 71, in which he practically became a nativé of several of the country club's bunkers. He started off in frisky fashion, reaching the edge of the 503 yard first in two for a birdie and planting his tee shot to the 130 yard second two feet from the flag. He three putted the fourth, but dropped a ten foot try for a birdie on the sixth. He got away a bad drive into the sand and bushes off the 570 yard seventh, and was bunkered off the eighth. Another trap presented a potential bogey at the ninth, but he escaped to within one foot for a par.

Trapped on No. 11.

He was trapped again on No. 11 and nearly holed out for his par. He was stony from another bunker at the 12th, after his ball was buried, and then hammered another wedge out of the sand dead to the 13th pin. He hit the next four cups trying for birdies, and finally sank a three footer at the 18th.

In the afternoon, Barron was on the fringe of the first for another birdie. He holed a 12 footer for a birdie at the third, a 25 foot try at the fifth, and one from ten feet at the ninth. Then he three putted No. 10 and blew two short birdie putts at the next two holes. He missed the thirteenth green, but holed putts of 12 and 10 feet on the 14th and 15th, both for birdies, closing out the day with three orthodox pars.

Chicago and Milwaukee Soccer Game Postponed

The intercity soccer match between the Sparta Ogden Dairy and the Verhovy Tigers of Milwaukee, and also the Slovak-Center Sport club game, were called off yesterday on account of icy fields. The national cup match in Detroit between the Chrysler F. C. and the United German-American A. A., which was to decide which would meet the Sparta in Chicago in the Western quarterfinals, Feb. 22, also was canceled. It will be played next Sunday.

Zale and Conn Ease Up on Training Over Sunday

New York, Feb. 8 [Special].—Both Tony Zale, middleweight champion, and Billy Conn spent an easy day today by temporarily suspending preparations for their 12 round, nontitle bout in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Zale, who weighs 162, took only a light road workout while Conn relaxed all day.

REFUGEE DEFEATS TOKLE 2D TIME IN SKI TOURNEY

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 8 (AP).—A Norwegian refugee soared off with the national ski jumping championship in class A here this afternoon. Ola, conqueror of defending champion Torger Tokle one week ago in the eastern tournament, turned the trick again today. He carried off top honors with 203.2 points to deal Tokle the only two defeats he has sustained this season.

In second place was Art Devlin of Lake Placid, N. Y., with 229.15 points. Tokle could do no better than third with 227.9.

Ola, one of three entries from the royal Norwegian air force in training near Toronto [they use only their given names for fear of reprisals against their families still living in Norway] won as he did a week ago—on form—because neither of his jumps was as long as Tokle's.

Ola had 191 feet on his first run and 180 on his second. Tokle made the longest jump, 194 feet on his first try and 181 on his second. Devlin went 189 feet and 183 feet. Walter Bietila of the University of Wisconsin was fourth with jumps of 185 and 181 for 226.85 points.

More than 12,000 spectators saw the tournament, conducted on Duluth's 60 meter slide. Tokle won his title in Seattle last year. He still holds the Duluth hill record of 203 feet set one year ago.

The seventeenth minute of the first period is the one Mosienko will replay for his grandchildren on many a winter evening 40 years from now, even tho his mates couldn't support his brilliant accomplishments. The first half of the opening period saw the convalescent Sammy Lo Presti staving off one Ranger assault after another, with the Hawks rarely having possession of the puck in the New York defense zone.

After the 10 minute mark the Hawk offense stepped up the play to as, least on even threat. But there still was no score after 16 minutes. Then Mosienko scored the first goal of the game in 16:35. He had gone in for a shot a few seconds earlier, but Goalie Jim Henry had stopped his effort without a great deal of exertion.

The Rookie Scores.

Immediately afterward Mosienko and Art Wiebe advanced again. Young Bill got the rubber at a tough angle to Goalie Henry's left about 18 feet out and cut loose a whistling slant shot the Ranger goalie couldn't touch.

After the resultant face off, Bob Carse and Joe Cooper rammed into the Ranger defense zone. Carse essayed a swoop for a close one and Mosienko, skating abreast of Carse, apparently saw Goalie Henry had Bob blocked at the near corner of the cage. At any rate Mosienko lifted the puck off Carse's stick, carried it a couple of feet past the goal, then dropped it back into the unprotected portion of the cage.

It was a freak maneuver that caused an almost unprecedented din among the customers. The time was 16:56 and Bob Carse and Cooper earned assists.

The visitors tied the score before the half way point of the second period. Clint Smith, assisted by Alan Kuntz and Grant Warwick, rang up the first goal in 6:50. The brilliant Bryan Hextall, assisted by Bill Juzda and Phil Watson, tied the count in 9:31.

The Hawks refused to be depressed after the tie had been effected and in 16:17 resumed the lead, 3 to 2. Hamill delivered a beauty into the nets as a nice climax to a speed and power special in which he was assisted by Bob Carse and Mosienko. Warwick was serving the only penalty of the period when Hamill clicked.

Rangers Come On.

A collapse of the Hawk defense allowed Neil Colville to tie the score at 3-all in 11:28 of the final period while Alf Pike and Alex Kaleta were in the penalty box. The gray Colville brother took the puck in the middle of the Hawk blue line, brushed aside Mush March, then Cooper and Johnny Mariucci and bore down on Lo Presti for the marker.

Warwick, assisted by Smith, netted the winning goal while the Hawks apparently continued to wonder how Neil Colville had managed to wade thru for the tying score. The time of the victory effort was 13:20 of the final period.

The league leading Rangers lifted their season goal total to 140 and the Hawks fattened their total for 34 games to 105.

HERMANNS LOSE MATCH TITLE TO NEW YORK TEAM

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Bowlers' Journal team of New York succeeded the St. Louis Hermanns as national match game bowling champions tonight, adding to an early lead with a 2,910 to 2,591 decision in the final block for a 955 pin edge in the 18 game titular series.

Sweeping all three games of the night block after taking two out of three during the afternoon session, the New Yorkers wound up with 17,182 pins for the entire series while the former champions spilled 16,227.

Boston, 3; Detroit, 0.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 8 (AP).—The revamped Boston Bruins broke their longest losing streak of the current National Hockey league season at the three game mark by shutting out Detroit's Red Wings, 3 to 0, tonight before 8,500 in the Boston garden.

With two new professionals, Jack McGill, a center, and Clare Martin, a defenseman, in their ranks, the Bruins managed to score once in the first period and twice in the final while giving Goalie Frank Brimsek his third shutout in 36 games. Both of the new men were acquired from the Boston Olympics in the Eastern American Hockey league.

Only two penalties were called, against Dutch Hiller and Big Ed Bush, for high sticking. As they hacked at each other, Referee Bill Chadwick suffered a gashed forehead when he burst between them.

LEAFS WIN AGAIN

New York, Feb. 8 (AP).—Toronto Maple Leafs, playing themselves out of a two week slump, tonight won their second National Hockey league game in two nights with a 4 to 3 decision over the Brooklyn Americans before 12,264.

The third place Leafs started out as tho their 6 to 4 victory over the New York Rangers last night had worn them down and were at the short end of a 2 to 0 score at the close of the first period on goals by Norm Larson and Tommy Anderson.

Wilman Wins from Day in $1,000 Match

Last night's block produced the most spectacular bowling of the match, Wilman piling up 1,947 pins to 1,919 for Day. The latter's high game was 259 in the block, while Wilman's best single effort was 241. Joe averaged 216⅓ for the nine games to Day's 213 2/9.

Afternoon scores:

St. Cornelius Wins Division CYO Crown

St. Cornelius Catholic Youth organization senior quintet clinched the championship of the St. Tarcissus division yesterday by routing St. Peter's [Skokie], 72 to 40, for its seventh straight victory of the season. Led by Tony Skelnik who scored 17 points St. Cornelius doubled its first half total of 24 points by getting 48 points in the second half. In the same division St. Tarcissus seniors equaled the leaders' point total by stopping St. Constance, 72 to 19. Forward Joe Smowrowski and Center Chester Dorr, paced the winners with 17 points each.

In the Fenwick division St. Luke No. 2 seniors dealt St. Odilo No. 1, league leaders, their first defeat in seven games, 32 to 27. The setback put St. Odilo in a tie for first place with St. Mary Celle. St. Francis seniors stopped St. Mary, 50 to 32, sparked by Center George Arns who equaled St. Mary's total by scoring 32 points. St. Bernard preps led the division in scoring with a 45 to 23 victory over Sacred Heart. St. Felicitas' juniors led the junior section with a 54 to 30 triumph over St. Bernard. Score:

It is now Indiana's turn to test the strength of the University of Illinois basketball team, unbeaten in collegiate competition. The Illini invade Bloomington tonight with the knowledge that only one college team in 34 attempts has whipped the Hoosiers on their own court since February of 1938.

Wisconsin marched into Bloomington a year ago and by trouncing Indiana assured itself of at least a tie for the Big Ten title. By whipping Minnesota in the last game of the schedule the Badgers took sole possession. No other college team has won in Indiana's fieldhouse in three and a half seasons. In this time Indiana has scored 1,590 points to 1,082 for opponents, or an average of 46 points per game to 31 points for the opposition. That's a 15 point home floor advantage.

Illini Invade Indiana.

Coach Doug Mills led the Illinois squad into Bloomington yesterday afternoon and held a brief basket shooting session on the Indiana court early in the evening. Branch McCracken, Indiana coach, who scouted the Illini Saturday as they beat Northwestern, 41 to 33, in Champaign, yesterday said: "Mills has the complete works. He has height, speed, and his boys hit from all points." But he added that "we've still got a chance for an upset."

Indiana probably will start its ace long range shooter, Irv Swanson, and Sophomore Ralph Hamilton at forwards, Everett Hoffman at center, with Capt. Andy Zimmer and either Dick Wittenbraker or Ed Denton at guards.

Tooth Bothers Phillip.

Twelve Illinois players made the trip to Bloomington. The squad consisted of the starting five, Vic Wukovits, Ken Menke, Jack Smiley, Andy Phillip, and Gene Vance, plus Art Mathisen, Ray Bergeson, Capt. Bill Hocking, Ed Parker, Chuck Fowler, Herb Matter, and Henry Sachs.

Phillip, leading Illini scorer with 82 points, felt better yesterday. An ulcerated tooth will be pulled tomorrow.

Four conference contests are scheduled tonight and the Indiana-Illinois game easily ranks first. Whether Indiana can win will depend on 6 foot 5 inch Zimmer, whose ability to control the ball under the backboards will be challenged by the rangy Illini.

Wisconsin should not have too much trouble at Chicago tonight for most have given up hope for the Maroons. Northwestern probably can not keep pace with Purdue tonight in Lafayette and Iowa intends to pick up another victory at the expense of Ohio State in Iowa City.

Against Northwestern, Purdue will start the revised lineup which nosed out Iowa last Saturday night. This includes the two midget ball hawks, John Conrad and Cecil Polk. These two have replaced the veterans John [Mickey] Tierney and Bob Riley, who have been erratic in recent games.

Purdue-Minnesota Saturday.

If Illinois wins tonight, the Illini can reasonably expect to continue unbeaten for another week. Michigan is Illinois' opponent Saturday night in Champaign and on that same evening either Purdue or Minnesota should be definitely eliminated from the race in the game in Minneapolis.

The general floor play of the Boilermakers has been up to par but the attack has been erratic. Forrest Sprowl, who got 16 points against Iowa, and Capt. Don Blanken have been hitting but the other members of the team have not held the pace. Purdue launched the season with eight consecutive victories and then lost three Big Ten games. Saturday's triumph raised the Boilermakers above the .500 mark in the conference.

Only one of Purdue's seven games after tonight will be played at home. This handicap is almost certain to eliminate the Boilermakers.

GARFIELD PARK DEFEATS SOUTH SIDE, 42 TO 28

Garfield Park scored a 42 to 28 victory over South Side yesterday in the Lodge division basketball league of the B'nai B'rith Youth organization. It was Garfield Park's fifth straight victory and enabled it to continue undefeated in the race with Austin, which defeated Kraus, 43 to 36.

Dave Holtzman scored six baskets and two free throws to pace the Austin quintet in its fifth straight triumph. In other games, Cardozo defeated Sachar, 26 to 16, and Albany Park whipped Salomon, 36 to 16.

Bob Heckenbach of the Northwest Skating club scored a grand slam yesterday in winning the city championship in the final outdoor ice meet of the season in Garfield park. He took all three class A races. Mrs. Elaine Bogda Gordon, also of Northwest, won the women's Chicago title in two victorious finishes and by their efforts the Northwest club won the meet with 380 points.

Heckenbach won all three events by coming from behind and spurting to the front with a half lap to go, while Mrs. Gordon took the lead from the start and led thruout against her teammates, Shirley Jane Burnett and Bessie Laga of the Barrett A. C., who were second and third, respectively, in both the 440 and ¾ mile events.

One of the most exciting races was the relay, also won by the Northwest skaters. Heckenbach, as anchor man, crossed the finish line 30 yards ahead of the CYO and Farragut teams, which were second and third. Don Fahrenbach, CYO intermediate, sprinted to two victories in the 440 and ¾ mile to capture the boys' city title in his division.

Johnny Martin, North American and national junior champion from Champaign, Ill., won the junior boys' ¾ mile by nearly a quarter of a lap and placed second to Byron Warnes of Northwest in the 400 to win the junior honors with 50 points. Summaries:

SABIN DEFEATS WELBY VAN HORN IN PRO FINALS

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 8 [Special]. —Wayne Sabin of Reno, Nev., defeated Welby Van Horn of Los Angeles, 6-1, 7-5, 6-0, today in the final round of the $1,500 Roney-Plaza professional tennis tournament. Sabin and Van Horn won the doubles by defeating Jan Kozeluh of Fort Lauderdale and Walter Senior of Louisville, Ky., 6-2, 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 6-1. Sabin's prize total was $360, Van Horn's $240.

Jackie Wilson Pulls Out of Benefit Fund Fight

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—The infantile paralysis sports fund committee disclosed tonight that NBA Featherweight Champion Jackie Wilson of Pittsburgh had notified officials he would not meet Leo Rodak of Chicago, his opponent in the boxing program the committee is sponsoring here tomorrow night. The 127 pound Wilson told the committee that Rodak, who normally comes in at 134 pounds, was too big for him.

CHANUTE TO MEET RENS.

Chanute Field's strong basketball team, conqueror of Illinois, will meet the New York Rens next Friday in Cicero stadium, 10th street and 52d avenue. Bill Hapac, whose home is in Cicero, will receive a gift between halves of the game.

Notre Dame Has New Torpedo to Shoot at Great Lakes Five

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 8 [Special]. —Notre Dame hailed a new basketball hero today as the Irish prepared for tomorrow's big game with Great Lakes in the Chicago Stadium. He is Robert La Mar Rensberger, black haired, brown eyed, slender junior guard who racked up 17 points to lead the team in its 46 to 43 conquest of Kentucky here last night.

Rensberger, 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighing 175 pounds, turned on amazing speed and drive to go under the Kentuckians' goal time after time for lay in shots. He made six of the first Irish points. Late in the game, with the score 36-all, he came thru with six of the last 10 points Notre Dame scored. The lad from Nappanee, Ind., was the only Notre Dame player to go the route.

Irish Seek 5th Straight.

Meanwhile, there was speculation on the campus whether Bobby Faught, sophomore center who got 25 points against Marquette a week ago, would find his eye again against the Sailors. There was a growing feeling that Notre Dame, victorious in 11 out of 15 games, including nine out of the last 10 and the last four in a row, might upset the service team.

Should Johnny Niemiera, Charlie Butler, John [Buster] Hiller, Rensberger, and Faught all start hitting on the same night the Irish might easily outscore Great Lakes. Butler and Cy Singer, junior guard, have colds, and it is doubtful whether they will see action. Singer missed last night's game and Butler was used sparingly.

Keogan to Be with Team.

Coach George E. Keogan lectured his squad this afternoon but there was no drill. The squad of 18 men will leave here at 9:30 tomorrow morning and will stay in the Morrison hotel. Keogan will accompany the squad, making his first trip out of town in more than a year. He has been convalescing from a heart ailment of last winter.

Robert Rensberger, Notre Dame guard, who scored 17 points against Kentucky last week. He'll try to annoy the Great Lakes five tonight in the Stadium.

Great Lakes, Notre Dame to Clash Tonight

heavy schedule may be spread so no one man carries too much of the load. John Adams, former University of Arkansas star, led the Sailors' attack with six field goals. In other games Bob Calihan of Detroit university, Frank Baumholtz of Ohio university, Ernie Andres and Bill Menke of Indiana university, and Dick Klein of Northwestern have starred. All of the men played against Wisconsin and 10 of the 12 scored in the game.

Mr. Adams Is Good.

Baumholtz is 5 feet 10 inches tall and he's the shortest player on the team. Only two are under six feet. Balanced strength as well as the unusual scoring ability of such players as Calihan, Menke, Baumholtz, and Adams have made Great Lakes nearly unbeatable.

Ohio State won from the Sailors, 38 to 32, while Michigan State won, 33 to 31. Last week Creighton was returned victor, 59 to 45. On Thursday night, however, Great Lakes won as it pleased from a Kansas quintet that had whipped De Paul university by 20 points.

Adams is the most recent addition to the Great Lakes squad. He played three years at Arkansas and was a member of the team that took the Southwest conference championship in 1941. Arkansas was beaten in the national collegiate tournament by Washington State. Adams' six field goals against Wisconsin were made on eight attempts.

Irish After Fifth Straight.

Notre Dame now has won four straight and 11 in 14 games against collegiate foes. While Bobby Faught, 6 foot 5 inch sophomore center, was off the scoring pace he has set recently, Bob Rensberger, junior guard from Nappanee, Ind., led the offense against Kentucky with six field goals and five free throws. Eight of the nine Irish players scored. Tonight's lineup:

GREAT LAKES.		NOTRE DAME.
Baumholtz [Ohio U.]	F	Niemiera
Menke [Indiana U.]	F	Hiller
Calihan [Detroit U.]	C	Faught
Rung [Miami U., O.]	G	Kuka

Great Lakes reserves—Anderson [Stanford U.]; Currie [Northwestern U.]; Klein [Northwestern U.]; Lobsiger [Missouri U.]; Van Orsdel [Miami U. of Ohio]; White [Dartmouth U.]; Bruckner [Michigan State]; Huber [Kentucky U.]; Adams [Arkansas U.].

Notre Dame reserves—Bonicelli, Brennan Butler, Engel, Fischer, O'Leary, Pope, Quinn, Singer, Bobek, Sturm, Vinciguerra, Curran.

Yale-Harvard Regatta Scheduled for May 23

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 8 (AP).—The Yale Athletic association announced tonight that the 90 year old regatta with Harvard would be held Saturday, May 23, on the Housatonic river at Derby, all four races to be rowed over a two mile course. The race was shifted from the Thames river in New London to avoid interference with naval traffic. Yale and Harvard raced at Derby during the first world war.

Now Watch 'Em Win—Phillies Become Phils

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 8 (AP).—From now on it'll be the Phils, not the Phillies, the management of the Philadelphia National league baseball club announced today.

"The shorter name should be more popular and its more appropriate," said Bill Phillips, the club press agent. "Lobert [Manager Hans Lobert] wants speed and is going to streamline the club's style of play, so we've streamlined the name."

The team has been known as the Phillies since 1883.

DI MAGGIO WAITS YANKS' MOVE IN SALARY DICKER

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 8 (AP).—The next move in the annual contract dickering between the Yankees and Joe DiMaggio is up to Ed Barrow, club president, DiMaggio said today upon his arrival here for three weeks of fishing and loafing.

DiMaggio said he had talked with Barrow by telephone after receiving his original contract and had informed him that he was coming here. "It now is up to him." said Joe.

MEDICAL CHECK SHOWS IT'S IN CARDS FOR 1942

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 8 (AP).—Optimistic reports received by the St. Louis Cardinals from their many 1941 casualties are putting teeth in the club's official slogan:

"Its in the Cards for '42."

The hospital slate which showed the club lost 283 player days of service during a protracted siege of injuries last season has been wiped clean by word from Center Fielder Terry Moore that he feels fine and is ready to begin his eighth major league campaign.

He's Been Resting.

Moore, who suffered a serious brain concussion when struck on the head by a pitched ball, has been resting thru the winter at his new home near Augusta, Ga. He returned to the lineup spasmodically after his late August injury, but never regained his true form.

Outfielder Enos Slaughter, shelved at the height of the Cards' bitter pennant fight with the Dodgers, says his fractured collar bone has healed completely. He has been going thru gym workouts three times a week. A right handed thrower, Enos was fortunate that his injury was on the left side.

Mort Cooper Is Ready.

Another important cog in the Cardinal machine, Infielder Jimmy Brown, suffered a broken nose. But he, too, is preparing for the start of the spring season by serving as an instructor in a baseball school at Orlando, Fla.

Only Shortstop Martin Marion played every game and even he didn't escape entirely the injury jinx which many experts believe cost the Cardinals the pennant. Marion made his record despite a fractured index finger on his throwing hand.

They're Healthy Specimens.

So word from the front office today was that it would be a squad of healthy specimens Manager Billy Southworth will greet at St. Petersburg, Fla., training camp late this month.

AAU BASKETBALL QUARTER-FINALS CARDED TONIGHT

Quarterfinals to determine a quintet to represent Illinois in the National AAU basketball finals in Denver next month will be held tonight in Lane Tech gym, Addison street and Western avenue, as the Central AAU basketball meet enters three final nights of play.

Four games will be played, starting at 7 p. m.

In the second game the Division Y, National YMCA champion last year, will meet Acme Steel, AAU champion the last two seasons. Acme boasts Joe Stampf, last year's Big Ten conference scoring leader.

The Peoria Caterpillars, composed largely of Bradley Tech stars, will meet the Senator Daleys, runner-up last season.

In the last game, Nathaniel Clifton, Negro scoring ace from Du Sable High, will lead the St. Elizabeth CYO team against the Schuessers.

7 p. m. Harry's Owls vs. Burton-Dixie.
8 p. m. Acme Steel vs. Division Y.
9 p. m. Peoria [Ill.] Caterpillars vs. Senator Daleys.
10 p. m. Schuessers vs. St. Elizabeth CYO.

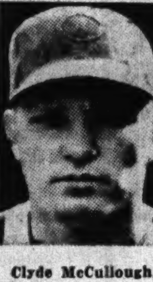
McCullough Is Pretty Good and Knows It

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 8 (AP).—"I'll be on the National league All-Star team this summer, because I'm the best catcher in the league."



Clyde McCullough.

Such a brash statement ordinarily would not merit much attention, but coming from 23 year old Clyde McCullough of the Chicago Cubs, it can't be tossed off as so much balderdash.

For McCullough has been on seven All-Star teams in his eight years of professional baseball, falling from the select list for the first time last season, his first under the big tent.

He Is Not Fooling.

"I'm not just popping off when I say I'll be on the All-Star team this summer," Clyde declared at his home today. "I can do everything any of the other catchers can do and do it just a little better."

The stocky 200 pounder, who was one of two players to hit a home run out of every park around the National circuit last summer, broke into professional ranks in 1935 with Lafayette, La., of the Evangeline league at the age of 16.

He batted .265 in 125 games that year, made the All-Star lineup and caught the eye of Scout Johnny Nee who bought him for the New York Yankees. The Yankees kept him on the farm four years—two in Akron, one in Binghamton, N. Y., and one in Newark and Kansas City—then sold him to the Cubs in 1940 for $30,000.

Gabby Sends Clyde Away.

Gabby Hartnett decided McCullough needed more seasoning and shuffled him off to Buffalo where he caught 154 games—136 in a row—and again made the All-Star lineup, as he had in successive years at Akron, Binghamton, and Kansas City.

He got his second shot with the Cubs last spring and stuck as first string catcher.

"I should have been on the National All-Star team last year," McCullough said seriously. "At the time it was picked, my average was a little low. Still I was chosen on the rookie All-Star team."

KOENIG BRAUS TIE FOR 1ST IN CLASSIC LEAGUE

Altho they had the best team total of the evening—3,088, the Schlitz Beers were forced to give up a half-share of their claim on first place in the Sunday division of the Classic league last night at Forest Park Recreation.

Schlitz lost the first game to Ambrosia Beer, and the Koenig Braus won their first with Blatz by 10 pins and went on to two more victories which tied them with Schlitz. The Koenigs totaled 3,039. Pabst and Monarch also swept their series which pulled them up to within one game of Schlitz and Koenig. Pabst had a 3,031 total, the Monarchs 3,004. Scores:

Future of Eastern Shore League Still Undecided

Easton, Md., Feb. 8 (AP).—The future of the Eastern Shore Baseball league is uncertain, President Harry S. Russell of Chestertown said today after a meeting of league directors. "Chances that we will be able to continue operating are decidedly slim," Russell said, adding that a definite announcement would be made next week.

ST. PHILIP AND JOLIET DIVIDE DOUBLE HEADER

The St. Philip junior quintet scored its sixth victory in seven starts yesterday when it whipped the Joliet Catholic juniors, 44 to 26, on the Joliet court. The triumph kept St. Philip in second place in the south section of the Catholic league basketball race.

The Joliet seniors retained their position in second place behind the idle Leo Lions by defeating the St. Philip seniors in the second game, 44 to 32. It was Joliet's fifth victory against two defeats.

Don Zier paced the Joliet seniors with 16 points, accumulated with five baskets and six free throws. At the half Joliet led, 23 to 12. Ed Kelly led the scoring for the St. Philip juniors with 12 points.

St. Mel took first place in the north section junior race by dealing Weber a 35 to 23 defeat in St. Mel's gymnasium. It was the home quintet's sixth straight triumph and Weber's first league defeat after five victories in a row. Five baskets and one free throw by Forward Lynch paced the scoring for both teams. At the half St. Mel led, 15 to 8. Lineups:

PLANE ENGINE OUTPUT NEAR AT CHICAGO PLANT

Studebaker Tooling Work Completed.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Studebaker corporation officials yesterday made a partial report on their war activities for the government. War department censorship forbids their giving only the barest information on most of the war work undertaken by this automobile company, which has headquarters in South Bend, Ind.

First, it was disclosed that tooling has been completed at the big aircraft engine plant which Studebaker will operate near Chicago airport. Men are at work and it is expected that production will soon start on engine parts in the vast windowless, blackout type factory.

Studebaker's engine order, as previously announced, calls for 1,200 horse power Wright Aeronautical type motors to be used in powering big four motored bombers.

Assembly at South Bend.

Second, it was announced that starting today Studebaker will utilize some of the manufacturing facilities made available when passenger car production was stopped on Jan. 31. Most of the machines which can be used in the war program will make parts for trucks which the corporation is building for the army. Other equipment not suitable for war production has been listed and made available for other companies.

When Studebaker swings into full war production 20,000 to 25,000 persons are expected to be employed. On Jan. 31 the corporation had 8,300 at work, excluding those in the aircraft engine plants.

300 Million Dollar Goal.

By December the company expects to be producing war materials of all kinds at the rate of 25 million dollars a month, or on a 300 million dollar yearly basis. Studebaker's best previous year was in 1923 when $166,153,000 of automobiles and trucks were produced.

"The initial step in transferring released passenger car facilities to war work was relatively simple," said H. S. Vance, chairman of the board of the Studebaker corporation. "Actually it did not differ greatly from normal plant rearrangement incident to annual changes in passenger car models.

"Subsequent steps, however, in transforming the South Bend plant into an armament factory will be much more complicated. However, we are hopeful that this can be done within a few months."

NEWSPRINT PRICE POLICY PLANNED FOR 2D QUARTER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—A joint program for establishing prices of newsprint and related products is being worked out by the Canadian wartime prices and trade board and the Office of Price Administration, it was announced today.

Representatives of the agencies held a preliminary meeting in New York Jan. 29 and plan another meeting next month.

Studies of the bases for second quarter prices will be undertaken at once in Canada and the United States and an announcement of policy will be made prior to April 1, it was announced.

Shift Small Business War Parley to City

One hundred small business men, representing trade associations and chambers of commerce thruout the nation, will meet in Chicago March 16, 17 and 18 to formulate a program of coöperation with the government in the war effort, Frederick A. Virkus, conference chairman and president of the Illinois division of the National Small Business Men's association, announced yesterday.

The conference was scheduled to get underway in Washington, D. C., this week, but was postponed when officials were unable to obtain hotel reservations, Virkus said.

One of the greatest problems to be worked out at the conference will be to find a place for small industries which cannot participate in war production.

Many Lack Adaptability.

"We must devise the means whereby free enterprise in America can be preserved without interfering with all-out armament production," Virkus said. "Sixty-eight per cent of small industry cannot be harnessed into the defense program because of obsolete machinery, inability to finance new equipment, or non-adaptability of plants for armament production.

"Most of this 68 per cent," he added, "are producing the ordinary necessities of life. Luxuries can be dispensed with, but the essentials must be maintained.

"These plants average 112 wage earners per plant, including executives, clerical help, men and women factory workers, and salesmen. If these millions of employés are thrown out of work thru the closing of these plants, where are the taxes coming from?"

No Isms Are Wanted.

Virkus advised delegates "to park all freak isms, personal criticisms or private grievances in their favorite hall closet back home" before they come to Chicago. "The conference is being organized, planned, and conducted by representatives of national and state-wide business men's organizations whose purposes and loyalties are beyond question," he said.

Shearson, Hammill Opens New Brokerage Quarters

BONDS AND TAXES.

As the owner of several defense savings bonds, I am puzzled with regard to the following: Am I required to report the increase in value of my bonds from year to year as income in my tax return even if actually I don't receive it? Since the bonds are registered in my name only, how would my heirs redeem them in the event of my death?—W. E. B.

Answer: You may either report as income the increase in the redemption value of your bonds as it occurs from year to year [accrual method] or you may report the entire increase as income at the maturity of the bonds or whenever you redeem them [cash method]. In the case of series G bonds, which bear interest semi-annually, the interest is reported when due or received.

The accrual method of accounting is reporting income when earned, even if not yet received, and claiming expenses when they are incurred, even if not yet paid. Under the cash method income and expense are reported when received or paid.

If you are on a cash basis you are permitted to use the accrual method of reporting the increase in redemption value of savings or defense bonds. The choice is made in the income tax return and may be made for any year beginning after Dec. 31, 1940. Once you make the election, however, it is binding in future years and applies not only to present bonds owned but to bonds subsequently acquired.

You may change methods only with the permission of the commissioner of internal revenue. If you transferred a bond to an heir thru your will he would not be bound by your accounting method. If, however, the heir already owned bonds and had made his choice of methods the bond he received from you upon your death would be covered by his previous election.

Bonds registered in your name only would be transferred to heirs specified to receive them under your will in the event of your death, or, in the event no beneficiary is named, would be redeemed. The administrator or executor of your estate would handle the transfer or redemption thru the treasury department. If your estate were not large enough for probate your heirs could transfer or redeem the bonds by filling out special treasury forms and submitting certain proofs.

NO DEPENDENT.

I am married and have a son 11 years old. I do not contribute any money to his actual support since he has income of his own from a trust fund set up by his grandfather on his mother's side. Am I allowed to claim the $400 credit for a dependent in this instance?—W. S.

Answer: You are not entitled to the credit for income tax purposes because you do not furnish your son with more than half his support. The credit is based upon actual financial dependency, not merely legal dependency.

Retailers Face New Shortage as Sales Grow

"What will the wholesaler be able to go out and buy next August and thereafter?"

Thomas B. Freeman.

That is the big question for distributors of merchandise, Thomas B. Freeman, president of Butler Brothers, Chicago general merchandise and variety goods wholesaler servicing several thousand stores throut the nation, declared yesterday.

Shortages will develop in many consumer items as a result of priorities and rationing, and the problem will be not how to make sales but how to get supplies, he said.

"Last year was the best for independent retailers that I've ever known," he said, "and this year their business has started off with a bang. It is rarely that we see a merchant who isn't doing at least 25 per cent more business than a year ago."

January wholesale volume was more than 18 per cent larger than a year ago, at $7,283,195, against $6,159,279. Sales of the Scott-Burr subsidiary were up nearly 35 per cent to $792,059, compared with $588,139 in the 1941 month. Consolidated sales were up 19.68 per cent to $8,075,254, against 6,747,418 in January, 1941.

BIG MANGANESE PROGRAM AIMS TO FREE IMPORTS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes announced today that the bureau of mines had proposed a 38 million dollar program to utilize low-grade, domestic manganese for the wartime steel industry.

The nation normally imports from southern Asia, Brazil, and Cuba more than 90 per cent of its manganese requirements, officials said, adding they feared a reduction in shipping may result in a deficiency in 1943 without additional processing of domestic ores.

Reporting that about 11,500,000 tons of domestic ores could be produced annually, the bureau proposed that either private industry or the government immediately build 12 plants in eight western and middlewestern states to apply newly discovered processes for utilizing the domestic output.

GOOD OUTWEIGHS HARM IN SEAWAY PROJECT, REPORT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—Harmful economic effects resulting from the proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project would be "few and inconsequential," and advantages would be "many and of vast importance," the St. Lawrence survey report to congress said today.

The report was prepared under supervision of N. R. Danielian of the commerce department and summarized conclusions and findings in six volumes issued during 1941. Emphasizing national defense, the survey declared there was no justification to the contention the emergency would end before the project could be completed.

Great lakes shipyards could build destroyers and some of them cruisers if the seaway were available, it was said.

SEEK PRIORITIES FOR BIG EDISON PLANT PROGRAM

Termed Reason for Mayor's Visit.

An effort to get priorities that will enable the Commonwealth Edison company to add 150,000 kilowatts of power generating capacity this year was seen yesterday as the reason for Mayor Kelly's conferences in Washington last week on the Chicago power situation. Equipment companies, jammed with war business, are said to be unable to produce the machinery, already ordered, without priorities.

Commonwealth Edison's expansion program provided for the delivery this summer of equipment which would have increased generating capacity late this fall by 150,000 kilowatts.

With existing capacity of approximately 2,145,000 kilowatts, the new facilities would have raised the total to 2,295,000 kilowatts. [A kilowatt is a unit of electric power equal to approximately 1⅓ horse power.]

Would Meet Known Needs.

Officials of the company said the addition of 150,000 kilowatts should take care of any power demands now in sight. The additional generating equipment has been allocated to the Fisk station.

The peak amount of power taken so far this winter was about 1,800,000 kilowatts. On a basis of the maximum power load, the safety margin of available power is about 345,000 kilowatts. However, the peak demand is rarely reached, and the practical surplus over normal needs is said to be closer to 385,000 kilowatts.

Because of its central location close to the source of supply of steel and other essential materials, Chicago is expected to take an increasingly important position in arms production. One factor giving Chicago the edge over other communities in the selection of arms factory sites is its big power pool.

Near New York Peak.

Commonwealth Edison's 2,145,000 kilowatt capacity compares with the 2,433,700 kilowatts of the Consolidated Edison company, New York, a company that serves a population about twice that of Chicago.

Chicago's power pool, planned years ago, embraces roughly a triangular shaped area whose points rest on Waukegan, Michigan City, and Powerton [near Pekin, Ill.]. If generating machinery becomes available it is estimated that the pool by the end of 1944 will have a total generating capacity of two and a half million kilowatts.

With the increasing number of war plants located in the Chicago area, practically all power is expected to be used in the district, altho in the past the Chicago pool has sent power to other areas when necessary.

Meantime, utility men expressed the opinion that when expected new war plants are located here and in full operation some power rationing may be necessary which may dim some of Chicago's flashing signs.

Tax Increase Cuts Flexible Shaft Profits

Increased federal taxes weighed heavily against record sales of the Chicago Flexible Shaft company in the fiscal year ended Dec. 27, and cut net earnings to $1,512,755 from $1,648,041 the year before, the annual report of H. C. Wright, president, showed yesterday. The earnings were equivalent to $8.40 and $9.16 a share in the respective periods.

Sales of the parent company, whose normal business of producing electrical products is being supplemented by the manufacture of war materials, totaled $11,982,330, against $9,818,753 the year before.

Du Pont Taxes Rise.

Last year's taxes of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. reached 115 million dollars, W. S. Carpenter Jr., president, said in his annual report issued from headquarters in Wilmington, Del. Federal tax charges were $107,500,000 against $50,200,000 in 1940 and 16 million dollars in 1939.

Because of higher taxes and increased material and labor costs, the increase in net income was confined to 4 per cent, altho operating income rose 40 per cent above the 1940 level, according to the report. Net income, as previously published, amounted to $90,401,470, equal to $7.50 a share, compared with $86,945,173, or $7.23 a share, in 1940.

Tool Profits Increase.

Monarch Machine Tool company, Sidney, O., reported 1941 net profit of $1,500,424, equal to $7.14 a share, against $1,183,106, or $5.63 a share in 1940. Shipments of lathes increased to $15,219,219 from $7,137,374 in 1940.

Kroger Grocery and Baking company's net earnings for 1941 were $4,970,102, equal to $2.71 a share on common stock, compared with $4,607,126 or $2.51 a share, in 1940.

General Bottlers, Inc., Chicago, reported its net income for 1941 was $173.335, equal to $2.08 a share, compared with $118,392, or $1.46 a share in 1940.

GENERAL MOTORS JOB RECORD OF 342,000 IS FORECAST BY WILSON

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8 (AP).—C. E. Wilson, president of the General Motors corporation, announced today the corporation will employ 148,000 workers on defense production in March, 185,400 in June, and 235,000—GM's previous all-time employment peak—in September.

By December, Wilson said, 272,000 workers will be on the pay rolls, with the number reaching 325,000 in June, 1943. Eventually, he said, the corporation expects its war contracts will give employment to a record breaking army of 342,000 workers.

Wilson announced the figures at a conference of United Automobile Workers-CIO delegates called to consider new contract demands on GM.

Scrap Is More Plentiful, But Steel Rate Declines

Federal Grain Action Termed Burden to Rails

BY PHILIP WARDEN.

Grainmen declared yesterday that government action in the grain markets during the last several days not only resulted in lower prices and disruption of normal marketing procedure, but increased the wartime transportation burdens of the railroads.

Citing figures of the Association of American Railroads showing 17,122 more cars of grain hauled in the week ended Jan. 31 than in the corresponding week last year, brokers said most of the increase came from the movement of government owned grain sold for feed purposes.

Million Bushels Daily.

John B. Hutson, president of the Commodity Credit corporation, said in Chicago that the agency had been selling wheat at a rate of a million bushels a day.

Biggest demands for the feed grain, according to the dealers, have originated on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. They said the government already had vast quantities of corn stored in these areas, but the CCC had offered its wheat for sale at a lower price.

Move Into Arms Areas.

The result has been, according to the grainmen, that the railroads have had to haul grain into areas where a large part of the armament materials must be moved. Hutson admitted that the credit corporation had encountered a shortage of freight cars in shuttling the wheat into the feed areas.

Trading in grain futures lagged thruout the week as the trade awaited clarification of government price control policies. Weakness in prices was attributed to the government's feed wheat sales. Cash prices declined, but dealers said the losses were minor considering the action of futures.

CLOTHING TRADE WARNED AGAINST HOARDING STOCKS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 8 (AP).—The War Production board announced today it was prepared to allocate supplies if necessary to prevent speculative hoarding of stocks by wholesalers, jobbers or retailers in the men's, women's and children's apparel trades.

"We fear that small retailers and manufacturers may be at a competitive disadvantage in the fall selling season because of their relative inability to finance pre-season purchases," R. R. Guthrie, chief of the WPB textile branch said.

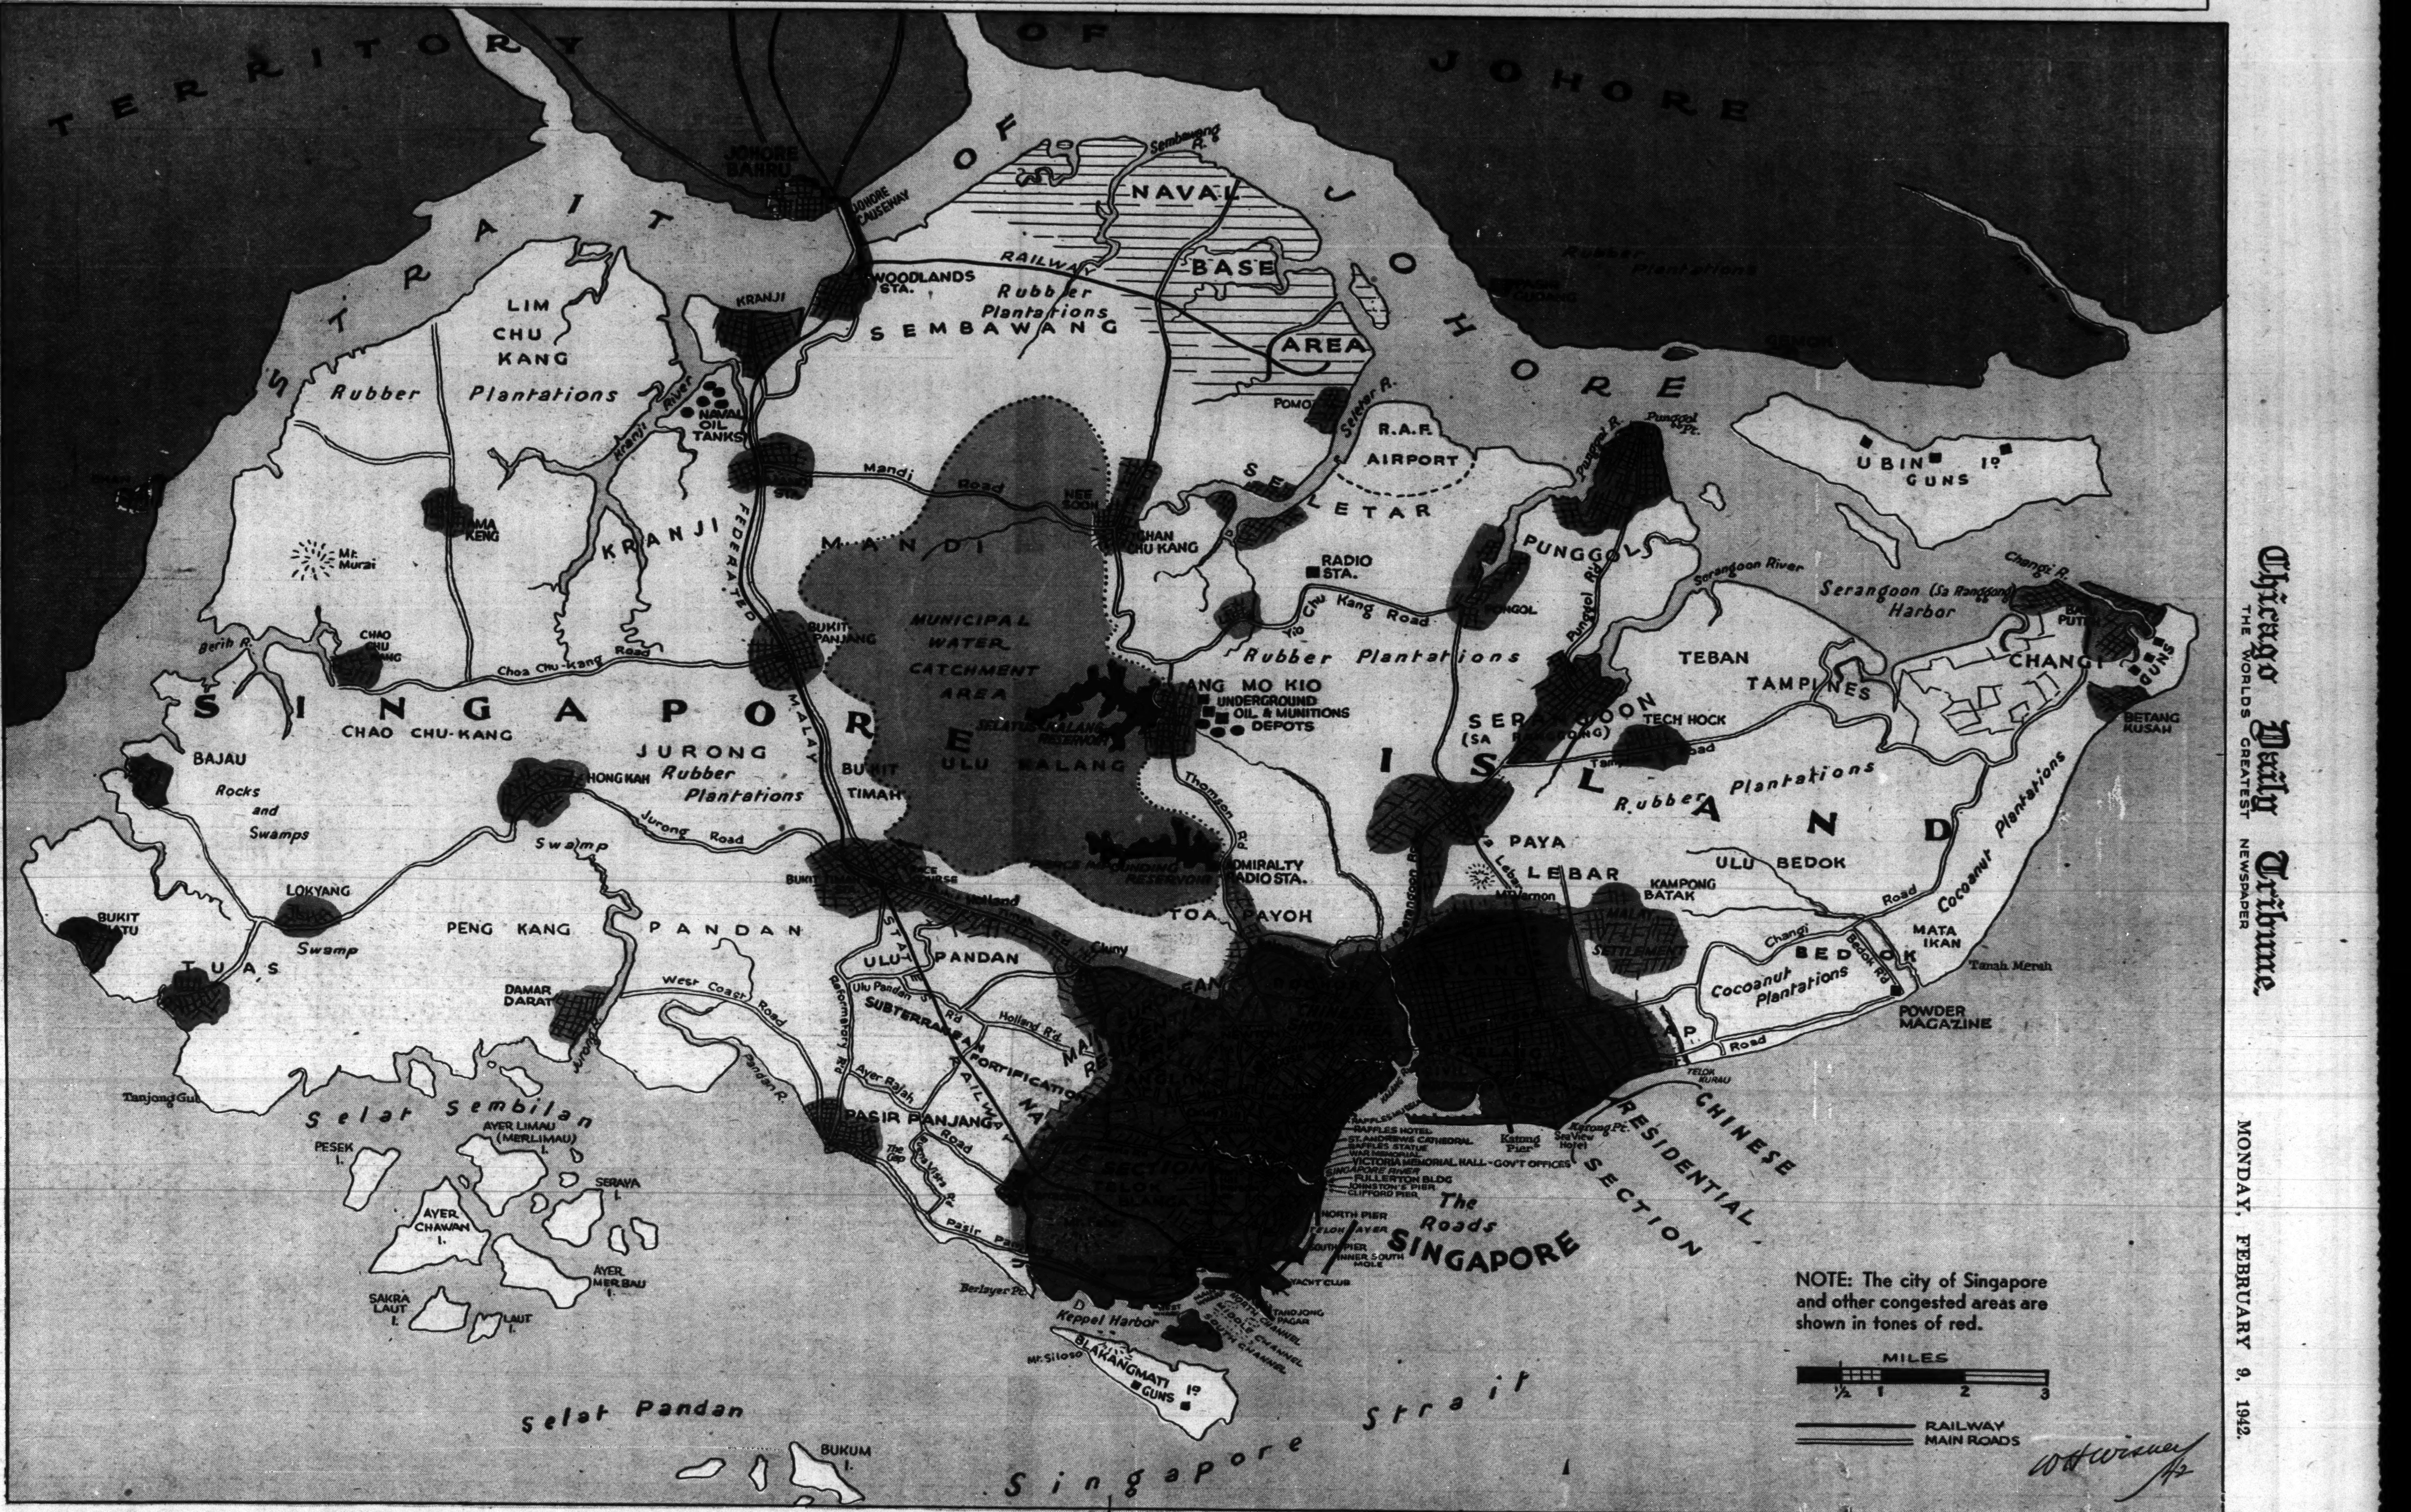
NEW MAP OF SINGAPORE ISLAND—BESIEGED BY JAPANESE



THIS IS A NEW map of Singapore Island, now being besieged by the Japanese. It is compiled from a number of maps of various types, and shows important features. Among these are the great city of Singapore, capital of the Straits Settlements; other towns and villages; the British super-naval base, largest in Asiatic waters; the royal air force base and the civil airport; coast defenses, oil and munition depots, plantation areas, and other features. North of the island, readers will observe, is the Strait of Johore, which separates it from the mainland, where Japanese troops have massed after battling their way down thru the jungles of the Malay peninsula. Spanning the strait at one of its narrowest parts is shown the Johore causeway, which the British rendered useless to the enemy when they retired to the island after their unsuccessful campaign on the peninsula. In normal times over this causeway ran railroad trains between the city of Singapore and Bangkok in Thailand. The island is 27 miles long, east and west, 14 miles wide, north and south, and contains 225 square miles of land. Its population, according to new estimates just made public, is about 750,000. Approximately 585,000 of these are Chinese, 75,000 are Malays, 60,000 British Indians, and 14,000 whites. The remainder are of virtually every race and nationality, as Singapore is considered the most cosmopolitan city in the world. The city itself has an estimated population of 650,000. It apparently has grown rapidly since 1937, when its population was officially placed at little more than 520,000. It has been one of the most important of the world's seaports, in normal times being served by 80 different steamship lines and annually visited by about 30,000 ships. Until the war made it necessary to discontinue the service, Singapore was the journey's end for the Pan-American Clipper planes. The first of these arrived there May 10, 1941, from San Francisco, 9,437 miles away across the Pacific. The naval base situated on the Strait of Johore was in the process of construction for 15 years, and was completed Feb. 14, 1938, at a total cost of 80 million dollars. It is said to possess facilities capable of accommodating all the warships of Great Britain and its allies. With the Japanese just across the strait, however, and with it constantly subjected to air attacks, it has been abandoned.
